Fourteen New Cardinals Are Ordained by Pope Pius X.

Thousands Attend Elaborate Ceremonies at the Vatican--
Many Requests for Admission Had to Be Denied

By HENRY WOOD
(Rome Correspondent of the United Press)

ROME, May 28.—The red hat, symbol of the highest office in the Catholic church, with the exception of that of pope, was this morning conferred on fourteen new cardinals. The ceremony took place at a public consistory of the Sacred College, held at the Vatican, and the new princes of the church consisted of the thirteen prelates who were created cardinals last Monday, and Monsignor Hornig, archbishop of Veszprém, Hungary, who was elevated to the purple last December, but had not as yet received the hat.

The ceremony this morning was the most elaborate which has been held at the Vatican since the November consistory of 1911, when amongst the eighteen cardinals created at that time there were three Americans. The presence of all three of the latter, namely Cardinals Farley, Falconio and O'Connell, as well as Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, contributed much toward making today's consistory notable, as the presence of American cardinals at Rome has at all times aroused an interest and enthusiasm which that of other cardinals fails to engender.

The attendance today was also most unusual, this being the season of the year, just following Easter, when Rome is filled with pilgrims and tourists from all parts of the world. The limited number of tickets allotted to the public was exhausted several weeks ago, and thousands of requests had to be refused.

In pursuance with the customs of centuries special tribunes were set aside at the consistory for those who have a special right to attend. These included the diplomats accredited to the Vatican, who attended in full uniform and decorations; the heads of the various religious orders, such as the Knights of Malta, the Franciscans, Benedictines and Jesuits; the officers of the Pope's Noble Guards, Palatine Guards, Swiss Guards and Gendarmes, and high Vatican prelates. There was also the special tribune which for centuries has been reserved for the noble families of the Roman aristocracy, and next to this, at the special orders of Pope Pius, a special tribune was placed for his two sisters and niece, who keep him company in Rome. The standing room left for the public at large was occupied to the last inch.

The greater portion of the morning's ceremony consisted in the figurative bestowing on the new cardinals of the red hat. As the name of each was called, he advanced towards the papal throne, dropping to his knees three times before finally reaching the feet of Pope Pius.

The latter for a brief instant then placed on the head of each a huge, red hat, the same one being used for each cardinal, and recited the ritual prescribed for the occasion. Following the removal of the hat, his holiness placed on the finger of each cardinal a magnificent gold ring, set with the special jewels belonging to the particular order of cardinals to which each had been created, and closed with the apostolic benediction.

Later in the day, special emissaries from the Vatican, driving in the state carriages of the pope, visited the hotel of each cardinal and delivered personally the red hat that becomes a part of the permanent regalia of each new cardinal prince of the church. This hat is retained until the death of the cardinal, when it is then suspended for all time to come in the church of which he had been the particular cardinal protector.

Throughout the entire ceremony, lasting nearly two hours, Pope Pius appeared at all times in the best of health, and at its close there was no evidence whatever either of the fatigue or collapse which invariably followed all such ceremonies towards the close of the pontificate of Pope Leo XIII.

In fact, Pope Pius' whole aspect, as well as his strong resonant voice, indicated that there was every reason to hope that it will be a number of years yet before the cardinals created this morning will be called together in conclave to elect a successor to the Holy See.

Do You Have Trouble With Your Bread?

The uniformity in the quality of the flour and knowledge of its proper use are determining features in successful baking. You may secure excellent results from flour with which you are used and make a failure with other makes. Get used to CRATER LAKE, which is adapted to this climate and altitude.

Try the following recipe prepared by Professor Joseph Becker, the world's greatest chef. Professor Becker made a careful test of CRATER LAKE Flour for us and we guarantee results if his directions for its use are followed:

WHITE BREAD (for use over night)—One cake Fleischmann's yeast, 2 quarts water, 6 quarts sifted CRATER LAKE Flour, 2 tablespoonfuls lard or butter, melted; 2 tablespoonfuls sugar, a tablespoonful salt. Dissolve yeast and sugar in the water, which should be lukewarm in winter and cool in summer, add 2 tablespoonfuls lard or butter, and half the flour. Beat until smooth, then add balance of flour, or enough to make moderately firm dough, and lastly, the salt. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in well greased bowl and cover. Set aside to rise over night, or about nine hours. In the morning mould into loaves. Fill well greased pans half full, cover and let rise until light, or until loaves have doubled in bulk, which will be in about one and one-half hours. Bake forty to fifty minutes. This will make six large loaves. For half this quantity use half the ingredients called for above.
