QUICK, WATSON, THE NEEDLE!

ELONGATED SAMMY, the infant prodigy of the San Joaquin, has been having another dream. In one of his well known two-column epigrams he has just discovered the north pole of newspaperdom in the office of the Northwestern.

For a time Sammy based his claim to fame for his paper on a tremendous circulation. This was disproved a few days ago, and now, after a brief breathing spell, painful to Sammy, but enjoyable for the Klamath Falls public, he is back with a new line of argument. This time he insists that the Northwestern is a great newspaper because it prints telegraphic news first.

As a matter of fact the telegraph page of the Northwestern is a reprint of the news given first to the public in Klamath Falls by The Herald. For instance, the news of the assassination of King George of Greece was published in The Herald Tuesday afternoon. The next morning the story printed in the Northwestern.

This morning's issue of the Northwestern is a fair sample of how Sammy prints the news first. The leading telegraph story in the morning paper today is concerning the arrest of the widow of Rear Admiral Eaton, charged with the murder of her husband. The Herald printed this news last night. The other so-called telegraph stories carried by the Northwestern this morning are either those carried by The Herald last night, or those literally stolen from the Portland papers.

Is it possible that Sammy is trying to obtain subscribers on the false claim that he actually receives telegraphic news, just as he secured advertising contracts on a bogus claim of circulation?

Sammy has been in this city about long enough to have discovered that the Klamath Falls public cannot be fooled all of the time. This is why many prefer subscribing to a paper that prints news when it is news, rather than paying tribute to the Northwestern for stories they have read anywhere from twelve hours to two weeks before.

Sammy wants to know if the Northwestern is worth the price of a cheap cigar. It ought to be, as it smells as bad as time.

If the Klamath Falls public depended on the morning newspaper for telegraph news they would be behind the times about two days. Fortunately, The Herald is in the field.

Seems like old times to have Sammy with us again. And his advice, like Milady's spring bonnet, is just too cute for anything.

Children Again Make Merry in White House

(Copyright by Harris & Ewing)

The prattle of childish tongues and the sound of baby laughter such as has not been heard in the White House for years, emanate from the executive mansion all day. Three little granddaughters and a grandnephew of President Wilson are in a race for their "big uncle's" affections. A few days ago the quartet had a tea party, and little Josephine Wilson Cothran, aged 17 months, poured for her guests, Virginia Peyton Howe, aged 3; Wilson Howe, her brother, aged 10; and Elizabeth Wilson, also 10 years of age.

The Frobers and Their Remedy

It is a healthy sign that the Illinois legislature has taken upon itself the task of investigating the conditions of women wage earners in Chicago. So far as I know, this is the first time that a state legislature has shown this much concern for wage earners, and from the interest taken throughout the country, it seems that the public is at last beginning to realize that they are responsible for the welfare of the nation's workers.

So far, well and good, but as for the effect of the proposed remedy—the minimum wage law—that is open for discussion. We have heard of minimum wage laws passed before. Over a year ago in England a few thousand coal miners petitioned parliament for such a law for the coal mines. The members of that body held up their hands in horror, and gave the miners to understand that it was far below their dignity to regulate the pay of coal diggers, and that such matters must be settled between the miners and mine owners.

The miners went on strike, for which they had prepared for months, and in four or five weeks the business of the country was paralyzed. Bread riots were rife, and fearing a general revolution the parliament got busy and passed the minimum wage bill for the coal miners, and they went back to work. But the price of coal was up to stay—and when the dividends were tabulated it was found that during the strike and after the profits of the coal barons were bigger than ever. So the slight increase in the pay of the coal miners was secured at the expense of the workers of Great Britain.

The same thing will happen if the merchant princes of Chicago and elsewhere are compelled to raise the wages of their girl clerks. To use the words of James Simpson, of Marshall Field company, before the committee: "The increase in wages would be passed on to the public." Exactly so. They will raise the price of the goods they handle—not merely enough to cover the extra expense for wages, but enough to make some extra spending money for themselves, and the net result will be a higher cost of living for the nation's workers and more profits for the capitalist class. And the girls who get that extra cash, will they be better off? If I know the landladies in the big cities rightly they will raise the rent a little when they learn that their girl roomers are getting more cash on pay day. The restaurant keepers will follow suit, and together with the higher price they will be paying for their girl rag, it is very doubtful if they will fare any better than before.

In view of these facts it seems to me that when the vice committee looks to a minimum wage law as a remedy for the white slave evil they are barking up the wrong tree. The socialists propose a more thorough remedy—that of socializing the big department stores as well as other means of distribution and production, and by having the reward of the workers on the value of their service to society. That, I think, will prove to be the only effective and lasting remedy. Anything short of that will only add to the burden of the common people, which is already to the breaking point.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN FADED AND GRAY

Mixed With Sulphur, Makes the Hair Soft, Lustrous and Cures Dandruff

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But the brewing at home is messy and out of date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drugstore for the ready-to-use product, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting Wyeth's, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish itchy scalp and falling hair. A well known downtown druggist says his customers insist of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.
