GENERAL GREELEY CREDITS THE REPORTS OF DISCOVERY IN ANTARCTICS BY PROFESSOR MAWSON

United Press Service
ROME, April 28.—"The United States of America and Antarctica." That's what it may be in the distant future, for, according to Major General Adolphus Greeley, U. S. A., retired, recent explorations of Professor Mawson at the South Pole tend to vindicate and corroborate American Antarctic explorers, who, seventy years ago, found another continent at the "bottom of the earth." Gen. Greeley, himself was a famous Arctic explorer, and following Professor Mawson's recent "discoveries" he today declared he will present to the Polar Congress here what he claims are irrefutable proofs that Americans led the world in discovering new land at the South Pole.
"The news sent north by Professor Mawson from his wireless station on Adelle Land, telling of the 'discovery' of new lands," said General Greeley today, "will be heartily welcomed by all persons interested in the thrilling story of American Polar expeditions and explorations. The dispatches indicate that the Australian explorers under Professor Mawson have proved the continuity of the continent of Antarctica through 80 degrees of longitude from Victoria Land of Ross to Adelle Land of De Nevele and Termination Land of Wilkes. Mawson and his companions have thus permanently placed upon the maps of the world the disputed area of Antarctica. This continent was discovered in 1821 by an American, a sealing captain named Palmer, and more fully explored by another American, Charles Wilkes, U. S. N., in 1840. Wilkes officially reported: 'We have discovered a large body of land within the Antarctic Circle which I have named the Antarctic Continent.'

"This addition of a new continent to the maps of the world was discredited for seventy years, and as late as 1905 a British explorer reported that he had 'once and for all definitely disposed of Wilkes Land.' It is indeed grateful to American explorers that British have justified the accuracy and judgment of one of their 'kin across the seas.' Already made famous by his work in visiting and locating the south magnetic pole under Shackleton, Professor Mawson has now raised himself to high rank as a leader of scientific and adventurous expeditions."

What's the Matter With the Old Watch?

It's not getting any younger, you know, and once in a while it needs a rest and overhauling. Railroad watches are cleaned and overhauled once a year to insure accurate time-keeping. Why not bring yours in and let us give it the attention that is necessary for good time keeping.

WILSON WOULD DEFER ACTION

Every phase of the land situation was discussed during the conference. Bryan spoke at length during the joint conference.
The president's messenger was rather reticent, however, as to the representations Japan has made upon the subject.
In answer to a direct question by one of the legislators he refused to state exactly what pressure is being brought to bear upon the administration by the Japanese ambassador.

Governor Hiram Johnson's position in regard to the administration's views of the land legislation is not definitely known. He listened with great interest to every question asked and to Bryan's answers, but he gave no indication whether he approved or disapproved the president's request.
The members of the legislature, following the executive session refused to go into detail regarding what was talked of.
They say that Bryan made no statement that would indicate that Japan has threatened to proceed to extralimities if Japanese are barred from land ownership.

SACRAMENTO, April 28.—"Whatever I have to say I'll say before the California legislature," said Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan, who arrived from Washington early this morning.
A large crowd assembled at the station to greet Bryan, including the democratic leaders. There were many Japs in the crowd, but there were no demonstrations.
The time of Bryan's arrival coincided with the hour when the Japanese gardeners were bringing their vegetables and truck to market. Several times Bryan's automobile was forced to stop until the congestion caused by the Japanese agriculturists was relieved.
Bryan's first conference with the legislators commenced at 11 o'clock, when both houses jointly went into executive session.
The members of the legislature and the state officers at this meeting discussed with Bryan the international features involved in the adoption of anti-Japanese land legislation. The message of President Wilson on the subject was also read.

sea and the high winds made progress difficult, and drove the boat far out of its course.
Late in the evening the Brewbaker boat again became disabled, and while efforts were being made to repair it, the two boats were blown by the high wind into a bed of tules. It was then decided that the two crafts separate, and both try to make Buck Island.
Brewbaker and his companions, after much paddling, reached the island, hungry and chilled from the exposure. This morning they were rowed ashore and came to town.
The crew of the Olds boat suffered worse luck, for the wind drove them to the vicinity of Algoma during the night, and with but one comforter, and no provisions, the quintet suffered intensely. Late this morning they paddled to Buck Island, were rowed ashore and came on to town, after being on the lake in the storm for more than twenty-four hours.
The Olds boat came to grief Sunday afternoon by striking a partly submerged log. This damaged the shaft and propeller.

Studebaker

"The wagon that stands up like the reputation of its makers"

When you buy a Studebaker wagon you buy a wagon that will last until you turn the farm over to your son and he turns it over to his son.

One of the first Studebaker wagons ever made saw constant service for thirty years, and we will gladly send you the names of farmers who have in their possession wagons that have been in constant use anywhere from 17 to 48 years—and there are thousands of them. We are building the same kind of wagons today.

A Studebaker wagon is an investment that will give you full return for your outlay. It is built on honor, iron, steel, wood, paint and varnish used in its construction are tested and retasted to make sure each is the best.

For work, business or pleasure—for town or country use—there is a Studebaker vehicle to fit your requirements.

Farm wagons, dump carts, trucks, buggies, surreys, runabouts, pony carriages, business vehicles of every description—with harness of the same high standard.
