Uncle Sam Says Use
Care Choosing Sheep

Farmers who contemplate the raising of sheep on their farms are urged by the department of agriculture to give considerable thought to the selection of a breed. In all, there are thirty breeds of improved sheep that have been brought to fixed types. Of these twelve are already well established in the United States and others are gaining in popularity. Each has its own points of superiority, and the farmer must be guided in his choice by the individual conditions, bearing in mind, however, the fact that any breed is superior to no breed.

Although it is hardly to be expected that every farmer in a neighborhood will select the same breed of sheep, there are several advantages to be derived from a number doing so. For example, new rams can be purchased for the common benefit when any individual owner might well hesitate at the expense, and if the lambs are ready in large numbers for market at the same time they may be shipped cheaply by the carload, or the buyers may find it worth their while to come after them.

In selecting a breed it should be remembered that no system of sheep farming is likely to be long successful which leaves out of account either wool or mutton. One or the other, however, may well be emphasized, according to local conditions.

Thus, if pasturage is sparse, feed expensive, and marketing arrangements poor, wool will naturally be the first consideration. On the other hand, where conditions are more favorable, a breed will be selected for its mutton qualities. Even then, however, there is a wide latitude of choice.

In order to assist the farmer in this choice, the department has just published in Farmers' Bulletin No. 576, "Breeds of Sheep for the Farm," descriptions and photographs of the principal breeds, together with the addresses of the secretaries of various breeding associations, from whom additional information can be obtained.

These breeds may be divided into three main groups: The Middle Wool, the Long Wool and the Fine Wool. All the Middle Wool breeds have been developed primarily for mutton. The Long Wools also are bred chiefly for mutton. They are the largest of all sheep, and thrive best where food can be obtained without much travel.

They do well, also, in regions of excessive rainfall. The Fine Wools, including the American Merinos and the Rambouillet, have been bred almost entirely for their wool alone.

Some of these many breeds, says the bulletin, should be selected and maintained, for it is rarely good policy to cross sheep.

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the Nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning, the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will disappear.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing soothing relief comes immediately.
