GRAFT IN PAVING

THE city council is going to proceed as rapidly as possible with preliminary plans for the improvement of streets in Klamath Falls. This was indicated at the last meeting of the city fathers, when the city attorney was instructed to prepare a resolution of intention to pave Sixth street from the end of the present paving to the limits of the city.

Before taking this step the individual members of the council, no doubt, canvassed public sentiment, and carefully considered the claims of other portions of the city for street improvement, and the action in relation to Sixth street came after due deliberation.

There is but one danger in street improvement. It comes from "GRAFT," and, invariably, this results from the specifications which limit the field of bidders to one concern, or one set of allied concerns.

For instance, there is seen occasionally a set of specifications which limits the materials to be used. Usually in a case of this kind, a careful investigation will show that there is but a single concern in the country in a position to supply this material. Then the taxpayer may be assured that he is not being considered at all. It is the "graft" in the transaction that rules.

The city council of Klamath Falls should be careful in the preliminary work of street improvement. Because a company has able representatives on the ground should be no reason why other concerns in the same line of endeavor should not receive due consideration when contracts for improvements are let.

If Uncle Sam loses his job as collector for J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. in South and Central America he may be expected to be on the lookout for another position.

Selling whiskey to Indians may now be expected to be a safe and profitable line of endeavor in the Klamath country.

Sporting Writer is a Booster for Anderson

Van Court Declares Vancouver Lad and New York Fighter Put up a Great Mill. Brown Favorite

De Witt Van Court, a prominent still and look at Kayo, too weak to sporting writer, in an article in a Los Angeles paper, declares that the Bud Anderson-Knockout Brown fight was one of the greatest in ring history. Court's article in part follows:

"Brown was the aggressor throughout the contest, and was right on top of Bud from start to finish. He had a big lead on points up to the eleventh round, when he ran into a hard blow in the stomach that put him down for a couple of seconds. When he arose, Bud went after him hard, and put him down again for the count of nine. After Kayo arose he was knocked hard against the ropes, and Bud lost the chance of the contest to put him out by not taking advantage of the opportunity, as Kayo was wide open. From the eleventh round on, it was first Kayo and then Bud, and it was anybody's fight up to the twentieth.

"Shortly after the twentieth round started Kayo landed a left on Bud's jaw and he went down. He was about all in, and when one of his seconds spoke to him from the ringside he started for his corner. Brown went after him again, and slugged him all over the ring, but could not put him out. When Eylon gave the draw decision Bud had to be led to his corner.

"Anderson entered the ring in an over-trained condition, and it was plain to all that he was weak. He did not have his usual speed or aggressiveness. At time he would stand and look at Kayo, too weak to take a step. But Bud used excellent judgment at all times in saving his strength. He was also cool all through the contest, and never faltered under the punishment he received at times. He depended on counters in the contest, seldom leading. As Brown would hit at him he would meet him with lefts and rights at the head, seldom hitting for the body.

"Brown had the crowd with him throughout the contest for his aggressiveness. At times the bugs hooted at Bud for not fighting. He was willing enough, but did not have the steam.

"The decision was well received by the crowd. Some thought that Kayo won a draw in the last round. But this is doubtful, as he had enough lead on points in the early part of the contest for a draw, without counting the knockdown. Anderson showed well for a new boy, but will have to be much more speedy and learn a lot more before he can be considered with the best in the lightweight class. It is also doubtful if he can make 133 pounds and be at his very best. He is one of the hardest hitters in his class and should improve right along.

"The contest was a clean one. Anderson complained to the early part of the contest about Brown hitting in the clinches, but this was uncalled for as they were boxing under the usual rules."

WORKMEN MAY SUE EMPLOYERS

COMPENSATION ACT DOES NOT BAR ACTIONS FOR DAMAGES, SAYS ATTORNEY GENERAL

CRAWFORD IN INTERVIEW

SALEM, March 19.—The statement is made by Attorney General Crawford that the construction placed by attorneys for an insurance company of Portland on that section of the workman's compensation act, giving employes the right to bring suits for damages against an employer if they are injured because of the failure of the employer to install safety devices or appliances is a correct one.

The insurance people are sending out circular letters charging that the compensation act is unjust to employes, and appealing to them not to operate under it, but take out casualty insurance instead. The circular declares that, though an employer elects to come under the provisions of the act, in case a workman is injured and it develops that his injury was caused in whole or in part by the failure of an employer to provide safety devices, the latter is subject to a suit for damages. In support of this contention they submit the opinion of two prominent lawyers of Portland.

"This construction of the act is correct," said Attorney General Crawford, after making an examination of it. "There is no question but that, even though an employer elects to come under its provisions and a workman is injured because of the failure of the employer to provide in his establishment safety devices and appliances, he will be subject to a suit for damages by the employe injured, if the latter desires to bring one. The only way an employer can evade actions of this character by the employe is to install the safety devices and appliances required."

NOBODY CAN TELL IF YOU DARKEN GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA

Druggist Says When Mixed With Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Falling Hair

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, then left to age and carefully filtered will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss. Some druggists make their own, but it isn't nearly so nice as "Wyeth's."

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does it so naturally; so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight, and by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, after another application or two it will be restored to its natural color and be even more glossy, soft and luxuriant than ever.

Local druggists say they are selling lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur"; it surely helps folks appear years younger.
