Five Bridesmaids for Miss Jessie Wilson

Miss Mary G. White

Miss Marjorie Brown

Miss Adeline M. Scott

Miss Margaret Wilson

Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of the president, who will wed Francis H. Sayre November 25th in the White House, has selected bridesmaids from among her friends in many parts of the country, and she has chosen some who are considered very pretty.

Her elder sister Margaret will be the maid of honor.

There will be four bridesmaids, Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, the younger sister of the bride-elect, who is three years her junior, and for whom a great popularity is predicted during the coming Washington social season. Miss Eleanor Wilson is vivacious and exceedingly popular. Of the three daughters of the President she enjoys the most intimate chumship with the chief magistrate. She is fond of horseback riding and tennis, and is an unusually good dancer.

Miss Mary G. White of Baltimore, another of the bridesmaids, was intimately associated with Miss Jessie Wilson during her student days. They were classmates at Goucher college, Baltimore, and have maintained an intimate friendship ever since. Miss Jessie Wilson has been several times a visitor at Miss White's home since she became an inmate of the White House, and in turn Miss White has been a frequent visitor in the Wilson home.

Miss Marjorie Brown of Atlanta, daughter of Colonel E. T. Brown, is a cousin of the mother of the bride-to-be. There is an especial interest in Miss Brown's participation in the ceremony for the reason that she will be the only native Georgian in the party besides the bride. Miss Jessie Wilson was born in Georgia twenty-six years ago.

Miss Adeline Mitchell Scott of Princeton will be the fourth bridesmaid. Miss Scott and Miss Jessie Wilson have been intimate since their babyhood. She is the daughter of Professor William B. Scott of the University faculty of Princeton.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

FLUSH THE KIDNEYS AT ONCE WHEN BACKACHE OR BLADDER BOTHERS—MEAT FORMS URIC ACID

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications. (Paid Advertisement.)

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

By MARGARET MASON

Myrtle has a peg top skirt
Sits up to her knee,
Made of flimsy crepe de chine.
This as it can be,
Neck and shoes are very low,
You can plainly see
Her silk hose are very sheer—
Sheer audacity.
Meet a white fox collar has
On her velvet coat,
But it's only in the back—
White hair is her throat.
Myrtle has the rheumatix
In her dimpled knee;

She has influenza, too,
Also pleurisy.
Myrtle has a hacking cough,
And her nose is red,
Quinsey in her lily throat,
Stuffy is her head,
Through her fever-blistered lips
Still she gayly smiles,
For she knows she's all dressed up
In the latest styles.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—To be truly fashionable this winter you must be prepared to risk both life and limb by exposure. As if the silt skirt were inadequate to reveal sin, truly your nether limbs the silt stocking has been put forward to overcome any such deficiency. Slashed up the side to the height of your knee and arily laced with a silk cord finished with tassels it is dubbed the sailor stocking, possibly because it opens up the way to see.

With blouses cut low necked almost to the waistline, petticoats taboo, the velvet wraps cut out also in the neck and sporting collars of fur only along the back of the shoulders, lovely woman is sure to have a sweet time in a snow storm. Doctors are all simply enthused over the winter styles, and as for the undertakers, well, they should fret.

What ought to be a great help, however, is this newest fad for the female to tote a cane. Every small boy knows the warning possibilities of a walking stick. In Paris no smart pedestrian is glimpsed these days without one, and it is only a question of a while till Fifth avenue is simply rife with 'em.

The new imported silk plush coats for those whose pocketbooks will not stand the wrench of a really all fur one, are as soft and beautiful as a caress, and in taupe or black simulate mink and seal-skin to a nicety. This imported plush is by no means to be confounded with the domestic article, which is heavy and coarse as furniture upholstery in comparison. The imported material known to the trade as hatter's plush, is as light and supple as chiffon velvet. Gowns as well as coats are made of it, and in the many brilliant shades of rose, blue and yellow it is exquisite and unsurpassed for a draped costume.

The silk plush coats and wraps really lend themselves more gracefully to the voluminous draped models, broad at shoulder and hip and narrowing into the ankles, than the heavier, real furs. A black one with a smart fifth collar, across the back only, of course, is elegant and striking in the extreme, and a taupe with a collar of skunk is very lovely. Most all of these coat wraps are three-quarter length only, and invariably show linings of vivid hue satin or brocade.

At the opening of the Little Theater two astounding head-dresses in the audience divided attention with the stage. One, worn by a well known dancer was a turban of white tulle wound with a strand of brilliant swathing her brow. Across the house it gave the startling effect of a lady with a severe headache. In any other color save the white the vision of a large night and the morning after would not have been so vivid. The other heady get-up on a near actress consisted of large oval jet medallions set in the hair on either side of the wearer's head, from which dangled a chin strap of jet that swayed and dangled under the fair ones rather prominent jaw at every turn of her head. From the many silt effects one notes on the heads of the fair set it would seem that the wicker they are the smarter they are.

Otter Coat for Christmas Season

Every American who has sufficient funds to buy his wife a fine coat for Christmas will find it very easy for her to select something gorgeous this year from the fashions coming daily from Paris.

This attractive coat is one of the newest models, and it bids fair to become one of the most popular styles this winter. It embraces the newest features, long, loose back, sleeves cut in one with the coat and cutaway effect. Its length should add to its favor, for with the clinging and elaborately trimmed trained gowns, so popular this season, greater freedom is allowed for walking and the beauty of the afternoon or evening gown is seen to advantage. The gown of the sketch is of clinging black charmeuse, with tunic of Chantilly lace, the tunic being edged with brilliantly hued Oriental beadwork.

The coat in the sketch is of otter, and the coat would be prohibitive to many, but the same effect might be had if substituted by a less expensive fur or a handsome crocodile velvet.
