

The First Three-Gun Turret for Nevada

United Press Service

BORTON, Oct. 16.—Within a few days there will be installed on the new battleship Nevada at the Fore River shipyards, the first three-gun turret ever placed on an American battleship.

They will be the best protected of any in the world, and will be the heaviest ever set up, weighing on the average about eighty tons, or some eleven tons heavier than the turrets on the Argentine battleship Rivadavia, which was considered the "last word" in naval construction.

Each of the Nevada's turrets will have three fourteen inch guns, the most powerful on any United States battleship, and rivaled only by a few in the British and German fleets.

They will weigh about 147,500 pounds each, will be fifty-three feet long, and will throw a projectile weighing 1,400 pounds. The latter will carry a much larger amount of high explosive than the 875-pound projectiles of the 12-inch pieces.

Two of these three-gun turrets will be installed, one in the fore-castle deck and one on the quarterdeck, with a two-gun turret behind and slightly above each other, so there will be five fourteen-inch guns facing ahead and a similar number facing astern. Thus the fire of all ten guns may be concentrated at either side or almost directly ahead or astern.

The advantage of such an arrangement has deeply impressed naval authorities the world over. The New York and Texas, the only American ships now in commission with fourteen-inch guns, carry them mounted in five two-gun turrets, instead of four, as on the Nevada and her sister ship, the Oklahoma.

It is estimated that about three more months will be needed in which to complete the work of laying on the Nevada's side armor.

Because of the fact that she will use only oil for fuel there will be but one smoke stack, and the boilers can be concentrated in the middle of the ship.

The boilers can thus be given heretofore unknown security in the form of the heaviest armor ever employed for this purpose.

A neighbor of yours "told" all over town for a month or so, and would you believe it, it couldn't find a better place to tell it until by accident she dropped into William Johnston's company. She might have told you that she would come here first in the future.

Saturday and Sunday, Bruce Rase, the distinguished dramatic actor, will make his first appearance at the Star theater, in the four part political romance, "The Ring and the Man." The story of a courageous man's triumphant battle against the corrupt forces of a gigantic political ring is excellently portrayed by the Famous Players. The commanding personality and splendid poise of Bruce Rase fit him peculiarly for the leading role.

Among Mr. Rase's recent stage triumphs are numbered "Nobody's Widow" and "Nearly Married."

The "movie" companies are getting nearer to Klamath Falls every day. Only recently the Jesse L. Lasky players, headed by Dustin Farnum, ascended Mt. Shasta, where some very fine scenes were taken. Some of the Shasta views will be seen in the Lasky production of the "Virginian," which will be featured here in the near future.

How many picture fans can answer this question: Who is the film star known as "America's Sweetheart?"

Robert Edson of the Jesse L. Lasky forces is featured in the photoplay productions of "The Call of the North," "The Great Divide," and "Strongheart." Mr. Edson made this latter play famous on the legitimate stage.
