The "Texas" the Greatest Battleship Afloat

In the new battleship Texas, whose keel was laid at Newport, Rhode Island, on May 1, 1909, and which was launched on a central line so arranged as to fire over one another. The Texas is eleven feet longer than any battleship in the United States navy, being 573 feet over all. Her beam is 95 feet 2 1/2 inches, which will give her almost fifteen feet leeway in passing through the Panama canal locks. Her draught of 28 1/2 feet will enable her to enter at least four of the Atlantic navy yards and one on the Pacific coast.

NATIONAL LABOR PARTY TALKED

Matter Will Be Discussed at Seattle

Important Convention of the Federation of Labor

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 8.—The annual convention of the National Labor Party, which is expected to be the largest and most important gathering of labor leaders the country has ever known is assembling in Seattle today. The occasion is the thirty-third annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, which will be opened here Monday morning.

With President Samuel Gompers presiding. Nearly 1,000 delegates, representing more than 2,500,000 skilled workers of the United States and Canada, are expected to be in their seats when President Gompers calls the great meeting to order. More than 100 great national and international labor organizations, consisting of about 21,000 local unions, will be represented.

The coming meeting is fraught with deep significance toward both laboring men of the country and the great political parties. One undercurrent which may break above the surface is a proposition to form a labor party in this country. Many are clamoring for this to be done immediately. Others, and they appear to be in the majority, expressed themselves today informally, as being more inclined to hold back this year to give the Wilson administration a chance to show what it is going to do. However, the matter has advanced so far that there has been much talk of appointing a committee to confer with the socialists on the subject of a labor party. The socialists, it was understood today, would unanimously favor such a proposition, provided, of course, that it would not mean elimination of the individuality of the socialist party.

That the old fight against the so-called "ultra-conservative policies" of Gompers will again materialize, and that Gompers will again be opposed for reelection by some member of the group which believes in more direct and more radical political action for unionism, was openly asserted today in the radical camp. Max Hayes, who polled 5,000 votes as a candidate for president last year against the 11,000 given to Gompers, declared today that he will not run again this year. But he intimated that when the right man is chosen to oppose Gompers he will work tooth and nail for him. The turning of one big union against Gompers, in the opinion of Hayes, will defeat the present incumbent for reelection. While the socialists who are leading the opposition to Gompers, are far from being sanguine of success as to electing their choice for president, they do believe that the matter of minor officers and representation on the executive council, their chances are good.

A hot fight, it was declared today, is looked for over the proposition to combine a number of the big international unions. The radical wing, supported by many who oppose them in other matters, will urge the amalgamation of internationals of journeymen tailors, lady garment workers, men garment workers, hatters and neckwear workers into one big international. There is a sharp division of opinion on this matter, and there is much evidence that some bitterness will develop when it is brought formally before the convention.

One matter, which no doubt will have the solid backing of all factions, will be the proposition to back up the big strikes of the coal miners in Colorado and of the Western Federation of Miners who are on strike in Calumet, Mich. Money undoubtedly will be appropriated for the immediate aid of the Calumet copper miners.

A big idea that Max Hayes will spring, according to information here today, is a proposition that the American Federation of Labor give financial aid to the 30,000 or 40,000 strikers in Dublin. The strike started with the car men some two months ago. It has spread to other trades and the fight is to the death because the employers have repeatedly refused to arbitrate. The strikers, according to Hayes, are in dire straits, as they have never received enough wages to pile up much money for such emergencies as the present. Individual unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor have contributed generously to the Dublin strikers, but Hayes will urge a general labor fund to be raised from workers all over the United States and Canada.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

By MARGARET MASON

(Written for the United Press)
"A-hem! A-hem!" the maiden cried. The modiste said, "Nay, nay; You can't have one this season, we're Not making skirts that way."

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—No longer will you be all hemmed in by your skirt. Like the famous apple core, "there ain't agoin' to be none." Now don't begin to get nervous. In spite of their getting skimpier and scantier we don't mean "there ain't agoin' to be no skirt." Mersey no! It's the hem that's to be eliminated. Henceforward, and also backward, the satin, chiffon or crepe de chine composing your skirt is to be worn au naturel; or, in plain English, the selvedge edge of the material will be used instead of the conventional and cratwhile hem. The effect is bound to be quite different and unique, as the grain of the fabric will necessarily run around the body instead of up and down.

The craze for the velvet bands with jeweled slides that have had fair ladies by the throat all season has now taken them in hand, and wrist bands of wide black velvet with the gem incrustated slides are appearing on every wrist. The neck and wrist bands come in sets to match.

There is no doubt but that you are asked to stomach a great deal in the newest winter fashions. Food isn't the only thing going to stomachs by any manner of means. All the draperies also are headed that way. What has been the erstwhile cross of the pudgy person has become the desire of the svelte. Attenuated ladies sigh for tumblers as strenuously as did Alexander for more worlds to conquer. Actually, stomach pads of rubber are offered to supply any deficiency in the stomach line, and the newest corsets are cut out over the abdomen so that one's stomach may appear untrammelled and to its full advantage. All the skirts are draped up high in front to enhance the full-stomach effect, and to be truly swell you must put up a good front.

So great is the passion for fur that new you are expected to take it to bed with you. The latest word in nighties is one of shell pink crepe de chine banded in white cat. Very kittenish, indeed!

Button, button, who's got the button, is the most foolish of questions these days, when everybody is buttoned up in front or back. There are buttons in front of you; buttons in back of you; buttons to the left of you; buttons to right of you, nor can age wither nor custom stale the infinite variety. They range from the tiniest ball buttons of metal or cut crystal or jet, to huge bone buttons, the actual size of a saucer or of an after-dinner coffee cup, and are everywhere seen in the bright hued sport coats especially.

Buttons covered in silk or cloth to match the material of your costume vie in popularity with quaint little old fashioned china buttons in blue or white, painted in tiny pink or blue rosebuds. Many of the newest coats and jackets are buttoned in a straight line up the front, and frocks buttoning up the back are again backing into favor. It is for ornament rather than use, however, that the myriads of buttons are in most demand.

Most gorgeous evening wraps of solid bead work are now being shown at all the smart shops. Worked out in rainbow-hued beads in intricate and elaborate floral patterns, they are bizarre and ornate enough to attract undivided attention to the wearer, even in this age of lavish and elaborate color schemes and circus effects.

For the occasions when a petticoat is absolutely indispensable—and there are a few such, even in these days of unveiled limbs—an ideal garment is of snugly fitting silk tricot with a flounce of silk, chiffon or lace to suit your whim. While these petticoats are a trifle expensive, their durability and excellent fit make them well worth the initial expenditure.

As a change from the ubiquitous white tulle and net frills and fichus, the same effects, worked out in tulle of black, are very chic. Another touch to differentiate the lace or net trill outlining your low neck is a heading of inch-wide fur banding next the skin. And speaking of skin—remember, you must keep that desirable sallow tone. For everything must have its yellow glint.

With sallow skins, large stomachs and flat chests as the three essentials to beauty, whatever are our standards of pulchritude coming to?

Daughter of Late Senator Elkins Has at Last Decided

Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, has at last chosen "Billy" Hitt instead of the Duc d'Aburru for her husband. After a contest that has lasted more than seven years the young woman suddenly wedded to the son of the late Illinois congressman in Washington Monday afternoon.

Although Mr. Hitt had been a guest of the Elkins family for four weeks, so secretly were the preparations made that the immediate members of the bride's family who witnessed the ceremony were not apprised of what was impending until an hour or two before the wedding took place.

The sudden wedding of Miss Elkins is the culmination of a courtship the equal of which for romantic stances it would be hard to find a parallel for in these matter-of-fact days outside of the covers of a novel. A royal hero, tales of quarrels between two queens and of intrigues at one of the great courts of Europe, have figured in this romance, the central figure of which was an American girl.

Prince Luigi Amadeo, duke of the Aosta, and cousin of the King of Italy, came to the United States during the summer of 1907, in command of the Italian warships that attended the Jamestown exposition. At a dance given at the home of Lars Andersen in Washington, the duke, who already had won fame as an explorer, was introduced to Miss Elkins, or she to him. On his part it was apparently a case of love at first sight. Miss Elkins at that time was just 21 years of age, tall, dark, and very beautiful. At this time Mr. Hitt was also very much devoted to her.

During the four months succeeding their meeting the duke saw a great deal of the Elkins family at Jamestown, Old Point Comfort, in Washington, New York, Paris. In November a report of their engagement found its way into print. That winter he spent a great deal of time with the family in Florida, but society did not begin to take really account of what was going on until March of the following year, when, after an automobile trip from Palm Beach, the duke appeared in Washington. Then renewed reports began to appear of the engagement, and his friends began to express sympathy for Mr. Hitt.
