FLIES AND HEALTH

"SWATTING THE FLY" is a most worthy object, and if a general campaign was instituted it might result in diminishing the number a few millions or so, but there will always remain millions upon millions of flies. Getting right down to facts there is nothing poisonous or harmful in the fly itself, but the danger lies in the typhoid germs and the poison which the flies carry to the food consumed by the people.

It would seem that a campaign to cleanse and remove these germ breeding places in our city would be more to the point. What is the use in wasting our time in killing these distributors of germ and filth, if the poison is permitted to infest the public places of the city.

There are dozens of open sewers and toilets in Klamath Falls, and the water from the hills around the city wash this human excrement and filth to the low ground, creating stagnant pools reeking with germ-breeding filth. A half dozen barrels of chloride of lime would be a good disinfectant for the toilets and sink holes, and combined with a strict enforcement of health laws and the sewer regulations would soon make Klamath Falls one of the most healthful spots in the country. Furnishing food for the flies and mosquitoes is hardly the proper system for those desiring to exterminate them.

NEWSPAPER MEN DISCUSS PRESIDENTS

Old-Time Reporters Recall Some Very Interesting Facts Concerning Successful and Unsuccessful Candidates for Presidential Honors

Special to The Herald
CHICAGO, July 17.—Gathered at Congress hotel in Chicago a short time ago during the republican convention were a number of old-time newspaper men who have been "doing" politics for many years. One said it is rather curious that no presidential candidate and no president had ever split his name in the middle. One vice-presidential candidate did so, and he was B. Gratz Brown.

This reminded another of the group that in the long list of presidents there were only two instances in which names had been duplicated—John Adams and John Quincy Adams and William Henry Harrison and Benjamin Harrison.

And in both instances they were kin," said another.

"But there were two presidents," chimed in a veteran New York Sun man, who had the same Christian name and whose family names began with the same letter, Andrew Johnson and Andrew Jackson."

This led Samuel G. Blythe of the Saturday Evening Post to remark that that there had been three Johns in the White House. He mentioned the two Adamses and Tyler.

"And there were five Jameses," said Jim Faulkner of the Cincinnati Enquirer, "Madison, Monroe, Polk, Buchanan and Garfield."

"But there was only one George. Let's go and liquor to his memory."

"Have you overlooked the fact that we have had three Williams for president?" asked an ex-judge in the group. "William Henry Harrison, William McKinley and William Howard Taft."

"That reminds me," quoted another, "that we had but two presidents who signed both Christian names. John Quincy Adams and William Henry Harrison."

"Nineteen of our presidents had no middle Christian names, or if they had, they never signed them. Mr. Cleveland had a middle name, but eliminated it early in life," said the starter of the gabfest.

"And as we look at them," said the oldest reporter of them all, "all of our presidents save McKinley and Roosevelt had English names."

"You have forgotten that there was one with a Holland name—Van Buren. I suppose some of you Dutchmen would claim him."

PEOPLE YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

IRISHMAN GETS ONE "ON" JUDGE

Whenever in the Klamath country a public meeting is planned or a banquet to be given on some noteworthy occasion, and the promoters desire to guarantee in advance success, the first step in the perfection of the plans is invariably the same.

"Let's get Judge Benson to make a speech."

And, having secured the promise of the judge to attend the organizers of the affair rest easy. There's no chance of failure.

Although distances in Eastern Oregon are greater than in most other parts of the West there is not a spot so remote but that the judge's name is not well known, and at some time or another he has brightened the lives of the residents by his sound advice or cheerful stories.

And speaking of story telling, Judge Benson's reputation along this line of endeavor is not local. He is as well known in Portland as he is in Klamath Falls.

There is a story now going the rounds, one "on" the judge. It runs something like this:

A few years ago Judge Benson was making a trip to Lakeview to hold a term of court. Riding on the same seat was an Irishman, a well known resident of Lake county, who was returning from a visit to his birth place in the County of Cork.

"You would be a long time in Ireland, Mike, before you would be riding with a judge," said Judge Benson.

"'Tis an' ye'd be a long time in Oirland before ye'd be judge," was the quick rejoinder.

And they do say that Judge Benson tells this on himself.

Mix 'n' Up

Interlocutor—Gentlemen, be seated.
Ta-ta-tata.
Interlocutor—Mister Bones, you look worried.
Mister Bones—Ah am worried, suh.
Interlocutor—You were worried last night because you were afraid of those Portland gentlemen. You had no occasion to be alarmed because of them, as you know. Now, what are you worried about?
Mister Bones—Well suh, it am like dis. Down head at de barber shop where Ah labors at shinning de pedal extremities ob de ge'manh de bahbers has done concluded to comb der hahr in a soht of pomphador fashion, an' de boss bahber dun said dat no pussion could work in de shop unless he conformed to dis rule. Now, Ah been wondering how Ah's goin' to part my hair and make it dis heah pomphador style unless Ah stays up all night and curls it out. What do you say?
Ta-ta-tata.
Interlocutor—Tambo, who was that young lady I saw you walking down Main street last night?
Mister Tambo—Yo all mean dat light chocolate complexioned gal?
Interlocutor—Yes, she was a trifle dark.
Mister Tambo—Well, dat am mah keepmate.
Interlocutor—You mean your helpmate.
Mister Tambo—No, suh. She's mah keepmate. Ah don' he'p no moh.
Interlocutor—Mister Bones, have you ever been to Dorris?
Mister Bones—Yas, suh.
Interlocutor—Well, tell me the principal industry of that thriving community.
Mister Bones—Trainin' white hopes.
Wallace Baldwin, well known lodge man, and about 70 years of age, is one of those who do not approve of the enforcement of the curfew ordinance.
"Now this is what I call hard luck," Mr. Baldwin said this morning. "Here my wife goes out of town on a trip and they enforce this curfew ordinance. So now I can't have any fun."

HANFORD CASE WILL BE CONCLUDED THIS WEEK

United Press Service
SEATTLE, July 17.—Indications are today that the investigation of Judge C. H. Hanford will be concluded at the end of this week. John H. Berry, the Seattle attorney who filed separate impeachment charges against Hanford, will be the chief witness. With his testimony the charge of drunkenness will have been completely proved.

The congressional committee has been at work since June 29th, and more than 100 witnesses have been examined on the charge of drunkenness alone. In addition the committee has investigated Hanford's disfranchisement decision in the case of Leonard Olsson, the Heckman & Hanson bankruptcy matter, in which sensational accusations were made against Former Secretary of the Interior Richard A. Ballinger, and opened up the examination into the general charge that Hanford showed favoritism in appointing receivers and allowed them excessive fees.

Smith Breaks With Taft
United Press Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17.—Corporation Commissioner Smith will quit office tomorrow. It is reported that he broke with President Taft regarding the harvester trust prosecution. He will probably participate in the Roosevelt campaign.

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Klamath Falls People to Neglect

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined, backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease, follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Help the kidneys with the reliable and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in this locality.

Mrs. Henry Nutt, 4 Ishem street, Grants Pass, Ore., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used by three members of my family, and the one who took them was cured of gravel. After this remedy was used gravel, as large as peas, passed off with the kidney secretions. The trouble then stopped, and the person is now well. Doan's Kidney Pills brought about a complete cure in this case, and as it occurred under my own eyes, I can testify as to what the remedy will do."
