

What the Tariff Will Do for Us

A Careful Study of the New Measure by an Expert

By BOND F. GEDDES
Chief Correspondent of the United Press

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—Vines and aches and some forms of pain may be made somewhat easier financially, under the new democratic tariff law. At least, that's the way it looks from here, after a study of schedules on medicines and raw materials used by druggists and chemists in the manufacture of medicines, which are admitted free or on which the import duty has been lowered. Of course, there will be the same rates of charge by the doctors, and, of course, you'll have to wait until the present supply of raw materials and drugs gives out before the anticipated (but by no means certain) reductions in retail prices materialize.

The trend of the tariff reductions is all broadly toward reducing the cost of curing aches and pains. Import taxes on medicinal and chemical compounds and preparations (patent medicines) all are reduced from 5 to 10 per cent. Duties on many drug store supplies are also slashed considerably. The import tax on hospital chemicals is cut 15 per cent.

Gum arabic, which druggists use in great quantities and practically all of which is imported, will cost more. It has been taken off the free list and made subject to a duty of one-half a cent a pound—and imports of 5,000,000 pounds are expected next year. Balsams, free of duty under the old law, are now taxable at 10 per cent of their value. But certain of the more reliable family remedies, such as Chamberlain's, as castor beans, etc., will be imported for 10 cents a pound. Chamberlain's, for instance, which is imported for 25 cents a pound, will be imported for 25 cents a pound. For those preferring a more potent remedy, calomel, which is imported for 20 per cent cheaper, but calomel is a poison, and its use is not recommended. The dose of calomel, too, has been cut in half, and that on Rochelle salts pared half a cent a pound. A new duty of one cent a pound has been placed on aspirin, the cost, but the retail price of this should go down a half cent if the doctor never gets all tariff benefits.

Spiritus is still on the free list and 25,000,000 pounds of the bark are the estimated imports for next year. The duty on camphor is reduced one cent a pound, but the consumer will hardly be getting any benefit as a result. The duty on opium should be brought cheaper, at least to the East, as a duty of 10 cents a gallon has been removed. Morphine, the opium's home after sickness should be cheaper, as the duty on morphine has been reduced from 25 to 10 per cent. Besides the old-fashioned "opium letting" devices, are still on the free list. So are all medicines including vaccine virus.

Trotal is the name given to a new explosive said to be the safest high explosive known. Its formula was worked out by Lieutenant Harold C. Woodford, an officer in the New York National Guard. Six ounces of trotal it is said, will do the work of twelve ounces of dynamite.
