PROGRESS OF KLAMATH PROJECT NOTED DESPITE ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS

The March number of the Reclamation Record, published monthly by the reclamation service, has the following on the Oregon-California Klamath project, which it notes at 70 per cent completed:

version dam, it having been framed and partially enclosed at the end of the month. On the 19th water was discharging over the crest of Lost River dam to the depth of 1 1/2 feet, amounting to approximately 2,200 second feet. Seven carloads of lumber, received under the contract awarded last month, were barged down the main canal for use in the second unit lateral structures.
