ANSWERS TO QUERIES

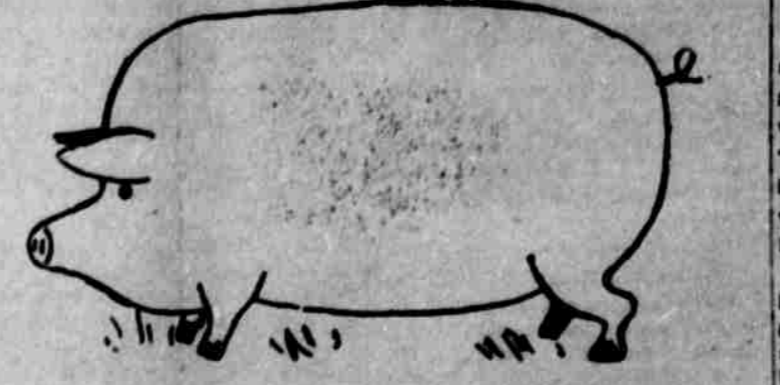

Mr. Tim Hay—Dear Sir: Last year ants got into my refrigerator. How can I stop them this year?—Worry.

Worry—Tie a piece of woolen string around each leg. Soak the string in coal oil first.

Mr. Tim Hay—Dear Sir: I have a bunch of the finest hens you ever saw in your life, but they are afflicted with insects. I have tried everything, but no good seems to result. What shall I do? Yours truly, Mrs. Hen Peck.

Mrs. Hen Peck—Your hens seem to be in bad shape. Only emergency measures will help, therefore I am going to tell you a trade secret. Go to the grocery store and buy a sack of table salt. Then go back home and gather your hens about you. Having called the roll and found all of your hens present, escort them down to the banks of a river, small stream or lake. There request the hens to lay down. Then sprinkle salt over them. Watch very carefully. In a short time you will observe the insects coming to the surface. Eat-inz the salt will make them thirsty, and very soon you will notice that

HOW TO FARM

One peculiar thing about the average farmer is that when he gets a good crop he usually has money, but when his crop fails he is generally "hard up." Similarly, when a horse is well fed he is apt to get fat, and when food is scarce he may be expected to get thin.

These being scientific conclusions, it is advisable for farmers to have good crops, and it follows that horses should be given plenty of food. The best known authorities of the country on farming subjects are agreed on these points.

Another thing farmers should pay particular attention to is the tilting of the soil. The ground should be plowed before the seed is planted. Years of scientific investigation have demonstrated this beyond a reasonable doubt.

right. Soon I discovered that he didn't know anything at all about farming. What shall I do? Yours truly, Patience.

Patience—Get him a job teaching agriculture. The pay will be better and he may surrender your contract.

LICENSE UP TO COUNTY COURTS

BILL IN LEGISLATURE WOULD LEAVE ISSUANCE OF SALDOON LICENSES IN UNINCORPORATED TOWNS TO COMMISSIONERS

SALEM, Jan. 25.—Senator Wood of Washington would empower county courts to refuse to issue licenses to liquor dealers outside of incorporated cities and towns. By the provisions of S. B. 94, which he has introduced, any persons desiring to sell spirituous, malt or vinous liquors or hard cider must file a bond, as required by section 4941 of the codes, as well as by a receipt for the license fee issued by the county treasurer for the period for which the license is required. This petition must be published for four consecutive weeks in a daily paper published in precinct or county. Afterward the license may be granted if a remonstrance, signed by a majority of the voters of the precinct, is not presented. If so, the money paid for a license shall be returned and the license denied.

READY TO BORE HOLE THROUGH A MOUNTAIN

ELLENBURG, Wash., Jan. 25.—The driving of the Milwaukee's big tunnel through the Cascades will be completed from the east side within a few days. Already the "hard rock" men have penetrated several hundred feet into the hills from the west side. The work is expected to take eighteen months. The disastrous snows and slides of the past two weeks have cost the Milwaukee close to $1,000,000. With the tunnel completed several miles in distance will be saved, and the trains will be kept 500 feet lower in altitude. Electric power will be used in the tunnel.

Women has Wonderful Knowledge of Wireless Telegraphy

Among several thousand men and boys who visited the League Island Navy Yard recently to air their knowledge of wireless telegraphy was one lone woman, Mrs. F. B. Chambers of Philadelphia. She won her license very easily, for her understanding of the apparatus was superior to that of most of the men who applied. Mrs. Chambers has one of the best equipped amateur wireless outfits in Philadelphia. The recent law that all operators of wireless outfits, whether amateur or professional, must be licensed, has been an effective remedy for a serious condition. For several years amateurs who could send radio, but who were unable to receive wireless messages, have been filling the atmosphere with perpetually dots and dashes, and making it difficult for professional operators to perform their duties.

SECOND GAME LOST BY LOCALS

ALTHOUGH THEY CAME OUT WITH OLD BIRD, KLAMATH HIGH PLAYERS SHOWED MORE INTEREST THAN SEASONS AGO

Although they were able to knock up the speedy form of attack used so successfully by the Ashland high school basketball team Thursday evening, the Klamath county high quintet was unable to score enough points to win, and the game last night went to the visitors, 9 to 6. The showing of the locals against their heavier and taller opponents is commended by all who witnessed the game, and the high school coaches believe the two games here will greatly help the local team on its northern trip.

At the end of the first half last night the score was 5 to 1 in favor of Klamath. In the second Ashland scored three field goals and a foul, while only one point was gained in this period by the locals.
