NAME SHIPS FOR FRENCH HEROES

MEMORIES OF SUBALTEENS ON THE "LIBERTY" TO BE COMMEMORATED BY A NEW NAVAL ORDER

PARIS, Feb. 2.—Two of the new French destroyers will be named for Ensign Roux and Chief Engineer Leatin in commemoration of the heroic deaths of these officers, according to a recent naval order. Ensign Roux at the time the Jena exploded, attempted to flood the drydock and was killed. Chief Engineer Leatin, ordered by his commander to extinguish the fire in the forward magazine of the Liberty, replied: "I'm going at once, sir; but I shall not return." He was burned to death after turning on the valves. The new super-dreadnaughts are to be named Normandy, Gascony, Languedoc and Flanders.

A BEARD OF BEES? NEXT

Some men are aviators, and, given a few yards of overalls material, a couple of clothes poles and an electric fan will build biplanes and fly hither and thither and back again at a terrific clip. Some men are sailors, and sign articles with shippers who have received orders to pile up their scrap iron vessels on distant reefs. And there was Elodia, who gave a friend a pick-a-back ride across Niagara Falls on a tight rope. There are structural iron workers, steeljacks, war correspondents and parachute jumpers, but the man shown in the photograph is only a farmer who specializes on bees. As an indication that he understands his little pets, he suspended a queen bee in a small cage on a string from his chin, and allowed a few hundred healthy and vigorous honey workers to swarm on his jaw. These bees had just eaten a hearty meal, and were in rare good spirits. A sudden shake of the head and they were dropped in front of their hive, and when their queen joined them, were perfectly happy. But most people would prefer a beard of barbed wire to a chin cheater of real, live, stinging bees.

Shephards Plan Honeymoon to Europe

(Copyright by Falk)

Mr. and Mrs. J. Finley J. Shepard are spending their first honeymoon in the castle-like home on the crags above the Tappan Zoo, between Irving and Tarrytown, N. Y. Later the two will sail for Europe. During their sojourn abroad Mr. and Mrs. Shepard will visit Lord and Lady Decies at Sefton Park in England. Lady Decies was Vivien Gould, a niece of Mrs. Shepard. It is said that Mrs. Shepard will take the place in New York society which she has never before cared to claim, and the announcement has been received with great pleasure by the many admirers of the former Helen Gould. This is the only authorized photograph of the Shephards as they appeared at the time the wedding ceremony was performed.

WICKERSHAM TO LEAVE ALL HANDY

NEW ATTORNEY GENERAL WILL HAVE NO DIFFICULTY IN PICKING UP OFFICIAL AFFAIRS, SAYS PRESENT INCUMBENT

United Press Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2.—Attorney General Wickersham says he expects to leave his office in good shape for his successor. "All cases will be in such shape that any competent lawyer can carry them through," he said, in speaking of his retirement.

"All of the big trusts that have not been prosecuted will be before I leave this office."
There are, according to the attorney general, between 3,000 and 4,000 actions, cases and other matters before the attention of the department of justice at this time. He is very anxious to have as many of these as possible settled before he leaves office. "I desire it made clear that I do not care to embarrass my successor by leaving a great bulk of unfinished work," he declared. "That which I will leave will be in such shape that

WOODEN CASKETS FOR "LIVE" DEAD

LATEST CRAZE IS FOR CASKETS PAINTED WITH LANDSCAPES AND PORTRAITS—NO METAL WORK

United Press Service
BERLIN, Feb. 2.—Highly decorated wooden coffins is the latest craze in South Germany as the result of the new law legalizing cremation. The crematoriums forbid the use of any kind of metal in coffin construction, so deprived of the elaborate brass or nickel work, Germans are having the coffins painted. The brilliant colors of Egyptian mummy cases are thrown into the shade by pale blue or green backgrounds, on which are painted Swiss landscapes, pastoral scenes, and even portraits of the deceased or members of his or her family.

Novelty Act at the Star Theater

TRUHEART-LAVILLE TRIO

"The Cowboy, the Girl and the Coon" is a rip-roaring comedy that smacks of the plains, will be the offering at the Star theater this evening, in addition to the usual splendid picture program. The skit produced by the Truheart-

Laville Trio, whose work has been highly spoken of wherever they have appeared. Their act is a decided novelty, starting with a smile and ending with a scream. Fun galore, Spanish dancing, and an irrepressible black mammy are among the features of the bill.

LAWYERS MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

RUTENIC & KENT TAKE POSSESSION OF SPLENDID SUITE OVER FIRST NATIONAL BANK—MANNING ALSO MOVES

The corridors of the White-Maddox building present a scene of unusual activity today, caused by the removal of two law offices.

J. C. Rutenic and Joseph S. Kent are moving from the White-Maddox building to the splendid new suite fitted up for them over the First National bank. This suite consists of five rooms, and was especially designed for the use of the firm.

Attorney Horace M. Manning, who has occupied quarters in company with John Irwin for several years, is moving to the suite being vacated by Rutenic & Kent. This gives Mr. Manning more room, and is a greater accommodation for the new district attorney, as he has additional room for grand jury sessions.
