STONE TELLS OF CLANTON'S WORK

MEMBER OF STATE FISH AND GAME COMMISSION EXPRESSES SURPRISE AT THE CHARGES MADE AGAINST OFFICIAL

C. F. Stone, member of the state fish and game commission, expressed great surprise today when informed that charges had been made in the state legislature against Master Fish Warden Clanton. Incompetency is charged, and an investigation by the legislature is demanded.

"Mr. Clanton was appointed by the commission after his recommendations had been carefully considered," said Mr. Stone. "He has devoted the greater part of his life to the fishing industry, and we regarded his ability very highly."

20 PER CENT CUT HELPS CITY in Northern California to make sweeping cuts in their rates.

The personal popularity here of George Walton, local manager of the Oregon-California Power company has had much to do, it is believed, with the absence of united protests against the high rates demanded.

However, recently there have been many complaints, and it is the opinion that the company will make concessions soon, especially as franchise matters may be expected to be taken up in the near future.

S. E. Icenbice and Charles Gray were among the Pine Grove residents who spent Wednesday in Klamath Falls. Mr. Gray is one of the directors of the new dairymen's association.

OREGON'S NAME OF IRISH ORIGIN

IRISH NEWSPAPER HOLDS THAT STATE WAS NAMED FOR CHIEF WHO CAME WITH McLOUGHLIN TO THIS SECTION

To those people who are not familiar with the word "Oregon" it might be well to quote the following from a letter written recently by L. Whitman Clark O'Regan, a present resident of Albany, this state:

"The word Oregon is of Irish origin, and in its present form is another example of the tendency of the English language to deteriorate in the process of time. Oregon was named after one of my ancestors, an Irish lord, who came out with McLoughlin. Practically all the Pacific Northwest was called after him, and was known as the 'O'Regan country.' In time the apostrophe was lost and the 'R' dropped to a lower case—Irish News."

HALLOCK CERTAINLY "RAISING CAIN"

ancient time. It is also probable that history will repeat itself.

The poem by Collins follows:

In new lines of research full soon now shall we search, Which same Mr. Hallock has started to teach,
By making it plain how the primeval
Cain
Once settled in Oregon, "land of the peach."

Many suggestions for fanciful questions

Rise to my mind as I study this odd Tale how the mammoth was chased out of Klamath So Cain could come settle in this Land of Noe.

Pleanty of ditches, artesian and ditches Hallock describes in this primeval town.
Lots, without doubt, Mr. Cain peddled out,
On terms of installments—with several bones down.

Out of some bare strips, the remnants of airships
The wise archeologist dug from the ground;
No doubt it is valid they had lobster sals.
And champagne and honk carts for joyriding 'round.

Some op'ning abyss, or great cataclysm
A-scarring the country with deluge and breach,
Spoiled, more's the pity, that prosperous city,
And left all unsettled the land of the peach.

Was it soil, or the weather, or both things together That brought this old town to the fair Klamath plain?
My Brain waxes weary revolving the query:

"What was the real cause of the coming of Cain?"
I have it! The fable relating to Abel—
It answers the query that stirs in my breast:
Cain must have had straight dope concerning this state, And sure of a pardon, came rambling West.

Turks Retreating

SOFLA, Feb. 6.—It was semi-officially announced today that the Bulgarian troops are active at Gallipoli peninsula and at Kavak. It was also reported that under the terrific fire from the Bulgarian army, the Turks are retreating in disorder toward the coast of the Sea of Marmora.

Firing Upon Adrianople

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The bombardment of Adrianople was resumed this morning, according to advices from Constantinople and Rome. The same sources report fierce fighting between the Bulgarian and Turkish troops on the Gallipoli peninsula this morning.

MAY ACT AS CENSUS ENUMERATORS

supervisors and enumerators are in the great majority of instances entirely inexperienced in census work; that there is no way of guaranteeing that they shall be particularly familiar with the people and the conditions of their districts; that the terms of employment, particularly of enumerators, is so short and the pay so small that it is very difficult to induce competent persons to take the job; and, finally, that there is no adequate means of holding supervisors or enumerators responsible for the conscientious and thorough work. Seventy thousand or more enumerators must be secured for work lasting not over fifteen days in the cities and not over thirty days in the rural districts, and at moderate rates of pay. The persons who would make most competent enumerators are usually already employed, and cannot give their time to the work. An enumerator, once selected, knows that at most the only penalty for unsatisfactory work will be failure to receive his comparatively small compensation, and that in fact he is merely a "straw man" whose incompetence will be discovered until after he has received his pay.

"Incompetence and irresponsibility of enumerators are by no means the only cause of the unsatisfactory character of census statistics. The excessive number of questions on the schedules and the ignorance or lack of interest on the part of many people called upon to answer them are also important causes. That the results are far from being entirely satisfactory is well known to the general public, but best known by the officials of the census bureau. There is reason to believe that the actual number of inhabitants is ascertained with approximate accuracy, and that the principal interrogatories on the population and agricultural schedules are answered with a fair degree of accuracy. Many of the less important inquiries, however, obtain much less satisfactory results."

inoculated with the serum.
In this way Dr. Held secured serum enough to treat one case of tubercular trouble. The patient is in Pittsburg, and the inoculation will undoubtedly be made tomorrow.

Dr. Milton Foster, health officer in charge of Ellis Island quarantine station, questioned Dr. Held to some length regarding the discovery. He was told that the returning physician is convinced of the efficacy of the Friedmann cure.

ury for the redemption of general dertaken for the public benefit, but it inevitably postpones the day when the settlers are to take over the management of the work as is contemplated by the reclamation act, and it prevents the replenishment of the reclamation fund for the development of other projects. The public interest demands that the settlers should, as soon as consistent with the return of the government investment, assume responsibility for their own welfare and relieve the federal government from guardianship over them; also that the investment be returned at the earliest practicable moment and the benefits of the act be thus extended throughout the West with the utmost rapidity practicable.

"Every proposal for the repudiation of any part of the cost of reclamation works, or of the cost of their maintenance and operation, or for the unnecessary postponement of the payment thereof, is a blow struck at agricultural development in every part of the United States. Let it once be known that the first great experiment in the direct use of government revenues to aid individual farmers to increase crop production has resulted in the repudiation of their obligation to repay, or even in a formidable attempt to avoid or unreasonably to postpone payment, then all hope of the continuation of such a benecent policy, to say nothing of its extension to regions which have not yet felt its benefit, will be at an end."
