HOW NEWS OF WASHINGTON IS "COVERED" BY THE REPORTERS

More Resident Newspapermen in the Capital Than in Any Other City in the Entire World--Cabinet Officers Have Definite Hours to Receive Reporters

By BURTON K. STANDISH
(Written for the United Press)

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Everyone who has been reading the newspapers during the last fortnight has probably been wondering exactly how the newspapermen at the national capital "cover" developments. It is worth while in this connection to note that probably Washington has more newspapermen as residents than any city in the world.

There are nearly 250 staff correspondents who are members of the press galleries. These are the newspapermen officially credited and permitted to view the proceedings in Congress from the press galleries. The rules are very strict. Only writers who daily "file stuff" by telegraph are permitted. The 250 membership does not cover all those connected with newspaper work here.

The National Press Club alone numbers nearly 350 active working newspapermen among its members. Many writers, of course, are not members. Then, too, there are at least two hundred other men and women who do "odd jobs" of correspondence—secretaries to senators and representatives, government employees, and the like. It is therefore conceded that counting everybody here who does writing for the newspapers and magazines there are at least 800 correspondents in Washington.

The working newspapermen are officially recognized by the government. Mention has been made of the arrangement at the capitol, where there is a committee of correspondents who govern the galleries. There are press rooms at the White House executive offices, the navy, postoffice, treasury, interstate commerce and other departments.

Most of the cabinet officers have definite hours on which they receive the correspondents. President Wilson sees them at least twice weekly—at 10 a. m. Mondays and at 2:30 on Thursdays. Of course, except with special permission, the president never is quoted directly. Correspondents from time immemorial have always managed, however, to use what the president tells them by writing that "the president told his callers today that so-and-so" without use of quotations. Cabinet officials are always quoted, except where they make special prohibition. Of course, most of the news at the White House comes from those who call there. Official news naturally is announced, but it is from the officials, prominent men, senators, representatives and army and navy officers who visit the president that the White House gets most of its "copy."

Imitating the capitol corps, the White House correspondents have also recently formed an association of newspapermen for mutual protection and interest. Only authorized staff newspapermen are eligible. The White House deals with the newspapermen through this official organization. Secretary to the President Tumulty upset all traditions when he took his job. Heretofore, it had always been necessary to send in a card when the secretary was asked for an interview. Now Tumulty's door is always open and a correspondent seeking information can get his ear instantly.

Another man in official life who has upset all expectations or traditions is Secretary Bryan. The Nebraskan has had a good deal to do with newspapermen for a number of years.

He has always been very full, frank and free in discussing matters with them. That is, he was full and frank and free. He isn't now. He is about the toughest proposition in a news way of anybody here.

Of course he isn't as bad as former Counsellor of the State Department John Bassett Moore. More could give a claim a big handicap and beat it in the silence stakes. Daniels, himself a newspaperman, talks very freely. Garrison does likewise. McReynolds is only "fair" as a newspaper victim.

Burleson is very much ordinarily. Lane is universally popular; he's not much on the talking, but he's direct and if he says he can't discuss a thing, the newspapermen know he means it.

Houston, Redfield and Wilson are also rather inclined to soft-pedal when it comes to talking. The newspapermen at the White House "pump" the entire cabinet, and then put together the answers the members give, usually with great success in arriving at what actually happened at cabinet meetings.

Oil Storage Tank.

The council last night granted J. H. Garrett permission to construct a galvanized iron lined tank in Second Railroad addition. The tank will be six feet high, six feet wide and twenty feet long, and will be used as a storage for the fuel oil used on the Eighth street improvement.

In preparation for the coming fire season in California, 110 miles of fire lines have been built on the Sierra national forest.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

EAT LESS MEAT IF YOU FEEL BACKACHE OR THE BLADDER TROUBLES YOU—SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.
