PEOPLE MEET PRESIDENT AND WIFE IN WHITE HOUSE

First of Year When All Comers, No Matter What Their Station or Dress Are Welcome to Enter White House
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 1.—Common People shook hands with White House today.

This is the "big reception day" when all comers, no matter how they may be dressed or what their station in life, may enter the White House and be received by the chief executive. If they will stand in line long enough.

The Yale Glee Club provided a special feature of the reception this year. They came with song and jest from the president's alma mater, and they were given special consideration.

A reception was arranged in their honor, and the boys, in return, sang several specially composed songs, in which President Taft figured as the subject of the songs.

It was the third time that President Taft and Mrs. Taft were hosts at the New Year's reception, and this year Mrs. Taft's health was better than on either of the former occasions.

It was a great gala occasion, with the marine band in full regalia providing music and the crowds, forming for hours before the doors were flung open at 11 o'clock. The buglers of the Marine band announced the approach of the president at 11 o'clock and the big social event started with the usual military precision.

The presidential party came down the winding stairs and greeted Vice President Sherman, who was the first to extend the wishes for the coming year—the year of the national election, marking the most important phase of the president's ambition. Then the members of the cabinet and their wives were greeted. The party walked to the Blue Room and formed a receiving line to meet the diplomatic corps.

First of all the diplomats came the dean of the corps, Baron Hengemuller von Hengemuller, the erect, distinguished looking ambassador from Austria-Hungary. In his full regalia, the baron presented a fine appearance at the head of the line. Behind him came the personal representatives of the monarchs and rulers of the world.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—England will have her opportunity to retaliate in the tit-for-tat game with Germany, who sent Max Schulz to seven years of hard labor on an "espionage" charge, in the case of Captain Heinrich Grosse of the Merchant Marine, now at Portsmouth for trial on the identical charge for which Germany punished Schulz. The temper of the two countries is forcibly illustrated in these frequently recurring espionage trials.
