PROGRESSIVE POLITICS

IN THE First congressional district of Oregon next spring there will be a contest in the Republican party between the progressives and the standpatners. The latter will be represented by Congressman W. C. Hawley, who is seeking re-election, while several aspirants have already entered the field on the other side. It is reported that new candidates are being added to the list daily, which would indicate that the opposition to Mr. Hawley is strong or the possibility of defeating him would not appeal to so many. The facts are that Mr. Hawley's brand of politics is out of date, and he is not wise enough to recognize it. The people today demand more of their representatives, who are elected to serve them, than they did a few years ago. Then, if they were able to work a pull occasionally for some of their friends and stood well with the administration, everything was all right, but today the mass of voters demand their share of the benefits of the government which they support. They select men to fill the various public offices the same as they would hire a man to look after their personal business. It is fast becoming a business proposition, and a man to hold office must make good. The Oregon system is known over the entire United States, and is being patterned by a great many of the states. While there may be some fault found with a lot of the modern laws being enacted by the people, yet taken as a whole the trend of legislation is toward the betterment of the people and the country. When the people assert their rights and demand a say in the affairs of public life the outcome cannot help but be beneficial. The old system of allowing or permitting a few bosses to dictate the policies of the nation was wrong, for the reason that in the majority of cases advantage was taken of the power resting in the hands of a few. The set back to the republican party in Oregon has not been due to any antagonism to the principles of the party, but rather to the antiquated methods pursued by the party leaders. This is the age of progress, and our political system must advance as well as our business methods. The party has been taught a lesson, and the indications are that it will profit from its experience of the past few years.

AVIATOR'S DISEASE

ALMOST every occupation has its neurosis, and every new sport adds one to the long list. We have become familiar with the "golfer's wrist," the "tennis elbow," and the "baseball arm" side by side with the "writer's cramp." Trades have their dangers and develop new types of disease. The air induces pathologic as well as physiologic effects. Disturbances in physiologic balance experienced at altitudes were described by DeCosta under the name of mal des montagnes in the fifteenth century; and the dangers of changes in atmospheric pressure were made memorable by the eventual and fatal balloon ascension of Tissandier and his comrades from Paris in 1875. The latest accession to the galaxy of maladies is the mal des aviateurs, says the Journal of the American Medical Association in a recent issue. With aviation meets as a daily occurrence, with a transcontinental flight now an accomplished feat, and the aeroplane in actual operation as an "engine of war," it is not surprising that the medical aspects of this new vocation should invite the attention of scientists. Professors Cruchet and Moulinier of Bordeaux, have recorded observations made at one of the large French meets. An aeroplane flight calls for a continuous effort, both physical and intellectual, under conditions to which the human body is not adjusted. An ascent to an altitude of 9,000 feet is accomplished in thirty to forty minutes and succeeded by a return to earth within five to seven minutes. To these speedy ascents and almost dizzying descents, forming the peculiar mechanical features of certain types of flight, are added the rapid changes in barometric pressure, the attendant modifications in the composition of the atmosphere, and the sudden alterations in temperature (from 68 F. on the ground to 42 F. at 9,000 feet)—a combination of factors including those to which all workers at high altitudes may be exposed. The data collected are, as yet, too scanty to permit of any elaborate discussion. Certain symptoms are of particular interest. During the ascents, shortness of breath may be experienced at relative low altitudes, accompanied by a rapid pulse. There may be a mild buzzing in the ears, but dizziness has not been reported. Headaches are liable at an altitude of about 4,500 feet. The sensation of cold becomes intense. Irregularities in the muscular movements are also reported—perhaps the expression of the combined effects of cold, accelerated heart beat, nervous tension, fatigue and other factors. As in the case of mountain climbing, the altitude at which different individuals are attacked varies widely. Cruchet and Moulinier add that probably the extreme rapidity with which the aviator travels through a changing atmospheric environment contributes to his distress and even danger to variations in atmospheric pressure which, divers, for example, would regard as relatively slight. Some of the symptoms noted in balloon workers find a counterpart in those reported by the aviators. We have some very desirable 6th street property for sale—Stephens-Hunter Realty Co.

MARVELOUS REVELATIONS

By Prof. Latiff, THE ONE WHO CREATED SUCH A SENSATION AT THE HOUTON OPERA HOUSE THE WORLD'S FAMOUS AND GREATEST CLAIRVOYANT, SOCIAL BUSINESS AND DOMESTIC LIFE REVEALED AS THOUGH SEEN BY THE NAKED EYE

FAIR AND SQUARE IN ALL HIS DEALINGS WITH THE PUBLIC. HE TOWERS ABOVE THE PARTIALLY DEVELOPED MEDIUM AND IS THE ENVY OF ALL PRETENDERS

Argraves Rooming House 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Many clairvoyants and mediums possessing with more or less power, have visited the city, but never in the history of occult science has there appeared in the professional firmament a star so radiant and sparkling with the superior intelligence borrowed cultured and highly gifted man from finer forces of nature as this cultured and highly gifted man. He is the peer of all mediums. He fully appreciates the responsible position in which he has been placed and asks those who have been imposed upon, humbugged and deceived by unscrupulous, uneducated persons who are claiming this divine gift of clairvoyance or mediumship not to despair, but to come and be convinced with his wonderful power by the Almighty, he has made it his life study, and has now reached such a highly developed condition that he can read your life like a book and give you needed information. Ladies can visit him without fear of having their confidence betrayed, and gentlemen need have no fear of being imposed upon. All will find in him a reliable medium and a gentleman as well, who has no "humbugging" or hoodoo business connected with his mediumship. He gives exact facts and figures, reliable and important advice and information on all business undertakings, warns you of coming dangers, averts trouble, sickness, etc., guides you aright in all affairs of life, marriage, divorce, law and speculation; tells if friends are true or false. The future revealed, lovers reunited, troubles healed, names of friends and enemies, and does give the name of your future husband or wife with the day of marriage, and is positively the only medium who does this correctly. Reunites the separated wife and husband and secures for you the hand and heart of the one you love in marriage; brings you success and good luck in all undertakings; gives you lucky days, weeks and months and years, and tells all about your future family and domestic life; gives excellent and reliable advice on all things pertaining to married life; teaches clairvoyance and develops mediums in from one to six months, so that you can tell everything, including names. Special attention given to the development of weak and partially developed mediums. If you anticipate speculating or investments of any kind, it will pay you to consult Prof. Latiff. His advice has made fortunes for many of his patrons. Why not for you? Office hours—9 a. m. to 9 p. m. All business sacred and confidential. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
