

FRANCE WILL STAND BY BELGIUM NOW

WAR OFFICE SAYS THE FRENCH WILL SPEND THEIR LAST MONEY TO DRIVE THE GERMANS AWAY

GERMAN ARMY, PRACTICALLY UNOPPOSED, SWEEPING THRU BELGIUM

English Correspondent Refers to the Teuton Advance as a "Tidal Wave." Says Great Britain Must Bear the Brunt of Resistance to This Force. Big Battle is Imminent in the Mulhausen District.

United Press Service
PARIS, Aug. 22.—The war office makes the following statement today:

France is not ungrateful of the aid of Belgium in this crisis. France does not intend to abandon this ally in this extremity, and nothing will be left undone to free Belgium from German oppression.

The last French soldier and the last French money will be used, if necessary, for Belgium's protection.

There is serious concern over the Belgian situation. Officials admit that the Germans have overrun all of Northern Belgium, and outposts in the south are retiring before the advance.

Practically unopposed, the Germans are sweeping toward Ostend, pressing both banks of the Meuse. Namur is isolated.

The Germans and Austrians are endeavoring to envelop the French force at Mulhausen, and a battle is imminent.

Citizens on Tongres, Belgium, are said to have fled from their houses upon a regiment of Uhlans. The latter retaliated by burning the town, and compelled the inhabitants to march for two miles with their hands in the air.

The war office admits that the allies are soon to feel the entire German strength. It admits that the numerical strength of the Germans has compelled the French to retire from Lorraine.

United Press Service
LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Telegraph's Belgian correspondent warns England to prepare to bear the brunt of the resistance against Germany, saying: "The Germans are advancing like a tidal flood. It is rumored that the line of the allies is to retreat to fortified positions on the French boundary."

M'CALL SECURES BETTER POSITION

COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT IS TENDERED A VICE DIRECTORSHIP WITH WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE

Max A. McCall has received still another promotion. This morning he received a telegram from Ira D. Cardiff, director of the experiment stations of the Washington state college, stating that he was authorized by President Enock A. Bryan to tender McCall the vice directorship of the dry land demonstration and experiment department.

The wire urges McCall to accept, and this he will do. It will be several weeks before he leaves, however, as he will make his successor here thoroughly acquainted with conditions.

McCall's new position, in addition to increased salary, is also desirable from the fact that he will be given an opportunity to specialize in dry land experiment work, at which he is especially successful.

It was in 1910 that McCall graduated the Oregon Agricultural College. A year after he finished he was called back to the college and was an instructor there for two years, leaving to come to Klamath Falls to take charge of the new agricultural course at Klamath County high school.

In this position, McCall in two years made wonderful progress with the work, and the course under his guidance became one of the most important at the high school. In addition to his work in this department, McCall also instilled new life into high school athletics, and his work with the football, basketball and other teams was exceptionally good.

the state and nation, Klamath county people turned to the Oregon Agricultural College for a man to carry on the work here. President Kerr and Dean Cordley lost no time in suggesting McCall, and they lauded his efficiency in highest terms. In the short time he has been agricultural agent, he has attained results that show for themselves, and while his friends in and out of town rejoice at his good fortune, they regret his departure from Klamath.

DISTRICT FAIRS NOW A CERTAINTY

COUNTY FAIR BOARD, AT MEETING, NAMES PETERSON AND McCALL TO ARRANGE THE WORK FOR THESE

The county fair board met Friday and appointed M. A. McCall and Fred Peterson to act as agents for the board in arranging for fairs at Fort Klamath, Merrill and Bonanza, giving them full power to apportion funds, appoint committees, secure speakers and attractions, or do any of the things that may seem to further the interests of these fairs.

The major portion of the funds will be allotted to the above mentioned localities, and each community given practically a free hand in planning its own celebration.

If possible, the various fairs will be held on successive days, so as to make a circuit through the county.

Arrangements will be made to place the matter in the hands of local committees at once, so that work may be begun.

FARM WORKERS TO SEE BETTER YEAR

CALIFORNIA COMMISSION ON IMMIGRATION MAKES SOME CHANGES, FOLLOWING RIOTS AT THE DURST RANCH

United Press Service
SACRAMENTO, Aug. 22.—The California Commission on Immigration and Housing does not maintain that living conditions will be ideal this fall for the army of migratory laborers who will harvest the season's crops throughout the state. But one thing it does assert—that conditions will be better for this class of toilers this year than ever in the past.

The change is the result of the riot on the Durst hop ranch at Wheatland, in August, 1913, in which four lives were lost, and in connection with which two men are under sentence today to life imprisonment in the Folsom penitentiary. Some question of wages were involved in this outbreak, but in the main the trouble was due to complaints concerning living conditions on the ranch.

The immigration and housing commission made a thorough investigation of these conditions during the trial, and returned a report so strongly worded that much of it was unprintable, more than corroborating the stories told by the workers. More over, it was asserted that a similar situation prevailed on many another California ranch, and employers were warned that there must be an improvement or industrial troubles of the gravest character would be inevitable.

During the summer members of the commission have inspected nearly 500 labor camps. They announced that employers have met their suggestions more than half way.

FIND NEW BURN IN LAVA BEDS OUR WAR OFFICE SAYS WAR SO FAR ALL PRELIMINARY

DUNBAR AND WHITE BELIEVE THEY ARE DISCOVERERS, AS ARROW HEADS, ETC., WERE ALL UNTOUCHED

Back from a sojourn of several days in the Modoc Lava Beds came Fred B. Dunbar and Kirk White last night, with the report that they believe they discovered another Indian crematory. Their find is in the vicinity of Bearfoot Cave, some distance from the stronghold. According to the explorers, this burn is made out of one of the numerous "blisters," or bubbles in the lava caused by steam pressure in its molten days. The floor of the burn showed no signs of recent visitation, and a number of perfect arrow heads were found among the ashes and bones.

BRITISH-GERMAN SHIPS OFF THE BRAZIL COAST

According to War Department, the Big Problems of European War Are Still to Be Solved—Belgian Minister Makes Formal Protest to Bryan of Germany's Violation of Belgian Neutrality Stand.

United Press Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.—The following is issued by the war department:

"Neither side in the European war can claim what could be called a decisive victory.

"The French are steadily continuing to gain ground in Alsace, and the Germans have forced a large part of the Belgian-French army to retire on Antwerp, but the big problems of the conflict are still unsettled.

"These are preliminary skirmishes, and are only a prelude to the large task when the main armies meet."

Belgian Minister Havens today formally protested to Bryan the German violation of Belgium's neutrality stand.

"Every Belgian will resist this violation until the last," he said.

Old Timer Is Here Visiting His Relatives

Floyd Farrar Sr. is here from Richmond, Calif., visiting his daughter, Mrs. C. R. De Lap, and family, and his granddaughter, Mrs. Claude B. Coon, besides renewing acquaintanceship with old friends here. He will make an indefinite stay.

Prior to his departure from Klamath Falls about twelve years ago, Mr. Farrar conducted a grocery store at the corner of Fifth and Main, where the Hiura hardware store is located. He owned that tract of land, and disposed of it to the late James Haggold. In addition Mr. Farrar owned the property now occupied by the Jacob block at the corner of Sixth and Main. Although about 80 years old, Mr. Farrar is far from being decrepit, and he is kept busy exchanging hearty greetings with old timers.
