

RAIL PROSPECTS OF KLAMATH BASIN

WILL HILL COME IN?

CAPTAIN APPLIGATE THINKS IMPROVING BUILDERS MAY BE GETTING TRAINS HERE BEFORE END OF 1912

Despite the report that the construction equipment of the Erickson-Patterson company, who built the Patton cutoff as far above Klamath Falls as the Williamson River at the foot of the Klamath marsh, is being packed up and that work north of the river will not be done this year, Captain O. C. Appligate is sanguine in the belief that it will be.

It is strongly of the opinion that the contract will be let and the rails laid a considerable distance north of that point this year, and predicts the possibility that the Hill line will work this way and meet the Harrison system. As a consequence of such possible accomplishment he points out that nothing is more feasible than that the two lines will work in harmony and that trains of Uncle Jim Hill's great system may be passing through Klamath Falls on their way to and from San Francisco before the year is closed. In an interview the captain spoke as follows: "Few people realize the rapid development which is sure to come to the Klamath Basin within a short time from railroad construction which is already assured. We have no reason to doubt the statement made last fall by the vice president and manager of the Southern Pacific lines on this coast, after careful consideration of the Klamath Falls-Natron cutoff problem, that trains will be running on this route early in 1912.
