SCORES METHOD OF GOVERNING THE PHILIPPINES

JOHN CHAMBERS GIBSON EXTRA-VAGANCE BY OFFICIALS

Congressman, in Defending Democratic Policy of Philippine Independence Declares That Cost to the Government to Maintain Possession of the Islands is Enormous, and Should be Abandoned

United Press Service WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—A bitter attack on the present method of governing the Philippines was made in the house today by Congressman Jones of Virginia, in the course of a speech answering President Taft's criticism of the democratic plan for Philippine independence.

"The Philippines are being governed in a manner that defies oligarchy, which has plunged the Philippine into debt, has defeated the ends of justice and has violated the act of congress under which it was formed," thundered Jones.

The congressman also charged Governor General Forbes with extravagance, and that part of the $2,000,000 congress appropriated for alleviating the suffering of the starving natives had been used to build the Benguet railroad to the official summer homes.

He also asserted that it has cost America $600,000,000 to maintain the army of the Philippines since the discovery of the archipelago.

Question of Whether Children of Indian Lineage Have Right to Attend School With Whites Has Not Yet Been Able to Secure Into Court—Decision Rendered This Afternoon

A second victory was scored for the school board of Fort Klamath today when Judge Benson rendered a decision sustaining the demurrer to the amended alternative writ of mandamus requiring the board of directors of school district No. 1 of Klamath county to admit William Grayson's children to the public school of the district.

The case has created great interest in the northern part of the county. The Crawford children are of Indian lineage, and have been school children at the school in Fort Klamath, which white children attend. The school board of Fort Klamath a town adjoining the Klamath Indian reservation, some time ago caused a separate school to be opened for pure blood and mixed blood Indian children. The Crawford children, guardian.

May Form Company to Buy Dairy Cows

Project Engineer Patch Hopes to Devise a Method of Using All the Hay Raised Under the Klamath Project. Plan Has Been Successful Elsewhere

In order to assist the development of the Klamath project by the introduction of the proper kind of livestock, Project Engineer W. W. Patch is preparing to discuss with farmers owning land under the ditch the advisability of forming a co-operative syndicate for the purchase of the proper kind of cattle and sheep.

The shipping of the hay to distant points is made necessary for this reason, and this takes the profits that properly belong to the projects. It is largely to form a local demand for this product that Mr. Patch is considering the introduction of more cattle on the Klamath project.

The Klamath country is making rapid strides as a dairying section, and the introduction of better dairy herds would give a great impetus to that industry as well as provide for the home consumption of hay and other products of the farms. The advisability of securing good mutton sheep is also being considered by Mr. Patch.
