

SOME MINOR WAR NEWS FROM EUROPE

LITTLE STORIES FROM THE FRONT THAT ARE COMING IN THROUGH THE CAPITALS OF THE NATIONS NOW FIGHTING EACH OTHER—SOME ARE TRIVIAL, BUT ALL ARE INTERESTING AT THIS TIME.

United Press Service LONDON, Sept. 17.—The war put everybody into khaki, with a few exceptions. On the battle line or in the field the English soldier and the English officer get out of their richly colored and historic uniforms and into khaki of a neutral hue. The Germans are in gray. The Austrians have most of their soldiers in khaki, and the Russians all wear khaki-colored cloth. The French still cling to their blue coats and brilliant red trousers and the Belgians have a uniform that is very similar to the French.

The French and Belgian officers are dangerously ornamented with gilt trimmings during warfare, and present such brilliant targets that some of the Belgian regiments, during hard fighting with the Germans, have lost nearly all of their leaders. The new twentieth century mode of warfare puts a ban on anything that glitters, even the rifle barrels, bayonets and sabres.

United Press Service LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Scotch regiments won't give up their kilts. They have reluctantly permitted the war department to take away from them their plaids and their brightly colored banners and to substitute khaki for the highland hues, but they have got to be khaki kilts; not khaki trousers.

In these days of high-powered guns and scientific warfare, when all of the old-fashioned fashions in fighting have been thrown away, not even a band or a life and drum corps can get into a battlefield, the Scotch regiments still hang to their bag-pipers, or at least their bag-pipers hang to them. No English regiments will fight to music in the war, but the English war office didn't count the bagpipe as a musical instrument, such to the delight of the Scotch fighting men.

United Press Service LONDON, Sept. 17.—"If I were a rich man," said an Englishman the other day, "I would donate large sums for relief in Belgium. Those Belgians fought the Germans thinking that almost any day the English and French troops would come rushing to their relief. But the English and French didn't come, and the Belgians were almost wiped out. I think rich Englishmen ought to make very generous donations to Belgium.

"Money doesn't buy new daddies," answered an American. And the Englishman went away, thinking.

United Press Service LONDON, Sept. 17.—A diary found beside the body of Hermann Schley, a German, who ended his life by severing the arteries in his arms, has aroused the greatest interest in medical circles as describing the sensations of a man bleeding to death. Schley was employed at the Cafe Royal. The coroner held that as everyone was distressed by the war, it was possible the German had worried over the conflict in which his country was engaged until he became insane. The diary follows:

"I am dying! Treat humanly the German when in trouble. My heart no longer beats, but I am still living, as I am breathing. Good bye, my friends from the Cafe Royal and my old father. Ah, how beautiful. For the insults I forgive all. Au revoir 2 pounds 2 shilling 9 pence will be for rent for Mr. Hortens.

"Oh, what a disaster war is!" "4 25 a. m., Wednesday, 6th (sic) August.—21st eclipse of the sun, great slaughter. My pals may enjoy themselves and sing my memories.

"4 30.—Good bye, old Judah (manager of the Cafe Royal), and L., the old miser. No Christmas box wanted.

"4 35.—I feel so happy now. No more worried now like yesterday. Thank you. All getting dark now, but beautiful. I say good bye to all. Don't think unkind of me. Ah, my head!

"4 50.—Old mons. Maitre Chef, see to your chateau. It is dark, and I forgive you all insults, and there were many from some of you. Good bye, my good friend, Gaspard, Graff, etc.

"4 55.—I cannot see, but I am not able to light the gas."

100 Turnstiles To Handle Fair Crowds

United Press Service SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—The work of installing 100 turnstiles at the exposition gates was begun today. Each turnstile will have a capacity of from 1,200 to 2,000 persons an hour. These are expected to take care of all the attendance at the world's fair here in 1915.

No tickets will be sold, the visitor dropping the amount of the admission into a box on the turnstile. An electrical counter will be installed, so that the head of the concessions and admissions bureau may sit in his office and tell the number of persons passing through the gate at any moment, and the total that had passed through.

Merchant Orders His Men to Fight

Harry Gordon Selfridge, formerly of Chicago and owner of London's "American" department store, has notified his heads of departments to intimate to every man in his employ between the ages of 20 and 35, unmarried, that they enlist immediately or resign their positions. In fact, Selfridge several weeks ago announced in a public meeting of his employes, that he was ready to pay half wages to the wives of all men in his employ who enlisted. This resulted in about 30 per cent of the eligible employes enlisting.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

DRUGGIST SAYS LADIES ARE USING RECIPE OF SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.
