

U.S. Is Building Many Experimental Roads

(Herald Special Service)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.—Over 400,000 square yards of different types of roads for experimental and object lesson purposes were constructed during the fiscal year 1912-1913, under the supervision of the office of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, according to Bulletin No. 23 of the department, making a total of over 4,000,000 square yards of roads constructed under the supervision of this office since 1905.

The type of roads built were brick, concrete, bituminous surfaced concrete, oil cement concrete, bituminous treatment, macadam, asphalt, slag, oil asphalt gravel, oil gravel, oil coralline, gravel macadam, gravel, slag, sand and clay, sand and gravel, clay, shell and earth. The object lesson and experimental work during the past year was done at a cost to the local communities of $139,841.89. This does not include the salaries and expenses of the department engineers.

Railway Vice President Dies on Eve of Marriage

Richard D. Lankford, vice president and secretary of the Southern Railway and many of its subsidiary corporations, died in his home in Brooklyn two days before he was to have been married to a young woman of that city. He was a Maryland man who many years ago had gone to New York and pushed ahead until he held many responsible positions. At 46 years of age he was to wed Miss Melba Patterson, 25, who had just given up an important business position for the wedding set for two days later than the day he was found dead of gas in his apartments.

Mr. Lankford had been identified with railway service from the beginning of his career. He had risen from a minor clerkship to be vice president and secretary of the Southern railway system, and to hold like offices, as well as directorships in many allied corporations. His experience has been largely in the accounting, financial and secretarial branches of railroad administration.

He was a son of Uriah J. and Elizabeth (Bounds) Lankford, was born February 28, 1867, at Princess Anne, Md., and was educated at the Washington Academy at Princess Anne.

From December 1, 1892, to May 31, 1894, he was cashier and treasurer of the Broadway Railroad company and subsidiary lines of Brooklyn, now a part of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system. In June, 1894, he became assistant secretary and later secretary of the Southern Railway, of which company he was chosen vice president and secretary in 1910. He was connected in an official way with twenty-five or thirty other corporations.

Villa's Army Flying into Ojinaga

General Pancho Villa, the conqueror of Juarez and Chihuahua and the victor in the recent battle of Ojinaga, showed his ability as a military leader in this last exploit when he hurried from Chihuahua, 185 miles distant, with a small army and threw himself into the work of driving out the federal troops. The illustration shows the army of Villa scattered out over the road leading into Ojinaga. He left Chihuahua with 1,000 or more troops after the generals he had sent north with many more had failed to capture the town. Within less than six hours after he took charge and began his attack, the federals, led by their twelve generals, were hurrying across the Rio Grande into the United States. Villa and his men had a hard ride across the alkali desert into Ojinaga, but they took part in the battle, which very quickly followed their advent.

Demons of the Steppes at Last Brought to Law

United Press Service
ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 23.—Starting revelations of participation of Russian police officials in the terrible crimes of the "Demons of the Steppes" have been brought out in the trials of seventy-two members of that band of robbers and murderers now progressing at Ekaterinodar, in the Caucasus.

For five years the gang had terrorized nearly the whole province of Kuban, robbing, torturing and killing hundreds. A large number of the prisoners have been convicted and condemned to death or to life imprisonment.

Their long immunity from prosecution was due to the close affiliation of the "Chief Demon," a wealthy landowner named Konch, who had formerly been a secret government agent, with leading police officials of the district, among whom were the commissioner of police and the chief of the secret police at Ekaterinodar.

In the testimony it was revealed that in order to protect the real criminals, innocent persons were arrested, and by means of tortures, of which branding with red hot irons was one of the mildest, were driven to make false confessions.

A local journalist who had the courage to expose these methods was expelled by an administrative order, and was privately threatened with death should he return to give testimony in court. The judges were only able to secure his attendance by appealing to the viceroy of the Caucasus.

Doubly Proven

Klamath Falls Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence

This grateful citizen testified long ago.

Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.

The facts are now confirmed.

Such testimony is complete—the evidence is conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit. M. S. Biden, 614 W. Clark street, Medford, Ore., says: "I suffered from rheumatic pains, caused by uric acid in my system. The pain was especially severe in my back. My kidneys were disordered, too, and my health was all run down. I couldn't stoop without getting dizzy. Doan's Kidney Pills were highly recommended to me and they did just what was claimed for them. As soon as I used them, the pain began to leave me and the action of my kidneys was regulated. By the time I had finished two boxes I was without a sign of kidney trouble. I gladly confirm what I said in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills when I recommended them several years ago. I can only add that kidney trouble and the rheumatic pains have never returned."
