Juarez in Addition to Being Battleground, Is Monte Carlo

In the Times That War Is Not Disturbing the City's Peace, Horse Races, Cock Fights and Other Sports Hold Sway

United Press Service

EL PASO, Texas, May 16.—All things considered, it is rather a remarkable thing that there have not been serious outbreaks between Mexicans and Americans here and in Juarez, which is just across a short bridge over the Rio Grande.

El Paso's population of 49,000 is largely Mexican, and there are a great many Americans in Juarez. At various times strained relations between the constitutionalists or the federals and the American administration have seemed near the breaking point, and El Pasoans have looked for trouble that has never come.

It costs only 5 cents to the trolley line to cross the national boundary into Juarez. In that Mexican city, now controlled by constitutionalists, are gathered hundreds of gamblers from North America, racing men, promoters of cock fights and bull fights, and the usual hangers-on of these amusements.

The race track is only a short distance from Juarez. It can be reached in less than an hour from almost any point in El Paso. Instead of being limited to a period of days, the race meetings some times are stretched over a period of months. It is pointed out here that the easy money of the race track affords considerable augmentation to the funds of the constitutionalists—or the federals, for that matter, if the federals happen to be in power at Juarez.

But the race track is not the only attraction for gamblers and other lovers of "sport" which Juarez holds out. There are cock fights, the roulette wheels, the faro banks, "no limit but the ceiling" poker, and last and most important of all, "keno."

Keno has all the advantages of a lottery. In that a large number of persons can play at the same time and get instant action. If the "sports" are interested, settlements take place every few minutes. With the odds large because of so many players, the winner draws down a considerable pot for the money invested. In playing this favorite of the Juarezites, every player is given for a small fee, usually 10 cents, a card which bears from fifty to one hundred numbers. With one hundred persons taking part, this would make a pot of $10, from which would be deducted the bank's commission.

A "house" employs draws duplicate numbers from a box slowly, calling them out to the waiting men, who have their cards before them, with little bits of gun wadding ready to be stuck upon the numbers upon their cards as these are announced by the caller. The first man to complete a row of three numbers covered with gun wadding shouts "Keno!" and he gets the pot.

As in all gambling games, the possibilities for an argument resulting in a general melee are tremendous, especially when the character of the hot-blooded Mexicans is taken into consideration. The trouble about such a fight is that the Mexicans want to get their knives into action, or indulge in a little shooting, in which latter phase the cowboy element from Texas is only too ready to accommodate them.

Then there is no police force worthy of the name in Juarez, and in the event of a real riot lasting over a period of days, the only appeal which could be made would be to lila. And many of the Mexicans themselves would rather their city be pulled down about their ears than appeal to him, knowing full well what would probably follow should the soldiers be "turned loose" following the "saving" of the city. They figure that while the city might be "saved," it would be saved for the constitutionalist soldiers, and not for the inhabitants.

With all the gambling, cock fighting and horse racing that one's heart could wish, if one's heart desires this sort of thing, it is little wonder that a tremendous number of men form of that sort of thing, the very character of men, usually, who are most prone to trouble of a more serious character, has been drawn to the little Mexican city.

"ROOSTER DAY" IN KENTUCKY

DAY IS SET ASIDE BY AGRICULTURAL EXPERTS AS THE DAY ON WHICH THE LITTLE RED ROOSTER GETS IT IN THE NECK

United Press Service WASHINGTON, D. C., May 16.—The "Little Red Rooster" is persona non grata with poultry experts of the department of agriculture. And acting on the suggestion of the department of agriculture today was named as "Rooster Day" throughout Kentucky.

The program from today on and for several months, during which season the egg market is most plentiful, Kentucky poultrymen have banded together and agreed to sell only roosters for food, instead of hens and chickens, so that the egg crop may thereby remain unimpaired through the laughter of hens for food, as heretofore.

Disappointed Honey-mooners.

After spending five hours at the feet of Mount Shasta without so much as getting a glimpse of the majestic wonder, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Baker arrived in Klamath Falls last night, a much disappointed pair of honeymooners. Mr. Baker, who represents the Moore-Hunt company of San Francisco, persuaded his bride of a few days to accompany him on this trip in order that she might get a good look at Mt. Shasta. When they arrived at Weed Friday, Mt. Shasta was enveloped in fog, which never lifted during their five-hour stay. Mr. and Mrs. Baker are visiting the Fort Klamath country this afternoon, the guest of C. B. Cozad and his new car.
