

SOME MINOR WAR NEWS FROM EUROPE

LITTLE STORIES FROM THE FRONT THAT ARE COMING IN THROUGH THE CAPITALS OF THE NATIONS NOW FIGHTING EACH OTHER—SOME ARE TRIVIAL, BUT ALL ARE INTERESTING AT THIS TIME.

United Press Service
LONDON, Oct. 12.—(By mail to New York)—In a letter written to relatives here, Corporal N. Hastings, of the Guards, accuses the Germans of treachery. He writes:

"If the papers were permitted to send their correspondents to the front they would have something to say which would open the eyes of the world about the Germans. It is an insult to Zulus to compare these square-heads to them for treachery. Some of them fight fair and square, but there are thousands of them who are devoid of all human feeling.

"Near the banks of the River Aisne they had been attacked and driven down by rifles and machine guns. A small number of the Northampton were in a trench when 400 or 500 of the Germans held their hands up. The 'Cobblers' were ordered not to fire, and an officer asked in French and English if they had surrendered. They came on in skulking manner, and some of them threw down their rifles. In every way they showed they were giving themselves up as prisoners. The 'Cobblers' were priding themselves on the capture, and the officer said: 'We have a haul here, as they got near the trench.'

"When they were three or four yards away they poured a murderous fire at the poor fellows. They had not a dog's chance, and nearly all were knocked over. The devils then tried to get back, and ran for their lives, but our battalion was soon after them. Before they got many yards a machine gun flpped them up, and scores of them rolled over. Some of them got away, but our battalion got them in the rear. Our lads were simply furious at such treachery.

"I had a narrow shave as I fell over one of their wounded, and before I could get up again a bullet whizzed through the sleeve of my coat, but he who fired was shot through the head the next second.

"Some of the German officers are lowbred. They are not like ours, gentlemen, and when they get a chance they gorge themselves and get mad drunk, so what can you expect from their men. I have spoken to several prisoners—one seemed a decent chap, and spoke English well, having been working in London—and they admit it. The one who spoke English was a sergeant, and he said his officers were perfectly mad because they were unable to get into Paris."

READING, England, Oct. 10.—(By mail to New York)—Caught weaponless while digging trenches, a British force in Belgium, consisting of a Middlesex company, put up a stubborn fight against a party of Germans, using only their bare fists, according to Private William Court, who has come home wounded.

"The Middlesex company was digging a trench," he said, "and was not equipped for fighting. All of a sudden a horde of Germans rushed on them. I never saw such a display of grit in my life. Those Middlesex men, with their bare hands, went after those Germans, who were charging with bayonets. One big Middlesex sergeant downed two Germans with his fists before a German bayonet got him. The boys fought bravely, but the odds were too great, and most of them were bayoneted."

PARIS, Oct. 19.—(By mail to New York)—Shot four times, once in the stomach, twice in one leg and once in his thigh, an English soldier was taken to the Red Cross hospital at Poitiers in an ambulance. He crawled out of the ambulance unaided, although with some difficulty. Then he hobbled into a barbershop next door to the hospital.

It was explained to him that he made a mistake—that he was in the barbershop, not the hospital.

"I know that," he exclaimed, rather petulantly. "But I want a shave first, and want it right away."

He got it.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(By mail to New York)—More than 300 Germans who were either born in Great Britain or are naturalized citizens have had their names changed by due process of law since war was declared. Following are a few of the German names and the names that displaced them, as shown in court records:

Klusman, Maclaren; Rosenthal, Rodney; Kloss, Mathurst; Rowits, Howard; Knoch, Mayman; Stahwasser, Stowe; Schweral, Vincent.

Kaiser's Nephew Killed in Battle

United Press Service
LONDON, Oct. 25.—According to the war bureau an eye witness has reported the death of Prince Max of Hesse, a nephew of King Wilhelm, who was killed in action in the Mont Desseze region.

The prince was buried in the monastory grounds with three British officers killed in the same battle.

"TIZ" FOR TIRED SORE, ACHING FEET

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet, swollen, hot and aching sorely. No more pain in corns, callouses or bunions. No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ."

"TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug or department store, and get relief.

Tommy Atkins Happy With Loaf

These are the loaves handed to the British soldiers at war in France. Each man cares for his own loaf, and it is a prized possession on which he may find it necessary to live several days in trenches when the battle is too hot for the field kitchens to serve him.
