Old Modes Suggested in New Frocks

Long time ago they wore panniers and polonaises; today there is a quaint suggestion of these old-fashioned modes in the dressy little afternoon dancing frocks that the spring is innovating.

There is fluff upon fluff and puff upon puff, until the fashionably enlarged hip line might assume immense proportions, were not materials manufactured nowadays for the express purpose of draping into graceful undulations that would overjoy the old marble gods of Greece.

Here the Bermuda pink pussy-willow taffeta embodies the lustre and the softness, while the ultra shadowy shadow lace and net lend the sheerness that is essential in every modish frock.

added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remery," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautiful dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Mexican Troops Use 22 Caliber Exaggerated Reports Due to Laziness

Red Cross Representative Says Light Guns Are Used, and Very Few of Those Carried Away Will Die

United Press Service

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 5.—The secret is out. The public long ago began to accept as a joke published reports that hundreds were killed in Mexican battles, for the number invariably dwindled down to a score or so. But there is a reason.

The exaggeration of killed and wounded in battle is directly due to the Mexicans' laziness. The Mexican, both federal and rebel, be it known, with few exceptions, carried the smallest army rifle in the world—a 22 calibre.

Some carry a 30-30. The Mexicans dislike to carry heavy guns or heavy ammunition, and these light rifles are no burden. The Mexican loves to fight, but when it comes to marching and carrying a gun, that is work, and he wants to get out of as much of that as possible. There is no glory in carrying a heavy gun.

This discovery was made by William H. McGrath, representing the National Red Cross Society. He found that Mexicans who had fallen in battle suffered from very small bullet wounds, and further investigation revealed the fact that they carried the lightest weapons possible.

McGrath has just returned from a trip along the border and throughout North Mexico, where he saw much fighting.

During the day of the heaviest fighting at Nuevo Laredo, when the rebels tried to capture the town, 125 "fatally" wounded soldiers who were counted as dead, were cared for by the Red Cross corps. Only four of the Mexicans died, as the majority of the wounds were slight.

This is about the average percentage of deaths of those cared for, asserts McGrath, which leads to the reports being sent out that a great many are killed. They are seen to fall, and they are carried away on stretchers, and the correspondents, and even the generals, are honestly deceived.

So when one reads a headline "Two Hundred Die in Mexican Battle" it may generally be taken for granted that there is a cipher too many. This has been the case in every Mexican battle in the last several years. The slaughter is not so terrible as understood.

The greatest suffering, according to the Red Cross agent, is not on the battlefield, but in the camps and the homes, where there is need of food, fuel and clothes.

"Because small calibre guns are used," McGrath says, "the war may continue for a much longer period than expected—in fact, that is the reason why it already has lasted so long."
