News of Our Neighbors

Some Heat, This
A few weeks ago the Portland Oregonian was telling about a head of lettuce raised in that part of the country weighing something like three pounds, and was twenty-two inches in circumference. Well, the Herald office has a head of lettuce that was raised in the garden of Tom Watson, in South Lakeview, that will make the Oregonian look wise. The head weighs five pounds and twelve ounces, and is fifty-eight inches in circumference, and stands fifteen inches high. This head of lettuce was weighed on the scales in Bailey & Mearns' store. Mr. Bailey called out the weight, and it was measured by Dolph Schmidt and Walter Dykeman.—Lakeview Herald.

New Railroad
A contract has been closed with W. P. School of Tenino, Wash., for the construction of a standard gauge steam or electric railroad from Metolite to Prineville. The construction work will start as soon as the right of way and other necessary preliminaries are disposed of. It is as yet undecided whether or not electricity will be used from the start, but it can be safely stated that ultimately it will be an electric line, as Mr. School is heartily interested in patents of power production as well as being the owner of extensive coal fields.—Lakeview Herald.

No, Not Like the Hooey
The Oklahoma Ranch Wild West show that appeared at the ball park yesterday afternoon and evening lives up to its name in one particular. It makes every one who attended wild to think they let go of good coin to be allowed to pass into the arena. It is about as wild a show, from the point of value received, as one will find in the West, the East, the North or the South. And while it is being wild, it is very, very tame.—Medford Sun.

Shorter Fruit Time
Through the efforts of J. H. Randolph, manager of the Producers Fruit company in Medford the time required to ship a carload of apples or pears to Chicago has been shortened nearly two days. In other words, now a car will reach the Chicago market in nine or ten days where it formerly took eleven and twelve.—Medford Sun.

Cougar in Barnyard
Invading the barnyard on the farm of George Weddle, one mile above Sweet Home, a cougar attacked a band of hogs recently and was killed by Mr. Weddle, who brought the animal's skin to the county clerk's office at Albany and collected the state bounty. It was a 3-year-old cougar, measuring about 6 1/2 feet in length, being smaller than the average cougar killed in the Cascade mountains.

Prospect of Colony
The Waring Brothers, three Germans, after an extended trip through the Pacific Coast states, are here with the announced intention of locating in this county. They will probably take up agricultural and horticultural pursuits, and will be very desirable citizens. Others of their countrymen may also locate here.—Roseburg Review.

Oregon Member of American Commission Gives His Views

Instructor at College Says Europeans Through Hardships Have Adopted Co-operative Credit System While Prosperity Keeps Us From Doing So

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Ore., Aug. 15.—Driven by grim necessity, European farmers have adopted and are now practicing a system of scientific agriculture and co-operative credit and marketing that has rescued them from abject poverty and placed them on a plane of prosperity. Although no European country has anything like the agricultural possibilities and opportunities for happy and prosperous rural homes that are to be found in America, yet our crops are poorer, our methods of finance more expensive, and our plan of marketing more extravagant, than those of most European countries.

There are a few of the somewhat surprising conclusions reached by Dr. Macpherson, professor of political economy at the Oregon Agricultural college, who, as a member of the American commission to investigate rural credit and organization in European countries has returned from a visit in which he traveled more or less extensively over thirteen European states. The following report of his own personal observations has been given out for the state press.

"The American commission, composed of delegates from each of thirty-five states and four Canadian provinces, which has been investigating rural credit and organization of agriculture in European countries during the past three months has now returned.

"It is probable that no investigation anywhere has ever recorded such a reaction as the commission received from the different countries of Europe.

"So far as my observations go there is no country in Europe offering anything like the possibilities for agricultural production and happy rural homes that we find here in America. Our methods of marketing are more extravagant, and credit facilities more expensive than are to be met with anywhere in Europe. Many countries are also ahead of us in their methods of rural education.

"But notwithstanding these drawbacks, I feel certain that there does not exist anywhere in the old world a higher average of native ability than is to be found upon American farms. The middle class American farm home, especially in our best settled sections, offers a higher degree of comfort and luxury than is to be found in the old world.

"The farmers of Europe were forced to adopt scientific methods of farming and co-operative systems for the preparation and marketing of their products. They were also compelled to resort to co-operative institutions for the supply of credit in almost every country community. The result of this co-operation in practically every case has been to place the small farmer on his feet.

"Our prosperity in America has been the great obstacle to the adoption of the economical business methods which prevail in most European countries. The motive force with us must be intelligence, rather than grim necessity.

"When the time comes that American farmers are as careful in their methods as are the small farmers of Europe, American agriculture will have obtained a prosperity exceeding anything to be found in Europe."

LOOK YEARS YOUNGER! GRAY HAIR DARKENED BEAUTIFULLY WITH SAGE

Says Sage and Sulphur Will Stop Falling Hair and Cure Dandruff

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, then left to age and carefully filtered will turn gray, streaked and aged hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

Some druggists make their own, but it isn't nearly so nice as "Wyeth's."

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does it so naturally; so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight, and by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, after another application or two it will be restored to its natural color and be even more glossy, soft and luxuriant than ever.

Local druggists say they are selling lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur"; it surely helps folks appear years younger.
