

TAXPAYERS KIND TO CHAMBERLAIN

His Salary As Office Holder
Exceeds $100,000—Asked
"How Was It Spent?"

Since H. A. Booth, Republican candidate for United States Senator, answered the question, "Where did you get it?" Republican papers have raised the question for George E. Chamberlain, the Democratic nominee to answer, "How did you spend it?" Some industrious digger has compiled the list of public offices Chamberlain has held since coming to Oregon from Mississippi and calculates that Chamberlain has drawn down more than $100,000 in money contributed by taxpayers. It is how Chamberlain spent this money that Republicans are curious.

One newspaper editor recounts that Chamberlain has been Attorney-General, District Attorney, Governor and United States Senator, holding some of these offices more than one term, and that Chamberlain since entering public life has scarcely ever been off the payroll, as he entered upon a new job before the old one was worn out. In his explanation of "where he got it," Booth told the story of his life. Democrats say that Booth is an aristocrat and does not belong to the plain people. Booth's own narrative recounts how he was one of a family of 12 children; that he lived in a log cabin, worked on a farm and took his pay in chickens; punched cattle, herded sheep and otherwise helped support the family until he was 21 years old and paid for his first "store clothes" by gathering wool from sheep which died on the range. He struggled hard for an education and acquired it. He was a day laborer, and day laborers are supposed to be plain people. By industry he met with success and associated with others he built up a sawmill industry which developed the timber resources of interior Oregon.

H. A. BOOTH

Booth's statement included the declaration that at times the sawmill he managed employed 1300 men and the payroll exceeded $80,000 a month. The concern brought into Oregon more than $10,000,000 of outside money and farmers, merchants, laborers and entire communities received the major part of this sum, directly or indirectly. The Republicans point out that Booth's rise from a farm hand and day laborer to his credit and that hundreds of other Oregon boys are developing the same way. They also point out that the industry which Booth's efforts built up brought into the state more money than the Government has appropriated for river and harbor improvements in Oregon since the state was admitted to the Union.

During the period that Booth was turning timber into a stream of gold which was flowing through interior Oregon, spreading prosperity to workers and merchants, the Republicans declare that Chamberlain was drawing a salary from tax funds as an officeholder. Having been born in Oregon and lived here all his life, Booth's supporters contend that he knows its people and the needs of the state as well as any man can and, having made good, whether as a farmer, cowboy, shepherd, bookkeeper or sawmill man, he can make good in the Senate.

The impression that Booth is a millionaire has been gained because of the great commercial enterprise which he caused to grow from almost nothing and because of the large contributions he has given to educational and other betterment works. Booth confesses that he never was a millionaire and that his holdings in the business he managed was very small; in fact, it is about 3 per cent, or $45,000.

Instantly, some of the Republican papers declare that it is as important in judging the fitness of a man for office to know how he spends his money as it is to know where he gets it. They point to the large donations made by Booth to show where he has been spending his money for the benefit of the commonwealth, and they keep asking Chamberlain, "Where did you spend it?"

These will be the leaders of the football teams of Michigan and Harvard universities when they clash at Cambridge tomorrow in a gridiron battle which promises to become one of the most interesting and important in the country. Never before has Harvard consented to play a first class western university, and this may be the opening for general games between the eastern and western universities. Only in this way will an American championship be established. But Harvard has not consented to play a return game in Michigan next year.

When "Pigs Is Pigs" Up to Commerce Body

United Press Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 20.

"Pigs Is Pigs," the comic tale recently popular, was vividly before the Interstate Commerce Commission and representatives of express companies when the commission today opened hearings on new rules proposed, regulating packing and shipping of a widely miscellaneous list of merchandise.

How to ship guinea pigs was one of the questions before the commission.

Hasty transport of the animals is an imperative rule of the express companies.

Other questions involved in the hearings were: Maximum weight limit for shipments of mice; standardizing value of opossums; how to pack duck eggs; protection of live crabs in shipment; and treatment of shrimps (edible variety).

Regulations for shipping moving picture films were also before the commission.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

IF MIXED WITH SULPHUR IT
DARKENS SO NATURALLY NO
BODY CAN TELL

The old time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair good.

even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular, because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

Passengers Are Landed in Erin

United Press Service

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Warned by wireless that German mines are scattered along the northern coast of Ireland, the steamer Loympie, en route from New York, this afternoon landed its passengers at Lough Swilly, County Donegal, Ireland, where special trains waited to convey the passengers to the Wexford coast, and thence to England.

Mill for Highgrade

That the interests back of A. M. Dunlap, the mining engineer, who recently secured a bond and lease on the Big Four property in the Highgrade mining district, mean business is evidenced by the recent visit of a mill expert to the Big Four property, accompanied by Mr. Dunlap. The latter informed a representative of this paper that his people had decided to put in a big mill on the property, commencing its construction next spring. This mill will have a capacity of 500 tons of ore per day, and will therefore require about 100 stamps. It will require eight months to construct the mill.—Lakeview Herald.
