Brandeis Takes Same Stand as "Battle Bob" La Follette

"People's Lawyer" Insists that Morgan and Other Interests Have a Monopoly of Selling Money to the Railroads at What Interest Rate They Desire to Fix Themselves

BOSTON, Mass., April 4.—Louis D. Brandeis, the "people's lawyer," who once declared he could save the railroads of the country millions of dollars every day, in a statement written for the United Press, today championed Senator La Follette's act providing for the physical valuation of railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission. He insisted that before the people can know whether the money they pay to railroads is honestly and necessarily spent, interlocking directorates must be abolished and a federal bureau of railroad costs established.

Mr. Brandeis charges that J. P.
Morgan & Co., and other bankers have a monopoly of selling to many railroads the money they need, at rates of the bankers' own fixing.

By Louis Brandeis

The La Follette act providing for the physical valuation of railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission is the greatest step forward. The senator's seven-year fight has been nobly won. The act is but another application of La Follette's favorite motto:
"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

Everybody admits that the value of railroad property is one of the elements to be taken into consideration by the Interstate Commerce Commission in fixing rates, and everybody has been obliged to admit that the commission was without reliable data bearing upon this value. Under the La Follette act the public will at last be furnished with the best evidence of value available.

But there is more truth which must be known before La Follette's task of securing to the people just railroad rates is completed. To secure just and reasonable rates, other steps must be taken. We must know, besides the actual value of railroad property, the actual cost of operation and the cost of current construction and of new equipment. The railroad reports give us now a statement of what they spend each year, but the public has no means of knowing whether this amount has been well spent.

In the calendar year 1912, the railroads collected from the American people in gross earnings, $3,045,778, 327, most of which has been spent in some way. About one-third of that amount has gone in interest and dividends and taxes. The physical valuation would help us to know what part of that interest and dividends and taxes. The physical valuation

Louis D. Brandeis

would help us to know what part of that interest and dividend is paid on capital which is water. About two-thirds of the year's revenues are paid out for operating expenses. It is at least equally important to know what part of that revenue has been spent unnecessarily; what part has been wasted through dishonesty, and what part through inefficiency. Besides the $2,000,000,000 of current revenues spent in operation, there are each year expended hundreds of millions in new construction or the purchase of equipment. What part of honestly spent. Until we know all the money spent for new construction or equipment is efficiently and this, we cannot know whether rates are just and reasonable.

The fact that a railroad company has paid out money has ceased to be assurance that it was necessarily paid out. Interlocking directorates may have led to the making of many contracts unnecessarily burdensome to the railroads; for on many of our railroads interlocking directorates control a large part of the expenditure.

J. P. Morgan & Co. and other bankers have a monopoly of selling many
rates of the bankers' own fixing. Directors of the steel trust are directors of railroad companies, owning over one-half of the total railroad mileage in the United States. Directors of equipment companies have places on boards of railroad companies. The United States Commissioner of Corporations has shown how the Standard Oil trust compelled nearly every railroad in the country to purchase its oil at extortionate prices.

Before the railroads can know what expenditures are needful, the great step taken in the La Follette physical valuation act must be supplemented by two others. First, interlocking directorates must be abolished; second, a federal bureau of railroad costs must be established, through which the actual and necessary cost of operating each railroad can be determined.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, April 4.—A Chinese invasion is upon us. Fifth avenue has already capitulated, and Dame Fashion has bowed her head beneath the yoke of the Orient. It's a lovely yoke, though, all hand-embroidered with threads of gold and gorgeous silks, so you may well rejoice at this orderly surrender to mode a la Chink.

Possibly there is not a garment for the spring that does not show some Chinese tendency. Sometimes it is a lavish use of Chinese embroidery, and again it is merely the cut of a coat a la mandarin or a Satsuma button or two. Of course, you have been wearing one of these marvelously embroidered mandarin coats as an evening wrap for some time, but the new three-quarter coats that the smart shops are all showing are Chinese in shape only, and in material simply dull shades of crepe broche, with an edging of self-toned ball fringe. In fact, they are merely an occidental version of an oriental original.

If your sartorial income is limited, get one of these coats by all means.
They are good always and all ways.
Their lovely drapery is equally adaptable to an afternoon gown, an evening robe or over the flimsy lace of your warm weather lingerie frock.

From coat to skirt is but a short step. And, praise be, we will be through with short steps altogether if the Chinese skirt is as great a hit as it promises to be. It is cut on exactly the same graceful lines as the vivid-embroidered affairs affected by the little yellow ladies across the China Sea. As worn by Miss New York or Mlle. Paris, however, the materials are more circumspect serge, epouses or crepes. With the panels back and front and the pleated fullness between, you can take a good long stride without a stumble. Pud-dies can be crossed with impunity, and street cars can be boarded without the combined aid of conductor and the traffic squad.

The exquisite Satsuma and carved ivory and jade Chinese buttons are used with telling effect on the many short coats and wraps of velvets and brocades, as well as on more severe tailored suits. These latter often show collars and vests of vivid Chinese embroidery, and your new spring bonnet could not boast a more chic trimming than a crush of brocade of Chinese around the tiny crown.

Chinese skirts in the original certainly possess as many varied uses as the famous porker, whose only loss is its squeal. The front and back panels, with their rich embroideries in Pekin stitch, make exquisite long sailor collars, which will miraculously turn your most commonplace frock into a veritable creation. The yards on yards of two-toned Chinese blue embroidery bandings make trimming galore for a stunning gown and hat.
A striking parasol in these days of unique ones, is made from the skirts pleated and embroidered sides, and an equally effective piano lamp shade can be evolved from the same, with the addition of panels.

Au naturel, the skirt makes an artistic display for your baby grand, the scraps make quaint mats for the center table—and there you are.
From the latter uses, it may plainly be seen that the crane Chinols has verily struck home. Indeed, latest designs in tapestry for upholstery and even wall papers and window and door hangings are all in gold threaded Chinese motifs on backgrounds of black.

Waist lines seem seized with the most reckless cases of wanderlust this season. You may find them skidding giddily from just below the bust down to the hip line, with stop-offs at the normal and semi-Empire zones.
It's a case of here today and there tomorrow, and it's going to be mighty hard on the 1913 spring lover, too.
Before encircling the waist of his lady fair with his strong right, he will first have to discover where said waist may be at the time of going to press.

The abnormal long waist as affected by Mme. Nandimova in "Bella Donna" and shown in the new Russian blouse frocks is so very extreme that it is bound to become more of a fad than a fashion. Then, too, as is always the case in these freak fashions, it is being cheapened by too constant repetition.

The very short Empire waist is still the most artistic for evening gowns, it seems, according to Paris models, but for street and afternoon wear, the preferences are for normal or slightly raised waist lines. Some few of the newest bodices show a long, pointed waist, like the old-fashioned basque—so take your choice.

One thing is certain, however, the waist line MUST be girdled by a sash.
Wide crush sashes of Roman stripes, futurist silks or plain charmeuse and gay Oriental sashes wrap you like the belle of the harem, or the in-genue sash will make you look like a Laura Jean Libby heroine.

MRS WILSON NAMES A SOCIAL SECRETARY

Miss Helen Woodrow Bones has just been appointed social secretary by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, and for the next four years she and the Misses Wilson will have charge, under the first lady of the land of social affairs at the White House, and others in which the president's family will take part.

Miss Bones' home is in Rome, Ga., and she belongs to the Wilson family, being a cousin to the president. In her home she has had social experience among the old southern families, so that her duties will not be strange to her.

OVER MRS. SPARKS

FORMER PROPRIETOR OF THE
STAR THEATER HERE FIGURED IN FIST FIGHT IN REDMOND STREET

REDMOND, April 4.—Because it is alleged that he attacked the character of Mrs. A. B. Sparks in his sermon at the M. E. church Sunday night, Rev. J. M. Crenshaw, the pastor, was knocked down on Main street by A. J. Haney, a friend of Mrs. Sparks. Crenshaw, in his sermon, said the moving pictures were instructive, but that the woman who conducted the house was of bad character, and that the mayor knew of this and harbored her here.

When questioned as to his source of information regarding Mrs. Sparks, Crenshaw said that all he knew about her was gossip he had heard.

Crenshaw was the secretary of the Purity League that operated in Redmond last summer. A petition from members of the M. E. church, asking the council to close the moving picture house on Sunday evenings, was presented to that body recently, but the council declined to close the place, and this action by the council, it is said, led to the attack.

Mrs. Sparks, referred to in the foregoing, is well known here, as she founded the motion picture theater in the Bristol building, which is now known as the Star theater.
