Lady Cook has been lecturing in this country and abroad for more than fifty years. As Tennessee Claflin she became famous for her theories on the science of eugenics. After the

Seiffert and Buckley are Given their Liberty

Defendants Hear Verdict of the Jury With Faces Set and Grim. Officers Surround Prisoners and Rush them Off to Prison. Will Appeal

United Press Service
INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 28.—The jury in the case in which prominent labor leaders are charged with the illegal transportation of dynamite returned a general verdict this morning in which thirty-eight of the defendants were found guilty on fifty-two counts.

The jury entered the court room at 9:50. Daniel Buckley and Herman G. Seiffert were found not guilty.

The jury was out forty hours and twenty-five minutes.

The defendants sat with faces grim and set. A happy light showed in the faces of Buckley and Seiffert. Charles W. Wachmeister, one of the convicted defendants, cried like a baby.

Judge Anderson dismissed the jury after thanking them profusely for their "good and faithful work."

United States Marshal Schmidt was ordered to take charge of the defendants. All of the spectators were ordered out of the court room.

When the jury entered fifty deputy United States marshals surrounded the defendants in a double line. It took only a few minutes to read the verdict.

Attorney Harding for the defense attempted to address the court, but the court declined to listen.

No sooner had the verdict been announced than the jurors departed. Then the thirty-eight defendants were called forward singly and hurried to the Marion county jail, each in the custody of a deputy marshal.

Olaf Trivette and E. A. Clancy heard the verdict stolidly.

United States Marshal Schmidt told the defendants that he would give those whose wives are here an opportunity to visit with them tomorrow, the day before they will be sentenced.

Frank Dare of New Lisbon was the foreman of the jury, which was composed mostly of farmers.

Although the jury's verdict did not mention McManigal, Clark and the McNamaras, Judge Anderson will sentence them.

McManigal and Clark probably Monday.

Marching through throngs of people, the thirty-eight convicted men tramped to the county jail, each man-caded to a deputy United States marshal.

It is believed that the court will merely fine some of the defendants, and others will be given minor sentences. Possibly Ryan, Mackin, Trivette, Clancy and Mincey will be sent to jail as well as fined.
