REPRESENTATIVE OF BIG FINAN-CIAL INTERESTS WIRES EAST THAT INVESTMENTS ARE FIRST CLASS

PORTLAND, June 6—"The amount of money to be made in the West is limited only by the speed that Eastern capital can be sent into the West for investment. The only thing without a spine in the West is Burbank's spineless cactus."

This telegram was sent to New York bankers by Robert Searle, banker, vice president and general manager of the Rochester Railway Light and Power company of Rochester, N.
Y., who, as representative of Eastern banking houses having $500,000,000 invested in California alone, has been traveling in Western states for the last three months, studying the trend of Western legislation in connection with its effect upon public service securities. He started his career as office boy for Thomas Edison, the electrical wizard.

"It will be breaking no confidence to state that I was sent to make an investigation owing to shaken confidence of certain big bankers, who were scared slightly owing to the so-called radical legislation in the West, California particularly," said Mr.
Searle, at the Multnomah hotel.

"They feared that the Western law makers might be tinkering with statutes that would endanger or make less profitable investments in public service corporations in the West. My telegram embodies my ideas in regard to the safety of the West from the standpoint of the investor. I believe the laws are being shaped in the various coast states that will aid safe, sane and conservative investments.

"Just before I left the East one of the bankers whom I represent said:
'Bob, we have opened branch offices in England, France, Italy, Germany, Russia and South America and are selling Western public service securities. I wonder if we will have to open an office in Hades now, because I feel that the securities are going there.' That was how this particular banker felt.

"When my report is in I am sure this feeling will pass quickly. Investors 3000 miles away are easily frightened. A man can rush in and say:
'The Columbia River has risen eight-teen feet,' and a man who has an orchard way up on a mountain side ten miles from the river will turn white with fright, then swear that his crop is probably floating somewhere in the vicinity of Astoria, and rush out to sell his property. The highly colored reports of the actions of Western lawmakers had about this effect on some of our bankers. The reports were in variance with the truth, needless to say.

"I am convinced beyond a doubt that the West is as big as big men will make it. All the West has to do is to keep on being big. Your lawmakers should make it their duty, however, to see that the financial hook for Eastern capital is liberally baited. You offer great opportunities to attract homeseekers, and you should do the same to attract Eastern capital. To launch big enterprises in the West makes hazard obligatory, at present, and only liberal inducements will secure Eastern money for the West as fast as the West has need of it. No investor, East or West, hazards his money in a new country unless there is promise of great returns, commensurate with the hazard taken.

"Only little people, who have not the ambition or the brains to go out and get their share of prosperity, envy and criticize big men and big enterprises they launch. Little people do not realize that a dollar turned in the East on a Western investment means $10 or $100 turned in the West for the Westerner. I find that many of your so-called big men in the West are hostile to Eastern capitalists and money. They usually are men who grow wealthy through development of the West, and now want to sit back and hog it all. We have the same kind of teachers in the East.

Their money should be shoved down their throats, and then they should be deported, for they are useless.

"There are many broad-minded, progressive men in the West, too, who fear the Eastern way of doing things, because things are done differ-ently in the West. And this feeling is more widespread than one would imagine.

"This I cannot understand. Men are the same, East or West. Here you dress the same, eat the same, have autos, street cars, read the same periodicals, see the same shows. The trouble with this kind of men is their nerves. Torpid livers jaundice the viewpoint, always.

"The Panama-Pacific exposition will do a world of good for the coast.
Some men, East and West, seem to think that lax times will follow the exposition. They base this assumption on the experience of Eastern cities. They forget, however, that the San Francisco show will be held to celebrate an era to come, while the Eastern expositions commemorate an event that occurred in the dead past.
Dull times will not follow the fair.
San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, the entire West, will go ahead. It foreshadows a new epoch.

"And, quite incidentally, wonderful Oregon and splendid California have converted me to the 'See America First' movement."

Mr. and Mrs. Searle arrived in Portland from California Sunday and left Tuesday night for Seattle, en route to their home in New York state.
Mr. Searle was entertained Tuesday at a luncheon at the Arlington Club. Among those present were: B.
S. Josslyn, president of the Portland Railway, Light and Power company; Guy Talbot, president of the Pacific Power and Light company; H. M.
Papst, J. C. Ainsworth of the United States National bank; James Cranston, of the General Electric company; F. W. Hill, Hugh Hume and C. S.
Jackson. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Searle were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Jackson on an automobile trip, and in the evening the dinner guests of Mr. Papst.
