IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

HERE'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO DARKEN AND BEAUTIFY FADED HAIR.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

Self Prisoning of Popes Ends

Pope Pius X Takes Step Toward Peace

Effort to Be Made to Have the Papal Guarantee Adopted by a Number of Leading Nations

By HENRY WOOD
(Rome Correspondent of the United Press)

ROME, Feb. 3.—Pope Pius has just surprised the entire Catholic world, and not a little bit of the international political world as well, by what is conceded to be the most important step in his pontificate.

This is nothing less than the admission that the Vatican is now willing to accept the condition imposed upon it for forty years, when Italy deprived it of its temporal power by the confiscation of Rome and the Papal states.

The Vatican does not renounce its claim to temporal power it admits only the futility of hoping to regain it. But this admission is sufficient to permit the establishment of peace between the Quirinal and Vatican. That such a peace will be brought about is now a practical certainty.

One of the most conspicuous things that will be gained by a settlement of "the Roman question" will be the ending of the self-imposed imprisonment of the pontiffs. For forty years no pope has ever been known to leave the walls of the Vatican.

With the final fall of Rome into the hands of the new kingdom of Italy, Pope Pius IX, the then reigning pontiff, shut himself up in the Vatican. He declared himself a prisoner there at the hands of the Italians whom, he said, robbed him of his temporal power and of his means for protecting his person should he ever issue forth.

Pope Leo XIII, his immediate successor, continued this tradition. He went even further in devoting practically his entire pontificate to the furthering of diplomatic relations with all the leading powers in the hope that they might assist him in regaining his temporal kingdom.

He died with his dream unfulfilled, and the tradition of imprisonment was handed down to Pope Pius X. No one, however, has ever believed that the latter was in full sympathy with it, and now this belief has been justified.

Pope Pius, it now appears, has, for ten years, merely been awaiting the opportune moment, and preparing the church in the meantime for the change in policy which he is believed to have always considered inevitable. The moment which he has finally chosen for announcing a change in attitude on the part of the Vatican has not been without a certain dramatic historic background.

It seems certain, also, that the moment was chosen by him all of a year in advance. The past year of 1913 marked the sixteen hundredth anniversary of the adoption by the Emperor Constantine of Christianity as the official religion of the state. This was the beginning of the temporal power and political independence of the popes.

A little over a year ago Pope Pius decided to celebrate the entire year as an anniversary, and the celebration has been carried out at Rome on the most magnificent scale possible.

This celebration came to a close in the early part of December, and it was precisely at the close of this celebration of the sixteen hundredth anniversary of the establishing of the church as an independent political entity and power that Pope Pius chose for making it known that the church will no longer insist on it. At the national congress of Catholics, held at Milan in honor of the close of the Constantine year, Archbishop Rossi of Udine, a close personal friend of Pope Pius, in the opening address to the congress, made known the future attitude of the Vatican.

He announced that society is now organized on such a basis that an independent political state such as had been conferred on the popes by Constantine was no longer necessary in order to insure the spiritual independence of the pope. This independence, he admitted, could now be secured by other means, which would be just as effective.

As one of the ways of establishing the future spiritual independence of the popes, Monsignor Rossi suggested that the Italian law of papal guarantees, which Italy passed at the time it appropriated Rome from the popes, be guaranteed by a number of the leading powers. This law of papal guarantees the Vatican has never accepted, although Italy has lived consistently up to its part. It guarantees the pope not only absolute spiritual independence, but also absolute political independence within the walls of the Vatican and within another small portion of territory where the former summer home of the popes is located.

Under the law the pope has a right to receive and send ambassadors to other powers, to maintain his own troops, and to be absolutely immune from the laws of Italy.

No Italian officer, not even the census taker, can enter the Vatican. The person of the pope is also held inviolable, and any attempts against his life or dignity are punishable as similar attempts against the king.

Although the Vatican in the past has never accepted this law of papal guarantees, it now admits that it would do so if its enforcement were guaranteed by a number of the powers. Although the law is declared to be a part of the fundamental law of Italy, the same as the constitution, the Vatican insists that some future parliament might repeal it. It also professes to fear that Italy may some day become a republic, and thus the law be set aside.

The Vatican's suggestion, however, that the law now be internationalized has been received with anything but good grace by the Italians. They insist they have enforced this law, that it has demonstrated itself effective in insuring the spiritual and political independence of the pope, and they do not care to have their national dignity affronted by asking foreign powers to insure its enforcement. Incidentally, none of the foreign powers have taken kindly to the suggestion.

Labor Troubles
Mrs. Pearl Worden and May Storm, employes at the Medford Domestic Laundry, tried to settle some personal differences the other day by an impromptu hair pulling match in front of Gates' automobile emporium. As far as could be determined the trouble arose over some aspersions cast upon the party of the first part by the party of the second part during the day's work.—Medford Sun.

New Contract
A new contract has been signed by the county court and State Highway Engineer H. L. Bowley with J. W. Sweeney, Portland contractor, for the construction of the Siskiyou grade for the Pacific highway over the mountains. The proceedings were really a ratification of the assignment of their contract to Keasel & McDowell to Sweeney, the same prices being specified.—Medford Mail-Tribune.

Since Tariffs Came Down
The steamer Waitmate arrived in San Francisco last week from Melbourne, Australia, with 800 tons of frozen beef and mutton. This meat is being sold in the markets in San Francisco at 25 per cent less than beef and mutton raised in California. It is estimated that this one shipment has saved the people of California over $200,000. It is claimed that the meat is equal both in taste and quality to the California meat. The meat is frozen, crosses the ocean in refrigerator ships, and is a solid frozen mass through the entire journey. It will keep as long as fresh meat killed here.—Yreka Journal.
