

SAMPLE SOIL GOOD ADVICE

STATE COLLEGE WILL GIVE ALL ASSISTANCE POSSIBLE TO THE FARMERS—SAMPLE OF SOIL ANALYZED

Special to The Herald
CORVALLIS, Oct. 19.—Do you know absolutely what the soil of your farm or orchard contains? If not, how do you know, except by guess work, what fertilizer it needs, and what crops will grow best there?

The man who does not know these things is unlikely to make the maximum of success of his farming. His only chance is that he does not know how to find out these things. For this reason the department of agronomy has prepared printed directions for soil sampling at the Oregon Agricultural College, and any farmer who will send samples, taken according to these directions, to Prof. H. D. Svedder, soils specialist of the experiment station, will receive a report containing information of vital importance to his farm.

Take samples from an open field and avoid paths, garden beds, etc., from which modified and not typical samples are likely to be obtained," says Professor Svedder. "Select an average spot, pull up the plants growing on it, brush aside half decayed vegetable matter, and bore or dig a vertical hole to where the soil changes that, or, if no change is seen, to the depth of cultivation. Get a sample of the soil to this depth from several places in the field, mix well on cloth or coarse paper (avoid jute bagging). Then dry it, put a quart in a clean canvas bag or box and label. This represents the surface soil.

In the same manner get an average sample of the subsoil, taken below the surface sample, to the depth of approximately two feet. Put it in a separate bag and label that also. Dig or bore to a depth of three or four feet, and if hard pan or any other peculiarity in structure is noted, send a properly labeled sample. If solid rock is found, state at what average depth it occurs, and send a small sample.

"Send a letter by mail with a complete history of the field as possible, the name of the nearest town, the probable selling price of the land, the elevation above the nearest river, the direction and grade of slopes. Tell how long it has been cropped and what has been raised on the land, what the yields were, and whether fertilizers have been applied. If there are any peculiarities which may have a bearing on the agricultural qualities of the soil they should be mentioned in the letter. The samples should be expressed, prepaid, to the experiment station soils department."

STUBBLEFIELD IS SCHOOL SPEAKER

LOCAL MINISTER DISCUSSES CANDIDATES AT HIGH SCHOOL—HE GIVES ADVICE ABOUT PICKING GOOD MEN

Rev. Stubblefield gave an interesting talk this morning before the high school assembly.

He at first commented on the coming election and about the different candidates. While he favored no candidate, he gave the students an idea as to how to choose a candidate. He said that we must look for two things, cleanness and sincerity of the man, and the principles for which he stands. He said that a man may be good and clean, and yet stand for the wrong principles, or he may stand for the right principles and yet be a bad man. Such men, he said, would not do to be an officer of the land. He gave his statements in such a non-partisan way as to make them apply to any candidate for office.

He later spoke on the theme, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" Rev. Stubblefield is very popular with students, for, as one of the students said, "His talks are never dry."

three months, will surely know the difference between a negro and an Indian the next time he sees one. Andrew, who is illiterate and a forger, was in Klamath Falls working there as a laborer July 15. While he was standing on the sidewalk near one of the saloons, a dark-complexioned person approached him and handed him some money, told him to go inside and get some liquor. Andrew was not adverse to the suggestion, and he soon emerged from behind the swinging doors carrying the refreshments, which he handed over. Just then an officer happened along, and Gronosky was arrested for buying liquor for an Indian. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner C. J. Ferguson at Klamath Falls and later was indicted by the grand jury. He pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to two months in the county jail, a fine of $100 and costs, the lightest sentence possible. In order to take the paupers' oath Gronosky remained an extra thirty days in jail.

His term served, the Poleander appeared in the United States marshal's office and shook hands with all the clerks and deputies, and gravely explained over and over again that he had been unable to distinguish an Indian from an African.

citizens were waiting in the postoffice down stairs.

In spite of the fact that the morning paper had promised to produce the governor of the state as the stellar attraction of the meeting, there was no necessity for the "standing-room only" sign. No person appeared to be surprised when it became apparent that another fake had been perpetrated.

Mayor Nicholas had written a letter to the governor in answer to the state executive's recent telegram. The letter follows:

"To His Excellency, the Governor of the State of Oregon:

"In answer to your telegram of October 25, in which you asked to be advised as to what steps I, as mayor, will take toward bringing about a better enforcement of the laws of this city, I beg to say I shall endeavor to do my duty as an officer, and will, at all times, use my best efforts to meet conditions as they arise, and will enforce the laws of the city and state as promptly as charter conditions here will permit.

"The matter of which you speak in your telegram is now under consideration, the same having been continued from the last meeting of the council. That the reports that you have received through the press and otherwise have been greatly exaggerated there is not the shadow of a doubt. The lawless condition of the city pictured in the Northwestern does not exist, and never did exist since I have known the city. Fake story after story has been published by that paper to intimidate the police force, and to cause the resignation of both the force and myself. Yet I do not believe there is a better policed city of its population in the state than Klamath Falls, nor a better behaved citizenship. Yours very truly,

"T. F. Nicholas,

"Mayor of Klamath Falls."

It was stated that the governor received the mayor's letter late Monday, and, according to his alleged representative here, issued the following statement:

"If I find that the laws are not being enforced at Klamath Falls—and I have every reason to believe that they are not being enforced, since it appears that the sheriff and the city officials are allowing houses of prostitution to go unmolested—I shall take a hand in enforcing them.

"I will see that the matter is thoroughly investigated. If the laws are well enforced in the town, I can't understand why the mayor and the chief of police would stand by and see a peace officer assault a citizen of the town. It appears that Policeman Hall has pleaded guilty to the assault upon Hutchins."

(Signed) "OSWALD WEST,
"Governor of Oregon."

LYCEUM COURSE PLEASURES MANY

Miss Fisher Shipp displayed the splendid quality of her abilities both as a reader and a soloist. Gifted with a soprano voice of great power and beauty, she instantly won the approval of the vast audience. The presentation of her character song cycle "National Reminiscences," was delightful, and showed with great credit the wide range of her talent.

Miss Harrington easily won the admiration of the audience of her work. She is possessed of a wonderful contralto voice of great depth and power, and her singing of "The Lullaby Lady" was superb.

As a soloist on the mandolin, Mr. Lloyd Loar has few equals. He also gave selections on the mando-viola, an instrument invented by himself, and which is said to be the only one in existence. Mr. Loar is a thorough musician, and composed most of the music used by the company with the exception of a few selections, which were re-arranged where necessary.

Miss Marion Barry, the talented violiniste, made the fourth member of the company, which will be remembered with the greatest pleasure by the people of Klamath Falls.
