Henry Haberman and J. H. Redmond, Doing Business as the Comet Realty Company, Plaintiffs, vs.
James Wallace Yandle, Defendant.

By virtue of an execution issued out of and under the seal of the circuit court of the state of Oregon, in and for Klamath county, upon that certain judgment rendered the 29th of December, 1910, in the justice court for the Portland district of Multnomah county, state of Oregon, and transcribed to the circuit court of the state of Oregon, for Klamath county, in an action wherein Henry Haberman and J. H. Redmond, doing business as the Comet Realty Company were plaintiffs, and James Wallace Yandle, known also as J. W. Yandle, a defendant; and wherein said plaintiff recovered against said defendant the sum of one hundred and no-100 ($100.00) dollars judgment, and the sum of thirteen and 50-100 ($13.50) dollars costs, and whereas there has been twelve and 50-100 ($12.50) dollars additional or accruing costs therein, which said execution is directed and delivered to me as sheriff of Klamath county, state of Oregon, and I have levied upon all of the right, title and interest of the said James Wallace Yandle, J. W. Yandle, in and to the following described premises, to-wit:

The northwest quarter of the northwest quarter (NW 1/4 NW 1/4) of section ten (10), township forty-one (41) south, range twelve (12) east, W. M., Klamath county, state of Oregon.

Notice is therefore hereby given that I, the undersigned, sheriff of Klamath county, Oregon, will sell said premises, to-wit: The northwest quarter of the northwest quarter (NW 1/4 NW 1/4) of section ten (10), township forty-one (41) south, range twelve (12) east, W. M., Klamath county, Oregon, to the highest bidder for cash. Said sale to be at public auction, at the front door of the court house, in Klamath Falls, county of Klamath, state of Oregon, at the hour of 10 a. m., on to-wit: The 15th day of March, A. D. 1912, to satisfy said execution, together with interest thereon at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum, and for costs incurred.

Dated this 6th day of February, A. D. 1912.

Assurance of Accuracy

The first consideration in selecting a watch is to get a reliable time keeper. It makes no difference how little you spend for a watch if it is money wasted unless you can depend on it to keep somewhere near accurate time.

In the manufacture of a watch of the chief expense is the fine adjusting and regulating. These are, however, inexpensive values of real merit. These are connected along simple lines, and are dependable time keepers. Other cheap watches gotten to in a hasty way are not worth carrying.

We have learned by years of experience to distinguish between the good and the poor makes, and we will not sell a watch at any price that we cannot guarantee to be an accurate timepiece. Yours for service,

THOMPSON TELLS OF THE SECTION

STATE SENATOR COMMENDS PROFESSOR HALLOCK'S JUDGMENT IN GIVING THIS PART WIDE PUBLICITY

W. Lair Thompson, state senator from Lake and Klamath counties, is the latest addition to the ranks of boosters who contend that this was the original land of Cain.

The Portland Oregonian has the following to say of the matter:

"When Cain started forth in his ravings over the world, after slaying Abel, he would naturally select a spot wherein to settle similar to that of his nativity," emphatically declared Senator W. Lair Thompson, of Crook, Klamath and Lake counties, in talking with several other legislators about Professor Charles Hallock's theory, as set forth in his report to the Peabody museum at Harvard.

"The thought never occurred to me before in that exact connection, but I am satisfied that Professor Hallock is right. Cain selected as his abiding place the Garden of Eden of the continent, which, of course, is South Central Oregon. He found Crater Lake, 3,000 feet deep and 2,000 feet from the top of the crater to the surface of the lake. He found Wood River Valley, fed by streams of limpid water, alive with fish, and all this in a country flowing with milk and honey and of most delightful climate. Why, gentlemen, all these things are there yet.

"It happens to represent this district wherein, I am satisfied now, Cain found his final abiding place. Professor Hallock's theory cannot be otherwise than correct, and I am satisfied that it was in the Klamath country that the world-old story of this man seeking out a new country for himself and his family was enacted, and it was there that Cain located the city of Enoch, just as Professor Hallock says he did.

Nobody disputed Senator Thompson's theory.

"Silence gives assent," said he. "They all know what I say is true."

GRANDMOTHER USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER FADED OR GRAY HAIR

Mixed With Sulphur, It Makes Hair Soft, Beautiful, Cures Dandruff

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But the brewing at home is messy and out of date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drugstore for the ready-to-use product, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents.

Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting Wyeth's, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well known downtown druggist says his customers insist of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

WATER RESOURCES REPRESENTS COM

KNOWN BUREAU INVOLVED IN WATER DEVELOPMENTS, ACCORDING TO REPORT OF UNITED STATES SURVEY

The water supply of the United States is undoubtedly its greatest single mineral resource. The study of water resources is therefore one of the most important governmental investigations. The United States geological survey has been making a systematic study of the rivers and other water supplies in the United States, and during the last seventeen years has published over 300 reports presenting the results of this work. Perhaps the most useful phase of this work is the measurement of the flow of streams. Records of stream flow are absolutely essential to any intelligent river development, whether it be in the interest of navigation, flood prevention, or irrigation, or land drainage, or of power development. In a report just issued by the survey dealing with the surface water supply of the Ohio River basin—Water Supply Paper 123—attention is called to the importance of keeping records of stream flow, because as all rivers vary greatly from year to year. Experience has shown that such records should cover all stages from absolute minimum to absolute maximum, and should embrace periods of 5, 10 or for some streams even 20 years.

At first glance these may seem excessive lengths of time for the simple determination of a river's capacity, but when the vast interests involved in river development are considered it will be recognized that great care should be taken to obtain trustworthy information.

Records of stream flow have been obtained at nearly 2,000 different points in the United States. The surface water supply of small areas in Seward Peninsula and the Yukon-Tanana region, Alaska, and in Hawaii has also been investigated. During 1910 regular gauging stations were maintained by the survey and co-operating organizations at about 1,100 points in the United States, and many discharge measurements were made at other points. Data were also obtained in regard to precipitation, evaporation, stream recovery, river profiles and water level in many sections of the country, and will be made available in the series of papers on surface water supply published from time to time. Consideration of the large expenditures made by nation, states and individuals show the need of this kind of study of streams.

In developing inland navigation the federal government alone has expended in the neighborhood of $200,000,000, and prospective expenditures will approximate or exceed this sum. It is obvious that the determination of stream flow is necessary to the intelligent direction of these large disbursements. In irrigating the United States government is now expending on reclamation systems about $700,000,000, and this amount is far exceeded by the private expenditures for this purpose in the west. It is further obvious that the integrity of any irrigation system is based absolutely on the amount of water available. The highest use of water is the one for domestic supply, and in connection with this phase of the subject not only quantity but quality of water is of prime importance. In very recent years water power has become a matter of great national moment. Before the day of improved electric transmission the importance of water power was confined largely to the locality at which it was generated, but it has now become a public utility in which the individual citizen is vitally concerned, and on the amount of water power that may be made available is dependent on the flow of streams. The investigation of the stream flow is a prerequisite to the intelligent management of this great energy.
