

You don't have to buy Lard

That was rendered in on Eastern packing house possibly six months ago, when you can get an absolutely pure, fresh, rendered article for less money, and keep that money at home.

We are selling our home-made lard 5 pounds for 45c, 5 pounds for 75c and 10 pounds of lard for $1.40, as pure as it grows on the hog. There's none better.

We are putting up a first-class compound at 50c and $1.00 a pair. Our Home Sugar-Cured Hams and Bacon are fine; our sausages famous, and our desire to sell home products the height of our ambition.

Advantage of a Little Store

A little shop means little rent. Few in help means little spent. Little spent in running store Means attractive prices inside the door.

I have the smallest jewelry store in Klamath Falls. I hire no help. I pay small rent. This saving in expense enables me to sell goods on a very close margin. If you are on the market for anything in the jewelry line call and see my prices before buying.

HOW TO BUILD UP YOUR HOME TOWN

Civic Beauty a Civic Asset

By
Chas. H. Holmberg

The growing public sentiment in the cities and towns throughout our country for cleaner communities and more beautiful surroundings is one of the encouraging signs of the times; it bespeaks of the coming of a time when the name of the home town will be a synonym of the "town beautiful." It means, too, that with every improvement of the home surroundings and the living conditions of the people, there will be produced a better citizenship, with a higher standard of morals and more ideal social conditions.

The people of everywhere are beginning to see and understand that the "idea beautiful" is the idea that makes for the betterment of communities and the uplift of society. The development of parks, the making of public playgrounds, and the beautifying of streets have become a necessary part of the upbuilding of the modern, up-to-date town. In many places the dream of the "city beautiful" has been realized. Civic beauty has become a definite, tangible idea; unsightly spots that were designated as "eye sores" have been transformed into places of beauty and pleasure, and ugly, filthy streets changed into beautiful avenues.

In the inauguration of a campaign for civic beauty, the matter of cleanliness is first in importance. Some one has said that, because of a lack of civic pride many communities are "built in black air, which by its accumulated foulness first renders all ornament invisible." The saying that cleanliness is next to godliness applies to the town as a whole as well as to the individual therein.

Before the beautifying of the home town can be successfully undertaken the business men and property owners, as well as the citizens in general, must become convinced that civic beauty promotes civic health. Where cleanliness and beauty obtain there health is the rule.

The desire for civic improvement must manifest itself not only in a desire to beautify parks, avenues and public grounds, but in a determination to keep the streets and alleys clean. The backyards of home places must not be neglected. Wherever there has been a successful movement for the "city beautiful" the first work was a general clean-up of the streets, alleys, backyards and vacant lots. In such work there must be a hearty co-operation between the town officials and the people generally.

Until the public at large, or even a respectable minority, demands it, civic improvement will be slow and unsatisfactory. Experience proves that local civic improvement societies can do much to arouse public interest and get the work started.

With public interest aroused and the work of beautifying once started, the improvement of the town goes right on. Not all the people come from Missouri, but most of them like to be "shown" what civic beauty really means to the town. One little beauty spot in the way of an improved and well-kept park is an eye opener, and other improvements, one after the other, follow, for the people have commenced to realize that civic beauty is a civic asset, and that money spent for making their home town more beautiful is money well invested.

The effect of public improvements along this line will be that residents will begin to vie with each other in the beautifying of their home grounds. Strangers will stop to admire the pretty private lawns, with borders of flowers and shrubbery. In the back yards, instead of tin cans and trash, there will be gardens where "useful and pretty things grow." The dull, sleepy town has become a place of beauty and a joy forever; the young people no longer look forward to the time when they can go to the big city "to see something." The touch of beauty has made the old town a very desirable place for both old and young to live in.

Organized and persistent effort in any community will eventually bring about the desired results with reference to the improving of public grounds and the beautifying of home surroundings. Such effort will prove well worth the while. It will build up the town in the best sense. A more beautiful home town will mean a more prosperous community, better citizenship, more happy homes and a more contented people.
