GOING TO STUDY H. C. L. PROBLEM

ESTABLISHMENT OF A FARMERS' BANKING SYSTEM IS TO BE BROUGHT UP THROUGH STUDY IN EUROPE

United Press Service

NEW YORK, April 26.—The S. S.
Saxonia, bound for Naples, carried a delegation of 100 Americans when it sailed today. The Americans are going abroad to find the solution of the high cost of living riddle. The key to the riddle, according to this delegation—the American Commission on Agricultural Co-Operation—is the establishment of a farmers' banking system which will break up the present flow of money to Wall street and send it into the farms, so that the consumers of the country will have more food and cheaper food.

A majority of the dollars deposited in the American banks today declare members of the commission, are bound to find their way to the speculative markets, since every bank has no alternative under the present banking system than to deposit a large portion of its funds with other banks, which in turn place the funds with the New York or Chicago banks, and turn it over to speculators under the guise of call money. The aim of the American Commission on Agricultural Co-Operation is to establish little co-operative banks in every American farming community which will receive deposits of the community and loan them directly to the farmers for the development of their farms.

Besides the efforts to establish the farmers' banks, the commission will undertake the study of the land banks of Europe, institutions which carry on the mortgage business of the European farmers, accepting all mortgages and issuing bonds based upon them which sell on the stock exchange and command as wide a market as any railroad or municipal bond. France has a land bank with a capital of $50,000,000, controlled by the French government, which brings the farmers' loans at 4.5 per cent, as compared with the 8.5 per cent paid on an average by the American farmers. The German land banks have secured some $3,000,000,000 for the development of the German lands.

If such a system can be established in the United States and the billions of dollars which are poured into the speculative markets by the banks can be diverted to the farmers, it is the belief of the co-operative commission that this country will see such a development of its agricultural resources as will solve for one and all the problem of the high cost of living. Cheap money and easy terms, say the members of the commission, would make it profitable for the farmers to double the production of their farms and open up all of the vast areas of uncultivated land in the United States in the course of not many years.

Once co-operative banks are established among the farmers, it is said, other co-operative societies will be formed, and the farmers will secure control of all the machinery for distribution and selling their produce.
This would wipe out the middleman and leave the profits largely to the farmer himself. In Europe the farmers even form co-operative societies to buy all their materials, thereby benefitting by wholesale prices and better goods.

A federal committee, bearing credentials from President Wilson, and Secretary of State Bryan, heads the commission. The federal representatives are Senator Fletcher of Florida, Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Representative Moss of Indiana, Colonel Harvey Jordan, president of the Southern Cotton Growers Association; John Lee Coulter, the government's expert on agricultural statistics, and Dr.
Clarence J. Owens of Maryland, managing director of the Southern Commercial Congress which organized the commission.

About three-fourths of the states of the Union are represented on the commission by delegates bearing commissions from their respective state executives. The co-operative commission is a semi-official body, having the approval of congress. Secretary of State Bryan has instructed all diplomatic officials of this country abroad to secure recognition from European governments, and in the first country visited—Italy—the commission will be formally received by the King and Queen.

The investigation will be carried on in fourteen countries, the commission expecting to cover all the large cities and large rural communities from Italy to Norway, and from Russia to Ireland. It is the most costly investigation ever undertaken in the interests of American farmers. Con-

Face, Head of a Typical N.Y. Po- lice Grafter Recently Convicted

NEW YORK, April 25.—Patrolman Thomas F. Robinson has the typical head and face of the New York police grafter. He has just been convicted in the New York courts for extortion.
He is the first policeman to suffer on this charge, which District Attorney Whitman has been investigating since the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, last July.

Four inspectors—the highest uniformed officers in the police department of 10,500 men—are under indictment. Several other patrolmen and others connected with the extortion practiced on vice and the liquor business by policemen are yet to be tried.

gross appropriated $25,000 for the expenses of the federal commissioners and to pay for a report on the subject. The house of governors has appointed a committee of nine governors to receive the report of the delegates from the states, and a legislative program is to be drawn up by this committee of state executives to be submitted to all of the state legislatures after it has been approved by a two-thirds vote at the next conference of the house of governors.

Eugene H. Grubb, who also sailed today, declared himself heartily in accord with the work of the commission. He is one of the best known agricultural experts in the world.
Grubb will be not only one of the rep-Robinson's case was like others to come. Ludovico Tancredi, a Harlem restaurant man, was told that he must pay $50 a month. He refused.

A case of violation of the law was made out against him—he has testified that it was "framed up"—and he was convicted in the courts. He was sent to "the island," the county penitentiary, for three months. On his return Robinson was there to meet him. He was told he must either pay or quit business, or he would be convicted again. Not only that, but he was compelled to pay $50 a month for the time he had been in jail.

Tancredi did all these things till he found the way to District Attorney Whitman.

representatives of the United States in the investigation, but also will be the agricultural agent for the Union Pacific railroad. "It is really appalling how this country has shirked its duty toward the agricultural question," said Professor Grubb today. "We have the most favorable natural conditions of any nation in the world, and if the American government will waken to its opportunities, we will make such strides that all foreign nations will fall to the rear of the list.
I am confident that the work of investigation we will do abroad will result in remarkable good for the whole country."
