STOP AUTO HORN'S MISUSE PLEA OF ANTI-NOISITES

Mrs. Isaac L. Rice Says Police Could End Nuisance If They Would—Endorses Chicago Automobile Ordinance—She's an Advocate of Quiet

"When the police authorities of a city make an earnest effort to suppress the unnecessary use of the automobile horn a large part of the present noise nuisance will be abated," said Mrs. Isaac L. Rice of New York City, president of the Society for the Suppression of Unnecessary Noise.

"First an enforceable ordinance is needed; then its rigid enforcement."

"The claim is made," she continued, "that the police authorities are too busy preventing crime and saving life to concern themselves with noise problems, but it seems to me that if the latter were but given the proper consideration, they would find them in many ways as important to the safety of the community as other problems with which they are occupied."

"The flagrant abuse of automobile warning devices is little short of maddening. Why, here in New York city I have known of hospital patients asking to be sent to their homes because of the amount of noise made by automobiles passing the hospitals."

"The flagrant abuse of automobile warning devices is little short of maddening. Why, here in New York city I have known of hospital patients asking to be sent to their homes because of the amount of noise made by automobiles passing the hospitals."

Everywhere there is a growing sentiment against the misuse of auto horns. In Chicago this sentiment has taken the form of a city ordinance stating that they shall not be used except in their true function—as a warning of danger. And the ordinance is being rigidly enforced.

This ordinance also defines the kind of signals that may be used, specifying that they shall produce "an abrupt sound, sufficiently loud to be heard above the noise of the streets."

Abrupt means short. Chicago motorists, in other words, are required to blow a loud blast, but a short one. This is ample from a warning standpoint, yet it reduces to a minimum the actual noise necessary for a proper warning.

If a signal is powerful enough so that only one blast is needed and its use can be confined to cases of necessity, surely no one can object to it. It is the prolonged blasts, the shrieks that cause the suffering; and it is these that should be stopped.

The automobile needs a warning device—one that shall be adequate to be heard and heeded; but its use should be regulated by law as has been done by Chicago.

One of the most obnoxious practices of motorists is their attempt to "clear the road" far in advance of their approach by means of long strident blasts of their horns. In this way they seek to maintain their speed—in many cases without even slowing up at crossings—and depending solely on their horns for the protection of pedestrians.

While this practice of "road clearing" may be perfectly permissible when touring in the country, on city streets it is inexcusable as it is dangerous.

I do not believe that the sounding of automobile horns should be permitted more than 100 to 150 feet from the person to be warned. If a driver is proceeding at a reasonable rate as he should be even these distances are too great.

Mrs. Rice believes that automobile clubs throughout the country can do much toward the elimination of the noise nuisance by urging the passage and enforcement of ordinances similar to the one recently enacted by Chicago.
