FORGIVEN

IT MAY seem ungenerous, but The Herald has not yet asked for forgiveness for anything it has published and if it is just the same to Mr. Evans we do not wish to accept it unsolicited.

There are some people who do not seem to realize when they have said enough, but are bound to overdo everything they undertake. The Herald has never insinuated, editorially or in its news columns that the "lost story" was a frame up. We gave the public the first news of the disappearance of the two men, as well as the first notice of their safety, and we would be glad to be shown any language or sentence in the Herald that we did not believe the story as printed.

We did not actually know whether the young men were lost, and we do not know now, of our own knowledge, but are willing to accept the statements of the two men, which we printed as well as that of a number of the searchers. If Mr. Evans imagines in his own mind that people do not believe the story, we do not feel that we are in any way to blame, and we deny that he had any foundation for the editorial in this morning's paper in anything which appeared in The Herald of the affair.

We attempted to express the sympathy felt by ourselves and the public for the suffering of the young men underwent, but after they were found and all the publicity necessary given to the matter, we do not see the necessity of continuing the discussion indefinitely, simply because everyone does not tear his hair and weep for a period of several weeks.

It is quite trying to spend two days and two nights lost on a lake, but most ordinary mortals, who have knocked around the world to any extent, have undergone equally as serious an experience one or more times. For the guidance of persons lost on the Lower Lake it might be well to suggest that the tender tule roots furnish a most nourishing food on which a person can live for a week or more; also the lake water is not such bad drinking if one is real thirsty.

We regret that Mr. Evans seems incapable of viewing matters in an unbiased way, but insists on misinterpreting the actions and expressions of others.

HARD TIMES BALL WELL ATTENDED

COSTUMES OF THE DANCERS DID NOT INDICATE ANY STRESS OF CONDITIONS IN THIS SECTION, HOWEVER

Judges for the bal masque to be given at the Pavilion Saturday night under the direction of Manager George M. Klein will be Mrs. F. R. Olds, Mrs. J. P. Lee, Messrs Veghte, Oliver and Crooks.

The hard times dance last night attracted a good crowd, despite the coolness in the air. But either the weather was to blame or times are far from hard in the city of Klamath Falls, for the comparatively few who appeared in attire indicative of a strenuous period, and there was a general air of prosperity among the dancers. Some of those who wore their more frayed habiliments cast them aside for better ones late in the evening.

FARMERS HELPED BY BIG MEETING

By far the best and most permanently far reaching in its benefits of all development meetings ever held in Oregon was the Lakeview Development League session, says C. L. Smith, agriculturalist of the O.-W. R. & N. company, who has just returned to Portland for matriculation.

"It put into effect the truth we have been trying to have lodged for a long time that if you want to teach a farmer agriculture you must just get out on the farm and show him how. Education by demonstration—those are the words.

"The agreement at Lakeview was that there had been too much literature and not enough of this practical demonstration, but that hereafter the new policy would be actively and strictly adhered to. And that means good fortune for the state of Oregon.

"But the journey had important features besides the meeting at Lakeview. Redmond was our first stop, and there we had 'Farmers Day.' Our meeting on the dry farm demonstration tract at Metolius was exceedingly satisfactory. The season has been so favorable that dry land methods have not been demonstrated as completely as would have been possible had there been the usual scarcity of moisture. But the farmers met and talked over together the problems of production, of seeding and of fertilizing the ground. They were interested, and they asked a great many intelligent questions. W. L. Powers, in charge of the station, is a valuable man. He has done great work in Crook county, and they are lucky to have a man like him. We had 300 farmers at one meeting. One patch of corn would produce ten tons to the acre of green cow feed now. The farmers also found that by adding $1.50 to $2 worth of potash to the acre they could increase the yield of hay $15 to $20 an acre."

From Bend Mr. Smith went to La Pine and viewed the exhibit of productions made by what he calls "one of the liveliest commercial clubs in the state." The travelers were served with a game breakfast which they enjoyed hugely. At Fremont is a new cheese factory and here Mr. Smith talked dairying most of an afternoon. Luncheon was served in the factory. At Silver Lake a fine exhibit of grains and grasses similar to La Pine was found, also at Paisley, where there are some fine almonds.

"There are demonstration farms in Crook, Harney and Klamath counties now, and Lake is soon to have a demonstration tract," said Mr. Smith. "The farm in Harney is one of the best equipped subdemonstration stations in all the country. These are the things that do good."

OPTION HOLDERS MAKE COMPLAINTS

SALEM, Aug. 29.—Declaring that nearly all of the option holders under the Deschutes Land company of La Pine feel they have been swindled by the company, which they declare has made misrepresentations to them, E. F. Pitman of La Pine has appealed to Governor West for protection of the interests of the option holders.

This is the company of which the president, J. H. Morson, has been fighting the demands of the desert board until, on representations of Governor West, the department of the interior refused to grant a permit for a reservoir site at Crescent Lake until an investigation of the company's affairs could be made.

"In behalf of myself and other people who are option holders under the Deschutes Land company of La Pine, Ore., I desire to ask if some step cannot be taken to protect our interests," says Mr. Pitman.

"It seems to me that it is high time that this company be halted in its operations, and that now is the time to act. The company is now working only four or five men. It is certain that Morson and his company have misrepresented things in order to sell some options. Is it not true that Morson represented that his company had a water right at Crescent Lake and a right to develop it? And is it not a fact he was ordered out by the forest service under penalty of arrest for trespass? And if such is the case, what right did Morson's company ever have to sell options on the water? Can't this company be put into the hands of a receiver on the charges of fraud and misrepresentation, and using the mails to defraud?"

"Nearly all of the option holders feel that they have been swindled. There are lots of them ready to swear out a complaint of fraud against Morson if they were sure they would have the support of the governor and the desert land board.

"I pray you, Governor, to put some good prosecutor on Morson's trail and bring him and his company to time."

Governor West has forwarded a copy of the letter to the commissioner of the general land office and to the secretary of the interior.

PET TORTOISE TAKES A TRIP

HAS BEEN SITTING ON A ROCK FOR A COUPLE OF HUNDRED YEARS—WEIGHS TEN POUNDS AND IS SLOW WALKER.

United Press Service

LONDON, Aug. 29.—At the age of 200 or thereabouts, the Duke of Beaufort's pet tortoise has just taken a vacation. Deserting his favorite rock in the forest of Wentwood, near Chipstow, Monmouthshire, it undertook a walking tour, and was found by one of the Duke's keepers near Newport, nine miles away. It had taken the tortoise exactly twenty-eight days to cover the distance, so it didn't overdo it.

The creature is eighteen inches long, and weighs ten pounds, and it has lived under the same rock for over forty years. The Beaufort family records show that it has been on the estate for at least another 150 years.

Homesteader Arrested

ARLINGTON, Ore., Aug. 29.—Asher Montague of Montague had J. Jones, a homesteader, arrested for shooting horses, and Jones was bound over to the grand jury. The hearing was held before Justice Collins at Arlington. It was charged that Jones had killed eleven horses and a mule.

LOST MAN TELLS A WEIRD STORY

OREGON CITY MAN CLAIMS HE WAS ASSAULTED IN BROAD DAYLIGHT AND PUT OUT OF BUSINESS BY THUGS

OREGON CITY, Aug. 27.—

Thomas Wallace, who was reported to the police as missing Friday, was found on Sunday night, lying face downward on Sixth and Morrison streets. He said that on Friday night when walking home from work three men accosted him, knocked him down and took his money. He also said that he did not know what he had done after being robbed. His story is considered unusual by many people, as it was daylight when he was on his way home.
