

FEARFUL OF AN AERIAL ATTACK, BRITISH ORDER THE MARINES TO HELP THE BELGIANS AT OSTEND

British War Office Is Silent as to Belgium

United Press Service
LONDON, Aug. 27.—England has stripped all of the reserve ships of the North Sea fleet of every available marine, and these have been sent forward to fight the Germans.

The nation is alarmed at the prospect of aerial raids by German air craft if the Kaiser's forces take Ostend. For that reason, the marines are sent out to aid the Belgians and prevent Germany from gaining a permanent base.

Lord Churchill has announced that the marines are already at Ostend. He also says the expeditionary force's ready to sail are large, but did not announce the strength in numbers.

The war bureau is silent as to operations in Belgium. A strict censorship is being maintained, and it is circumstantially rumored that the allies have met with serious reverses.

Some of these say the allies have been entirely driven from the southern part of Belgium.

When asked in the house of commons regarding the lack of news from the front, Premier Asquith made the following statement:

"The British government is desirous of giving the people of the country all of the information regarding the war that is possible and consistent with public interest.

"It has been necessary to withhold many facts, but the veil of secrecy may soon be lifted."

As yet, Lille is uncaptured, but there is fearful fighting there, according to the French ambassador. He says the advance guard skirmished with the Germans, who retired.

He is unable to confirm the reports that the city will not be defended in case there is a serious German movement.

BENSON GAINS A VOTE IN GRANT

RECOUNT AT CANYON CITY PUTS KLAMATH COUNTY CANDIDATE IN THE LEAD OVER JUSTICE McNARY

CANYON CITY, Ore., Aug. 27.—The tie between Judge Henry L. Benson of Klamath Falls and Judge Chas. L. McNary of Salem for the republican nomination for the supreme court was broken at a recount of the ballots of three precincts in this county. Judge Benson gaining one vote.

According to the friends of the two candidates, both have precincts in Multnomah county which they desire to recount the ballots, and Judge Benson, it is said, has a number of precincts in Washington and Tillamook counties in which he wants the votes recounted.

CITY HALL WORK WELL UNDER WAY

CONTRACTORS EXPECT TO HAVE FIRST STORY FINISHED THIS WEEK, AND BUILDING UNDER ROOF SOON

The contractors expect to rush the building right along now, and if they are not held up any more by supplies, etc., they will have the city's structure under roof in the fall. Work will be continued on the interior as much as possible during the winter.

The city hall is to be two stories high, with a full basement. Pressed brick and concrete are being used in the construction, and the trimming is to be of artificial stone, which is now being manufactured by Schofield & Company.

GERMANS PUSH INTO FRANCE

United Press Service
PARIS, Aug. 27.—The fighting between the German army of invasion and the French and English troops continues. It is believed that the Kaiser has advanced far into France in the north.

Dispatches from the front ask for new surgeons and supplies to be rushed north. This indicates heavy slaughter among the allied troops.

At some points along the Belgian-French frontier the fighting is said to be twenty-five miles inside the French lines.

The government has been silent since the statement last night to the effect that a part of the lines of the defense had been repulsed. There has been no confirmation of evacuation of important frontier centers.

The chief danger to France is from the north, where the Germans are combining a crushing forward movement with an extensive flanking movement. The war office insists, however, that provisions have been made to meet and upset this action before the invasion progresses very far.

There are unofficial reports to the effect that the Germans have penetrated the allies' lines between Montmedy and Longwy. The government, while not stating if this is true, admits that the German strength there will eventually compel the abandonment of both of these cities.

To Appraise the Project

On This, the Next Construction Charge Is Based

With the preparation of detailed estimates of the expenditures on the Klamath project from January 1, 1915, to June 30, 1916, the work of the reclamation service office here to be rushed by the passage of the reclamation extension bill will not be ended. After that an appraisal of the project must be made.

This appraisal is also to be made under the terms of the new reclamation bill. It will be completed before December, it is believed.

A representative of the department of the interior, a representative of the reclamation service and a representative of the Klamath Water Users Association will comprise the board of appraisal. The board will go over all of the past accounts of the project, and from these will decide what will be the proper building charge this year.

The recommendation of the board will be sent to Washington, where it will be considered again by the Department of the Interior, and the amount of the charge will then be announced. This form is to be used on all of the projects to determine the next building move.

company was given permission to use 100 yards along Williamson river in front of the mill as a log pond.

This does not open the river to logging, however. It only gives permission to put a boom across the river there to hold the logs, which must be hauled and put into the river.
