Mann Doesn't Like to Pick Wedding Presents

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 27.—"Never again," says Representative "Jim" Mann, when anyone asks him how he enjoyed heading the special house committee which was "shanghaied" into selecting the house of representatives' wedding gift to Miss Jessie Wilson. He blames Representative Page of North Carolina for a part of his troubles. Page was treasurer of the fund subscribed, each representative giving about $5 each, although inadvertently Representative Sabath of Illinois and Lathrop Brown of New York sent $10 each.

JACK CRAWFORD IS A BENEDICT

WEDDED MISS COFFEE AT MERRILL LAST NIGHT AND CEREMONY PROVED BIG AFFAIR OF THE YEAR

(Herald Special Service) MERRILL, Nov. 27.—In the presence of many friends, Mrs. Arthur Coffee and Miss Jack Crawford and Miss Mary Coffee were united in the bonds of matrimony. The wedding was celebrated at the Merrill hotel. Mrs. Coffee is the daughter of Mr. Coffee of this city.

Miss Coffee was a "bride from heaven" in the eyes of her groom, L. M. Hatter. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, Mr. Coffee, in a very tasteful manner.

The bride was beautifully attired in white messaline and lace, and the bridesmaid was gowned in lavender messaline and lace.

Following the ceremony the guests were invited to the wedding feast. This proved to be one of the biggest and most enjoyable suppers ever served here.

There was much jollity at the table, and the speakers made plain the solemnity which the contracting parties are held. The bride has been known by all here for her many charming characteristics and her lady-like manner, and the groom is known all over the country as a good fellow, both in and out of the prize ring. For the last year he has been engaged in real estate business here.

The groom owns a residence south of town, and there the couple will reside. They received many useful and beautiful presents from their Merrill friends, among them dishes, silverware, books, table linen, etc.

American Embassy in Mexico to Be Deserted Soon

When Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires in Mexico City, since Henry L. Wilson, the ambassador, was brought back by President Wilson to resign, leaves the American embassy, the magnificent home of the American representative there will be deserted. The situation in Mexico City is rapidly coming to the point, according to the dispatches of the last few days, when the American representative will be directed by President Wilson to close the embassy and return to the United States. Mr. O'Shaughnessy is ready to move at a moment's notice. He will make his way to Vera Cruz, and there go aboard one of the several American battleships in the harbor, if he receives the order to quit the Mexican capital. This move it is believed will mark the beginning of an anti-American demonstration which may result in the destruction of the embassy.

EXPLAINS THE GOOD ROADS BILL

Bourne Goes East to Take It Up With New Congress

In Interview, Senator Outlines at Length the Plan

PORTLAND, Nov. 27.—"I am pleased with the reception my good roads plan has been given in my own state," said ex-Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., before leaving for Washington to resume work for the enactment of his bill. "As the special session of congress confined its attention to tariff and currency legislation, the good roads bill was not submitted. It will be introduced shortly after the convening of the regular session."

In interest in a sinking fund which would accumulate compound interest at 2 per cent and equal the principal in a little less than fifty years. "Thus the states would get their money at less than the usual rate and never be called upon to pay the principal. The fund would be appor-supervision. Good road building, like any other kind of important construction work, requires special training. But there is no adequate instruction in highway and bridge engineering. "My suggested bill proposes the establishment of a national academy of highway and bridge engineering, to which one student would be admitted from each congressional district, the selection to be made by competitive examination. "Each student would be allowed 4 cents a mile for traveling expenses to the institution and $50 per month for living expenses while there, so that boys whose parents are of moderate means can attend. "Third, systematic maintenance is neglected. The fact that metal-surfaced roads are called 'permanent' causes failure to provide in advance for maintenance and repair. "But hard-surfaced wagon roads, like railroads, need constant attention. It is estimated that the annual cost of maintenance is, on the average, about 4 per cent of the cost of construction. "Hence my suggested bill provides that as a further aid and stimulus to the states the government shall annually donate to each state for maintenance purposes 2 per cent of the amount drawn and used by the state for construction, provided that the state expend an equal amount. The adoption of this plan will absolutely secure continual maintenance."

Bettors Favor Chance of Pennsylvania Team

United Press Service PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—Pennsylvania had a slight edge in the betting on today's annual Thanksgiving game on Penn Filed with Cornell. Comparative scores of the eleven and the inevitable vicious fight which the Philadelphians always put up in this final contest against the Ithacans put the victors on the short end of 10-to-3 bets. However, "Millionaire Row" inhabitants from Cornell, as usual, accepted all bets in sight, on the strength of promises from coaches that Cornell will shake from her sleeve several surprises in the nature of forward and double passes. Society from Washington and Baltimore stopped over here today en route to the Army-Navy game on the polo grounds in New York Saturday. Added to these visitors were hundreds of guests at the usual holiday hops and college social functions, so that when time was called close to 20,000 spectators packed the field. On comparative showing this year the Quakers deserve very little odds over Cornell. Each team has played nine games with opponents of about equal calibre. Indiana, Pittsburg, Harvard and Michigan have beaten Cornell, and the strong Colgate eleven got only a 0-0 tie with the Ithaca bunch. Penn lost to Dartmouth and Michigan, and held the galloping Carlisle Indians to 7-7. Michigan defeated Cornell 17-0. The same team beat Penn 13-0. Cornell beat Lafayette 10-3, and Penn beat the same aggregation 10-0. Cornell's total score stands 111 against their opponents' 89. Penn has scored 169 against their opponents' 79. Today's game is the twenty-first successive contest between Penn and Cornell. In this time Cornell has won but once—in 1901, by 23 to 6. Cornell held Penn to a 4-0 score in 1897; in 1898 Penn won by 8 to 5, and in 1899 there was no score. Penn won all the other games with a margin of more than one touchdown excepting last year, when the score was Penn 7, Cornell 3.
