Main in the South Will Make Horses for Horses From the Klamath Country Good, and Local Shoppers Will Not Now Try to Find Another Market—Short Service is Finally Secured

Klamath Falls was in communication with the outside world by telegraph today for about an hour. As a result the telegraph report of The Herald is crippled today.

This morning it was impossible to communicate with Wood and points beyond, but about 3 o'clock Manager Austin of the Western Union succeeded in getting a wire in service, and for about an hour messages were received and sent.

It is reported that the storm which started here this afternoon is general all over the Pacific slope. Messages from California indicate that rain is falling there, and this news is joyfully received here.

Local stockmen have planned to ship horses to the California market this month, but the reports of poor farming conditions had about decided them to look over other markets. The favorable weather reports from the South will probably result in the shipments being made as planned.

Berger Takes up The 'Plaints of Settlers'

Selling of Timber to Large Companies by the Forest Service is the Cause of Protests to Capital

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—Congressman Victor Berger has recently been overwhelmed with complaints from homestead settlers in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, that the action of the forest service in selling large tracts of government timber to the big lumber interests has ruined them. They say that the issue of government forest reserves leads to the big lumber companies at prices far below those which the settlers have heretofore secured for small cuttings, has left the settlers no choice but to sell cheaply at a competitive issue. As a result the chief problem of the thousands of wooded homesteads in the west, the action which has taken place of the forest service, is finally being solved. The change from the timber interests to the forest service, and the fact that the timber is sold at a price which is below the cost of production, has caused the settlers to protest. Berger is one of the few members of the house of representatives who has taken up the cause of the settlers.
