BUTCHER BOY LOVED NOT WISELY, BUT WITH ARDOR

Therefore, So He Claims, He Loaned Sums Aggregating $5,500 to Gram Widow, From Whom He Now Seeks to Recover It by Law

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—A Harlem butcher's boy's story of his impetuous and self-sacrificing courting of a charming and supposedly wealthy young Southern widow, who lived in style at a big hotel, is told in papers filed here to show how Michael Gelman made alleged loans, amounting to Mrs. Helen Kockman from September, 1898, to March, 1909. Mrs. Kockman denies every loan and every circumstance in the recital of the romance.

"It's simply a case of blackmail," she said. "I never borrowed a cent from him. I was sympathetic for him because his family abused him." The butcher boy's version of their acquaintance is different. To him Mrs. Kockman was a grand lady. He never questioned, he said, her story of ready money needed to pay assessments on stock, needed to defray expenses of a lawsuit, or any other cause she advanced. The awakening came when he learned that the supposed widow, who had often talked marriage to him, revealed that she was only separated from her husband and not divorced.

PREFERENTIAL BALLOT IS LATEST WRINKLE AT POLLS

Seattle Proposes to Go Primary Election One Better, Doing Away With It by Giving Voter First, Second and Third Choices

United Press Service
SEATTLE, Dec. 26.—Seattle hopes to go the primary election one better with what is known as the preferential ballot. Voters will be given an opportunity to express their first, second and third choices. It will do away with the primary. The idea is contained in one of ten amendments to the city charter, already agreed upon by the judiciary committee and to be submitted to the people in March.

A SHORT TALK ON AMERICAN LADY CORSETS

BEAUTIFUL and supple, as here portrayed, is the figure corseted in an American Lady Corset. The vital parts of a corset are the designing and boning. Your knowledge of these points must come through actual wear, for you can not see them.

We ask nothing more than that you try "American Lady Corsets." Give them as hard wear as you may and you will find all wearing parts equal to whatever wearing strain may be given them.

Your figure will have no faults if you wear one of the smart new models. Come in, be properly fitted to the right model for your individual figure; so much depends upon the proper fitting.

Prices Range
$1 to $5
