INDIAN TRIAL MOST COSTLY

U. S. MARSHAL'S REPORT SHOWS FAITHFUL CASE COST GOVERNMENT $6,000—SECOND TRIAL NECESSARY

The most costly trial held in the federal court in Portland in a long time was that of last May of Anderson Faithful, a Klamath Indian, who was charged with murdering his wife.

This is made public in the report of United States Marshal Leslie M. Scott for the quarter ending June 30. The greatest expenditures in the history of the office were made in this quarter, $33,000, and of this sum $6,000 was required for the Faithful case.

Considerable interest was aroused in this section following the arrest of Faithful. The alleged crime was committed at the home on the Faithfuls, on Whiskey Creek, about six miles east of Yainax, on the Klamath reservation. It was charged that Faithful had gone home drunk and had brutally murdered his squaw. The defendant claimed that the woman had been ill, and had gotten out of bed several times during the night. He claimed that when he arose in the morning he found his wife dead.

The jury disagreed, and Faithful will be given another trial during the September term of court.

WARRANT TO BE AUCTIONED OFF

COUNTY "PROMISE-TO-PAY" WILL BE SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THE COUNTY'S HISTORY

For the first time in the history of Klamath county a county warrant will be sold at public auction July 29.

Notice to this effect was posted today by John Schallcock, constable, who is the authority for the statement that such a proceeding has never before occurred here. That he knows whereof he speaks is evident, inasmuch as he has been the only constable in this district, and has been connected with the sheriff's office ever since 1879, except one term.

The sale will be made to satisfy a judgment in the case of W. P. McMillan vs. Arthur B. Livermore. A warrant for $30 was attached in this case, and this will be offered to the highest bidder.

WILSON WILL PICK KING FOR LEADER

United Press Service
SEAGIRT, N. J., July 19.—Woodrow Wilson conferred with the campaign committee today. It was announced that Chairman McCombs would open New York headquarters soon. Branch headquarters will be established in Chicago. Wilson will probably come to the Pacific coast. National Committeeman King of Oregon will probably direct the coast campaign.

CHAMP NOT IN TRIM TO FIGHT

WOLGAST SAYS IT WILL BE SIX MONTHS AT LEAST BEFORE HE WILL BE FIT TO FIGHT THE MEXICAN BOY

United Press Service
LOS ANGELES, July 19.—Claiming that he is not in fit condition to meet Rivers on Labor Day, Ad Wolgast is today the subject of widespread criticism. The champion says he will be unfit to take on Rivers for at least six months. Then, he says, he will fight.

McCarey has not given up hope, and is still endeavoring to bring the two lightweights together as planned. Wolgast's repeated allusions to his competitor for lightweight honors as having a "yellow streak" is being generally applied to the champion as being more justly entitled to that appellation.

VISITORS ARE SHOWN IRRIGATED SECTION

At about 9 o'clock this forenoon the Pathfinder party were taken to Merrill on a tour of the Klamath Basin in local automobiles. There were about fifty in the party, and a visit was made to the J. Frank Adams ranch, below Merrill, where a short stop was made while the visitors were shown some of the fine horses for which Klamath county is famous.

From there the party returned through Merrill to the home of N. S. Merrill, where ice cream, cake and lemonade were served, and a trip made around the place. Mr. Merrill took great pride in showing some of his big mules, and one in particular, which he believes will rival in size the pair which holds the record as being the largest in the United States. The party returned here shortly after noon, and go to the Upper Lake.

Fishing Is Good

The steamer Winema will run one of its popular excursions Sunday, July 21st, to the famous fishing grounds around Pelican Bay, Pelican Lodge and Rocky Point. The boat will leave at 9 o'clock, and return about 6, allowing four hours for fishing or walks in the woods. Dinner at Rocky Point.

PORTLAND MEN SEE GREAT FUTURE

be able to go, he hoped to have the greater part of them. Lakeview, he said, expects from 1,000 to 2,000 visitors at this time, which would show the importance of the meeting. He understood that Klamath Falls wanted the next meeting of the league, and from the expressions and information he had gleaned on the trip, he said that he believed that this city would get it.

In speaking of the official map car which would arrive here today. Mr. Chapman spoke of the importance of the official automobile map for Klamath Falls, as the city tourist did not care to experiment with roads when on a tour, but inevitably was guided by his road map. In conclusion Mr. Chapman said: "The logical route to California and from California in the spring and summer months is through Eastern Oregon, instead of Western Oregon, where the heavy grades and mountains were encountered in summer, and the snow and mud in the spring." Mayor T. F. Nicholas in a few appropriate words welcomed the guest to Klamath Falls, and expressed the hope that in their pathfinding expedition they might find it more difficult to discover a path away from the city than in locating roads leading to the city.

Mayor Nicholas was followed by I. T. Hardy of the Oregon Electric railroad, who expressed his great pleasure at being permitted to be present on this occasion, and stated that the guests would not be cheated out of any information by his not making a lengthy speech, as others of the party always told everything that was worth telling.

County Judge Worden spoke on "Good Roads," and told of the work done in Klamath county the past years, and the difficulties met and overcome. He stated that road construction was a great responsibility on the court, particularly in a county as large as the state of Massachusetts. He was pleased, however, that they had now placed road building on a business basis. He referred to the fact that they were not permitted to pay for these permanent improvements by bonding the company, but had to raise the money by warrants.

"For this reason there is a limit placed on what we can do. We have come our best, but the people all over the county are clamoring for improvements. I ask you to be patient with us, as this has been a hard route and lays us open to a great deal of criticism."

Judge Worden stated that last year the county had built over fifty miles of heavy grading and had cleared out roads for about 192 miles. This year the road work was done in the early spring, and after they were graded the rains came and packed them down. This year 48 miles of roads had been built in March, April and June.

"There is an empire going to be built over here," continued the Judge, "and with the conditions so different from that portion west of the mountains, how do we know but that there may be a state here in Eastern Oregon?"

The Klamath Military band had very generously agreed to give a concert following the banquet, but on account of the delay in beginning, several selections were given in the lobby of the hotel between the talks. Many complimentary remarks on the efficiency of the band were made by the visitors.

"Business men should study the problem of transportation from the standpoint of good roads," said Phil S. Bates, publisher of the Pacific Northwest. He told of the tourist travel through Los Angeles, which at times averaged as many as 40,000 people a day, and figuring that they spent an average of $5 a day, this would make the enormous revenue to the city of $200,000 a day, or $6,000,000 a month. He compared the scenery of Eastern Oregon with the lack of scenery in Southern California, and stated that with highways equal to the good roads of California, this section could get the benefit of these 40,000 tourists a day. He described his recent trip through the East, where he showed over a thousand views of Oregon scenes, among which was fifteen from Klamath county.

"I love your Klamath county," said Mr. Bates, "your pine clad hills and beautiful lakes, and it was a pleasure to me to show these views and tell of your country." Vint Snelling, the sagebrush sage and Mark Twain of Lake county, made the guests forget the oppressive heat of the evening with his quaint witticisms. "This is the first time," said Mr. Snelling, "that I have felt called upon to apologize for coming to Klamath Falls. I am not apologizing because I am here, but because of the company I came with. I want to say, however, that they added a lot of respectability to the crowd by bringing Mrs. Chapman along. I didn't intend to come to Klamath Falls, but we wanted to get rid of these people, and I was asked to watch them until they got out of the county. I came along with them until they got to the county line, and then one of their autos broke down, and I could not go back and leave them in Lage county, so I brought them here in my machine so that they would be sure and not go back. I would advise you to send some one along with them and run them over into Crook county.

"If I was writing a history of Klamath Falls, I would write about its splendid men and charming women. Your men are great entertainers, and it makes a great hit with the visitor. There isn't anything they won't do for a visitor, and I remember, even when your town was dry, that I never had to go without a drink when here. But one thing I must tell you. Your business here is conducted wrong, and I am afraid your merchants are suffering as a consequence. After I arrived here I went down the street to buy a clean shirt on credit. I walked down one side a half mile and back on the other side a mile and a half, it seemed, and I couldn't buy a shirt on credit. I want to tell you that you are losing a good deal of business that way. Some of your merchants could build up a good business on credit, and if he never got paid he would always have something coming."

Dr. Coe, president of the First National Bank of Bend, said that he had been a resident of Eastern Oregon for eight years, but had never been to Klamath Falls before. "It is certainly the most ideal spot of Oregon I have seen so far," said Mr. Coe, "except, of course, Bend and a part of Crook." Mr. Coe said that he had intended to return to Bend immediately, so as to be on hand Saturday when they have an election on sewer bonds, but after getting a glimpse of the country here, he was determined to stay a day and see more of it.

"Jimmie" Sawhill, secretary of the Central Oregon Development League, urged the securing of exhibits for the land show and particularly the one to be held in Portland. He stated that the products of the soil of this territory were of far more value in securing farmers than all of the literature ever distributed.

S. O. Johnson spoke of the assistance Portland could give up in our efforts to induce the location of the California highway far enough East so that connection could be made to permit tourists to travel through Klamath county and Eastern Oregon. One of the best speeches of the evening was saved for the last. The previous speakers among the guests gave a hint of what was in store, but offered many jokes at the expense of Mr. C. L. Smith, the agriculturist of the O. W. & N. Co., and referred to his famous fourteen hour speech, and stated that he was always placed last on the program, but that his talks were always so interesting that no one ever left before he was through.

Mr. Smith knows the practical side of farming, and his short talk was all meat, and made a decided impression on the assemblage. "The character of our homes," said Mr. Smith, "is more important than our bank clearings. The men we need is the men who are willing to work for what they get. The man who is looking for easy money and for something for nothing, is a detriment to any community." He referred to Los Angeles, which was mentioned by Mr. Bates, and said:

"I have been to Los Angeles, and find that there the eggs they eat they get from Texas, their chickens come from Kansas, and their butter from Minnesota. You have something here worth more than dollars. When you give your visitors eggs to eat, he knows that they have not been in cold storage, your fruits are not canned and your vegetables and meat have the right flavor. When he goes away he is sure to want to come back. I find that the higher the altitude at which you can grow produce to perfection the better it is."

ANNOUNCEMENT

Owing to the scarcity and high price of livestock, and to the fact that we have to purchase and feed stock as much as three months in advance to be sure of a supply, and to the further fact that we have to pay spot cash at the time of purchase for all stock, we find it absolutely necessary to sell meats for cash only on and after August 1, 1912.

Hoping our many patrons will appreciate our position in this matter, and thanking you for past patronage, hoping for a continuation of the same under the new order of business, we remain, yours,
