DR. JORDON EXPLAINS
INTERNATIONAL PEACE

President of Stanford University Tells of the Aim of the Great Movement at the Commencement Exercises of Oregon Agricultural College

CORVALLIS, June 13.—"The aim of the peace movement is to do its part to keep unreasoning anger out of the councils of the world," said Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford University, in his address to the graduating class of the Oregon Agricultural college at the fifty-seventh commencement of the institution here. Speaking on "The Case Against War," Dr. Jordan said in part:

"The absence of unreasoning anger between nations is the beginning of peace. But our ideals of peace are not met by 'bankruptcy armed to the teeth,' the state of Europe today, a condition which finds its final climax in a beggar crouching by a barrack door. International peace means mutual respect and trust, a condition in which the boundary line between states is not a line of suspicion and hate, but like the boundary of provinces, a convenience in judicial and administrative adjustments.

"Such a boundary as this is found in the 4,000 mile line which separates Canada from the United States, an undefended border which for nearly 100 years has not known a fortress nor a warship nor a gun. There is nothing of which the two great North American nations have a greater right to be proud than this boundary of trust and confidence.

"The end of our efforts is found in the conception of peace through law. A natural law is the expression of the way in which things normally come about. Human law is the expression of the best relations among men. In war, the conception of right and duty disappear. In arms, the laws are silent. Worse ways of doing things take the place of better, to the detriment of society and of the individual man.

"The whole movement of civilization has been from strife toward order. In barbarism every man's hand is against every other. The life of every man and woman is a tragedy. As man has risen co-operation has taken the place of compulsion. Men have brought peace to their families and their neighborhoods by working together to exclude war. They have learned more and more to leave their differences to the decision of others, either through arbitral settlement or judicial decision. The one brings about a condition of mutual tolerance; the other strives toward ideal justice. And in the world of today both methods find their center in the councils and tribunals of the Hague.

"The unification of international life is a guarantee, obvious to all save the politicians, that international war among civilized nations has already come to an end."

RUCKER-PITTS CASE
ARGUMENT IS BEGUN

A suit in equity is being tried this afternoon in chambers by Judge H. L. Benson, the litigating parties being Mary C. Rucker and Margaret Pitts, and the issue involving in its merits a period extending back to 1869, and the sum of about $35,000 of property in this county.

Attorneys Stone & Barrett and J. C. Rutenic are for the plaintiff and Attorneys Nolan & Crane are for the defense.

It appears that property in Missouri was traded for property in Tulare, Calif., and that in turn was traded for property in this county at the amount already estimated. Much of the argument of counsel on both sides was directed to the limitation of the "statute of limitations," and what was called an "express trust," meaning thereby that a minor could not be a party to an express trust. The case has elements of interest because of the fact that it has been for forty-three years in the courts of three states: California, Illinois and Missouri, and involves a tangled family regulation concerning the well known Pitts property in this county.

DESCHUTES HAS ENORMOUS FLOW

look, and the building of the north canal diversion of concrete and steel insures the irrigated section near Bend a reliable water supply.

"This present development is nothing when compared with the possibilities for future development. The Deschutes River at Benham Falls has a mean annual discharge of 1,220,000 feet of water, as shown by eight years' records. The minimum year furnished 1,070,000 acre feet, so that it is safe to say that there is available at this point for irrigation purposes 1,000,000 acre feet of water. This will irrigate 333,000 acres of land, or a strip one mile wide and 520 miles long.

"The regular flow will ultimately irrigate about 120,000 acres between Bend and the Crooked River. Every drop of the remaining water can and should be stored for irrigation purposes through the construction of a 60-foot dam at Benham Falls. This could be released in the summer and diverted near Cline Falls for the irrigation of 110,000 acres on Agency Plain, for the irrigation of 60,000 acres in the Crooked River bottom near Prineville, and by diverting above Bend, irrigate 50,000 acres in the Benham Falls segregation, just south of Prineville. Except for an inverted siphon across Crooked River Canyon, there are no great engineering difficulties to be overcome, and it appears that this is one of the cheapest projects in the state to construct.

"The entire flow at the head of the river can be used for the irrigation of about 60,000 acres of land above the Benham Falls reservoir without affecting these figures, as the seepage will be collected in the reservoir below.

"Sixteen dam sites have been located in the narrow rock-walled canyon from the Columbia River to just below the junction of the Metolius with the Deschutes River. With 4,000 second feet at the 1,300 feet of fall which can be developed at these sites, 600,000 theoretical horsepower can be generated. With the low and high year flow equalized at the Benham Falls reservoir, and with a 120-foot dam in the Crooked River about forty miles above Prineville, this low water flow can be increased to about 8,000 second feet, and the power to nearly 900,000 horsepower. This is about six times the present install steam and hydro-electric machine capacity in the vicinity of Portland, and about forty times the low water power development at Oregon City. Besides this, an enormous quantity of power can be developed on the Metolius River and at other points."

ALBANY ELKS WILL WEAR BELLS WITH UNIFORMS

ALBANY, June 13.—Albany Lodge No. 359, B. P. O. Elks, has completed its arrangements for the visit of the organization to Portland on the occasion of the Grand Lodge reunion in July, and the plan is to make an appearance that will reflect credit on Oregon Elkdom. Over 450 members have already signed up for uniforms and railroad transportation for the trip to Portland, and the general committee on arrangements expects to have 500 Albany Elks in line during the great parade on Thursday of the Grand Lodge week. Albany Lodge is the second in point of membership in Oregon.

The lodge has provided a magnificent uniform for its members, and will be led by one of the strongest local bands to be secured. The uniform consists of a white duck ulster, trimmed in purple, with purple buttons; a white plug hat with purple ribbon, and each member will carry a white umbrella trimmed in purple and having suspended from the point of each rib a small bell. The committee has ordered 3,500 bells for the umbrellas, and it is possible that a further shipment will be ordered as members sign up for uniform, and, as the members of the committee express it, "The lodge will appear in the parade with bells."

TESTED MATERIAL FOR HOME BUILDING

appeals to the conservative man because it offers a tangible basis upon which to reckon. Take lumber, for instance, and you can see evidence on all sides where houses that were built of wood have outlasted a generation, and are today (if they have been given proper care) as good as new. Wood has stood the test, and be utilized today as economically as any other material, considered from all points—appearance, durability and healthfulness. In its use you have precedence to go by. What others have done with it you can do, and the lumber we handle these days is the product of the best "quality" mills in the United States. It's a pleasure to show it as well as to talk its various uses, and we are at your service from 7 to 6 daily. Come in.
