

Advocates Sex Hygiene Courses for Teachers

BUFFALO, Aug. 27.—The establishment of courses in sex hygiene for teachers in universities, colleges, normal schools and grammar schools and compilation of text books suitable for school use was urged by speakers at today's sessions of the Fourth International congress of School Hygiene, presided over by Dr. Charles W. Elliot, president emeritus of Harvard University and president of the congress.

Dr. Thomas M. Balliol, dean of the School of Pedagogy, at New York University, President William Foster of Reed College, Oregon, and Dr. Hugh Cabot of Harvard University, spoke on the subject of instruction for teachers and preparation of text books in sex courses. Attention was called especially to the report of the American Federation for Sex Hygiene, which favors the use of nature study and biology as a medium for sex instruction, and which opposes instruction in the schools by sex specialists.

It was argued that specialists not trained to teach children could not satisfactorily go into the details necessary without possibility of offending sensitive natures of the children.

On the other hand it was pointed out teachers specially trained in sex hygiene could, with their knowledge of instruction, be made to be better fitted for this somewhat delicate task.

Open Air Helps the Children of Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—When Frederick Johnson, leader of the West End gang, goes marching regrettably back to school in a few days, he will have the backing of the Chicago department of health if he tells "dad" that his chances of living are a lot better out of doors than if he cooped up in school houses.

The health department, in a special bulletin issued today, explains that there has been a marked decrease in the number of contagious diseases common to youngsters since the closing of school in June.

Cases of scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles, chickenpox and mumps have decreased on an average of 90 per cent since Johnny and Jimmy and Susie and Bessie put their books away last June for their summer vacation.

Saxton Says He Was Misled by Morley on Way to Prison

Accused Man Declares He Was Told Men He Referred to Would Be Brought to Identify Him; Says, "God Is With Me, and They'll Have to Go Some to Beat Us"

Editor Herald:

Is it not strange that in our beautiful country, in this land of the pure and the free, under our glorious flag of shining stars and waving stripes—

I say, is it not strange that an innocent man can be twice arrested on the same charge, then be bound in iron chains and taken 1,000 miles from home, thrown in jail with condemned convicts, who have been by law proven to have broken the laws of our country, and there placed in an iron cell and held on prison fare for eight long weeks, until the court shall say "this man is innocent and not the man who committed the crime."

This is exactly the case in the forgery trial of Eugene Saxton, the man who was taken from Idaho to your lovely city.

I read the warrant at the time I was arrested. It said that the man who was charged with the forgery weighed 155 pounds; he had brown curly hair; he had a wife who has red hair. "They are traveling across country with pack horses." These were the words in the warrant.

I weigh about 110 pounds; have not curly hair; never had any claim on any man's wife; was never married, and was not traveling with either a woman or pack horses.

I saw that warrant did not fit in any way my description. Mr. Morley went to Idaho to get a man supposed to have committed the forgery, and after he got there he was afraid to return to Klamath Falls without some one, as the city might give him the "horse laugh." So he brought me here, even if I did not in any way fit the description.

After we left Weed, Mr. Morley came into my seat in the car for a few minutes. He took a sheet of paper from his pocket and a pencil. He said to me: Saxton, I shackled you because the law says that I am required to do so, but Saxton, I am still your friend, and if you will tell me I will go or send to the farmers who live along Tule Lake and ask them when you were at their homes on your trip through that country last summer."

Morley said to me: "There are a few people who live at the lake who know these forgers, and in the morning I will go or send an automobile to the lake and bring them into Klamath Falls to see you, and if they say you are not the forger then we will turn you loose."

I believed every word Mr. Morley said to me. I had nothing to hide, and I told Mr. Morley I stayed one night at Spaulding's goat ranch, 18 miles south of Dry Lake. I stayed one night at Straw postoffice at Dry Lake, at the time the man who lives at Dry Lake was after his wife, who was sick in some hospital. I stayed with young Mr. Harter on a sheep ranch on the bank of Tule Lake; one night in Poe Valley; then went north on foot by Obeschain ranch on some creek to the XX cattle ranch, then on to Mineral Idaho, where I was twice arrested for this crime.

Mr. Morley wrote down the names of the ranches where I stayed on Dry Lake, and next morning I expected him to show up at the jail and take me over to court, where I could meet these Tule Lake men, who said they knew the forger by sight. Mr. Morley did not keep his word with me, for he did not call for me, neither did he send or go to Tule Lake and get the people who were to identify me, as he said he would.

Now, dear reader, I never had even one crooked hair in my head. I always play a fair, honest game as I journey down life's dark valley, and I do not like to see any man lie to convict anyone. If all who care to try me on this charge of forgery will treat me as fairly and honestly as Eugene Saxton will treat them, then I say the court will very soon turn me loose, a free man.

I wish that a very large board, like a billboard, would be posted up at your postoffice and everything in my life could be printed upon that board, and at the same time everything in the lives of a few men who are persecuting me might be printed on the same large billboard by the side of my life's history. Then, I say, the good people of Klamath Falls would see which of us were weighed in the balance and were found wanting.

I know there are a few men in this city who are trying hard to railroad me, and I do not believe they think me guilty, either. I say there are a few people in this city of churches who are fond of money, and they are willing to railroad any innocent man to get that cash.

I shall meet you at my trial, and God knowing me to be innocent, will be forever on my side, and they will go some when they beat the pair of us. If there is any man in Klamath county who cares to meet me and ask me questions in regard to this forgery trial, I kindly invite you to call on me at the jail. I assure you, you will leave me convinced of my innocence. If there is any man at Tule Lake or any other place who knew Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne, who forged the note, I ask each and every one to call on Eugene Saxton as ytime you may come to this city.

EUGENE SAXTON.

When Her Back Aches

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away

Klamath Falls women know how the aches and pains that often come when the kidneys fail make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, disturbing urinary troubles, are frequent indications of weak kidneys, and should be checked in time. Dean's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys only. They attack kidney weakness by striking at the cause.

Can Klamath Falls citizens desire stronger proof than this Phoenix woman's word?

Mrs. J. W. Whitman, Phoenix, Arizona, says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dean's Kidney Pills, as I have had ample proof of their merit. Overwork or being on my feet for any length of time caused my back to ache, and head aches came through my eyes. Headaches and spells of dizziness also bothered me. I knew that my kidneys were at fault, and having heard of Dean's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I purchased a supply. I began taking them, and they relieved the troubles that had so long distressed me."
