BETTER BABIES
 BILL REPEATED

MRS. LIVINGSTONE'S LECTURE
 LAST NIGHT WAS HIGHLY IN-STRUCTIVE, AND HIGHLY IN-TERESTING.

One of the greatest welfare lectures ever given in Klamath Falls was the lecture on the eugenics movement and "better babies" campaign given at the Star theater last night by Mrs. LaMoine Livingstone. In fact, the number was so pleasing that it will be repeated tonight by request, Mrs. Livingstone staying over expressly for this purpose.

Mrs. Livingstone came in on last night's delayed train, but all of those who waited felt well repaid by the splendid message she brought, together with her eloquent plea for the welfare of the children of the future.

Besides the talk, which has been heartily endorsed by the National Eugenics Congress, the Oregon Social Hygiene Society and other organizations working for the betterment of the race, the program included motion pictures, taken in connection with the "better babies" campaign. The film had a great lesson worked into a clever plot, and was intensely interesting.

Fifteen seamen and the master of the British steamer Indian Prince have been landed at Santos, Brazil, by the German steamer Prussia. The Indian Prince was sunk by the German auxiliary cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm.

Scots as Prisoners of War
 in Custody Near Potsdam

The peasants around Potsdam, one of the country homes of the German royal family, have for the first time seen real Scots. These shown in this picture are prisoners of war taken in the battles in France and shipped back to Potsdam for safe keeping. The Scots, however, are being treated as well as they could expect, as is shown by their smiles.

WANT GAME LAW CHANGES MADE

LEGISLATURE TO BE ASKED TO STRAIGHTEN OUT CONFLICTS BETWEEN THE STATE AND NATIONAL REGULATIONS

SALEM, Oct. 8.—When the next legislature meets it will likely be asked to amend the game code in several particulars. With relation to hunting ducks and geese the code now conflicts with the federal law, the latter providing that the season shall be open from October 1 to January 16, and the state law providing it shall be open from September 15 to February 15.

Another conflict exists in that the federal law provides that migratory birds shall only be killed between sunrise and sunset, while the state law allows them to be killed an hour before sunrise and an hour after sunset.

Much complaint is also being made against the game preserve surrounding the capital by farmers. It is seven miles wide and eight miles long, and farmers object to it because it prevents them from hunting on their own land.

CHRISTIANS TO HOLD REVIVALS

STATE SECRETARY OF CHURCH WILL BE HERE SATURDAY TO BEGIN A SERIES OF NIGHTLY MEETINGS

Members of the Christian church are making plans for holding a series of nightly meetings at the church, beginning Monday night. These are to be conducted by C. F. Swander, state secretary of the Christian church, who will reach here Saturday night.

The local church will be in existence five years on October 15th. Arrangements are being made for a special observance.

HOME SCIENCE PLANS FRIDAY

NEW DEPARTMENT OF THE WOMEN'S LIBRARY CLUB WILL OUTLINE CAMPAIGN OF WORK AT MEETING

The first session of the new department of domestic science, inaugurated in conjunction with the new plans of the Women's Library Club, will be held Friday afternoon in the basement of the club. The meeting will begin at 2:30.

At that time Mrs. C. V. Fisher, head of the department, and others interested, will outline the work to be followed. All members of the Library Club and all women interested in this movement are urged to be present.

FORESTER TO BE HERE BY SUNDAY

GRAVES WILL SPEND THE DAY AS GUEST OF KLAMATH FALLS PEOPLE, AND WILL LEAVE ON MONDAY

Henry S. Graves, head of the Forest Service, will spend Sunday in Klamath Falls. This was learned last night in a telephone communication from Will G. Steel, superintendent of Crater Lake National Park, where Graves is visiting today.

The forester is looking into the question of government aid in the construction of roads through the national forests on the Crater Lake routes. This matter will be taken up with him here.

Owing to the fact that he will be here Sunday, there is not a great range of entertainment possibilities. Mr. Graves will be kept interested all the time he is here, though.

Smaller City School Problems
 Are Discussed by the Experts

Bureau of Education Is Devoting Much Attention to the Advancement of Work in Towns the Size of Klamath Falls

(The following notes on the teaching observed in schools of the smaller cities are based on visits by the chief of the division of school administration of this bureau to forty cities of between 2,500 and 30,000 population during the school year 1913-14. While intended mainly for cities of this size, which presents special problems, it is believed that the suggestions contained in this statement will be of interest for all city systems.)

In every city visited there were some exceptionally strong teachers. In several of the cities all of the teaching was of a very high order, especially in those cities where the superintendent is given perfect freedom in the selection and dismissal of teachers, and where salaries are such as to attract good teachers.

No definite data were collected regarding scholastic and professional training, but on a conservative estimate not more than one-third of the teachers in the elementary schools have graduated from a normal school. In a few cities all the elementary schools are normal graduates, while in a few others none are. The tendency is, however, toward higher standards. Many superintendents would make the standards higher, but say that it is impossible to do so with the salaries the city is willing to pay.

Of the schools requiring professional training, some require two years in addition to a high school course; most of them only one. Professional training is not demanded of high school teachers—only a college degree—and in a few instances not even that. Many high schools, because of low salaries, are compelled to employ young men and women just fresh from college, many of whom have had no experience in teaching. On the whole those teachers who have had professional training for grade or high school work are doing better teaching. They are more resourceful, and have a better understanding of the work they are doing.

Many teachers are failing because they are not using illustrative and supplemental material, such as reference books, newspapers, magazines, pictures, etc. Some say that they would illustrate and supplement more if they had the time, forgetting that this is the way they should use part of their time; others say that they would be happy if their pupils could only learn what is in the textbook.

Some teachers still require rules, definitions and poems to be committed before any attempt is made to understand them. Many of those who attempt to use the development method are failing because they are training their pupils to guess, and because they do not attach a principle or rule after it has been developed. Many pupils are weak because certain fundamental facts that are necessary for further advancement have not been drilled into the system to such an extent as to be used automatically.

Material wholly unsuited to a pupil's stage of development is often forced upon him. Much of the retardation is, no doubt, caused by having pupils swallow material that they can not digest and assimilate. Children in the primary grades often struggle over the solution of problems in arithmetic that belong to higher grades.

It is still true of most teachers that they talk too much. In many recitations not requiring much talking by the teacher, three-fourths of the time is consumed in asking questions. Answers are pumped in dribbles, the teacher using a dozen words in a question and the pupil one or two in his reply, thus destroying connected thought.

In too many class rooms no motive for study is provided. Manual training teachers often keep boys working at joints for weeks before giving them anything to join that will be of value. Much of the work in composition is based upon matter apart from the child's life and experience. In arithmetic the leading role "The Pride of Jennico" is a most interesting story of the days "hearts and swords." The play is brimful of tense and beautiful scenes, which will grip the audience from start to finish.
