DEESTRICK SKEWL A GREAT ROLICK

LARGE CAST LETTER PERFORM IN LINES FOR NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT TOMORROW EVENING AT M. E. CHURCH

The final rehearsal of the cast which will produce "Ye Deestrick Skewl of Huckleberry Corners" will be held this evening, and those who have watched the work of the amateur thespians declare that the performance tomorrow night will be highly creditable.

The sketch will be given at the Methodist church. The intermediate League of the church is in charge of the entertainment.

An exceptionally large cast is necessary to produce the play, which is a farcical representation of the old time rural institution of learning. Those who will appear tomorrow night are:

What's the Matter With the Old Watch?

It's not getting any younger, you know, and once in a while it needs a rest and overhauling. Railroad watches are cleaned and overhauled once a year to insure accurate time-keeping. Why not bring yours in and let us give it the attention that is necessary for good time keeping.

SPIRIT WORLD USES WIRELESS

GOTRANITES DECLARE THEY CAN COMMUNICATE WITH THE UNSEEN BY MARCONI METHOD. OTHER NEW YORK GOSSIP

By CARLTON TEN SYCK

Written for the United Press
NEW YORK, April 10.—Communication with the spirit world by means of a wireless telegraph apparatus is the latest sensation reported in New York psychical circles. Within the last few days a complete wireless station has been installed in the Temple of Modern Spiritualism, and according to its pastor, the Rev. Dr. Richard R. Schlessner, regular messages have been transmitted to and received from "those on the other side."

Dr. Schlessner and others connected with the temple explain that the sending apparatus is operated by a weakened current to prevent its messages from being picked up by the regular wireless stations around the city. But the spirit operators are so sensitive to the wireless waves that they can read the faintest messages sent out, and their responses, while feeble, are entirely intelligible to the receiving operator at the terrestrial end of the wireless.

At first, it is said, there was no response to messages sent out from the church. This was explained by the fact that the spirits had not "practiced" the code, and could not read the messages as well as they could send them—an explanation that would appear reasonable to anyone who has practiced ordinary Morse telegraphy. But, owing to their keener faculties, the spirits quickly became expert in sending both Morse and Continental codes.

"We operate our station by placing one or more of our mediums beside the telegraph operator," explained one of the officials of the temple. The medium attracts the spirits or controls, as we call them, within the radius of our wireless current.

"When the medium has established the proximity of a control a message is given the operator, and he sends it in the ordinary manner. Almost instantly the reply comes, and conversation between the medium and the controls continues without interruption for several minutes. Then the communication becomes confused by the efforts of other controls to transmit messages of their own, and the station has to shut down for a while until the spirits stop crowding around."

Dr. Schlessner said that the success with the wireless telegraph apparatus had convinced him that, by means of the wireless telephone, direct communication by speech with the spirit world is possible.

Dr. Schlessner said the temple must not be confused with the fakirs that have brought discredit upon spiritualism. He said his organization is doing everything it can to promote the scientific advancement of his faith.

These are the busy days at the big Bronx and Central Park zoos. All the four-footed and feathered residents have come out of their winter gloom and are making the welkin ring with springtime mating songs, squeals, and grunts, growls and roars. The latest romance reported was the elopement of Mike and Nora, ring-tailed monkeys, from Central Park.

Mike and Nora had adjoining cages all winter. Keeper Bill Snyder noticed the affectionate glances that passed between the two, but he did not realize to what lengths the romance had gone until he happened to leave the doors of both cages ajar the other morning. He had barely turned his back when with a squeal of delight Mike and Nora clasped arms and feet, chattering joyously, into the tree tops.

Pursuit was begun and lasted until nearly dark. The dusk frightened the elopers, and they appeared only too pleased to return to the comfort and security of the monkey house. There they were placed in the same cage and a brief marriage service recited by Keeper Snyder, as follows: "There, I hope you pecky critters will be happy, gosh darn you!"

Mayor Gaynor's April Fool joke on the Gay White Way is now over a week old, but no except the mayor has laughed as yet. On the night of April 1st, all-night licensees for the restaurants and hotels were revoked, and every gilded palace and every dive was closed at 1 o'clock in the morning. No one was allowed to remain, and the old dodge of ordering a lot of drinks put on the table just before closing time didn't work. That's the way it has been ever since. The hotel and restaurant proprietors are howling for relief, but his honor has been impervious to argument. He says anybody can "gorge themselves with all the food they need and guzzle all the liquor they can hold, or ought to hold" by 1 o'clock.
