A BIGGER FIGHT COMING

ELECTION time is a time for surprises, and true to this, a big surprise was found in the "late lamented" by quite a number of local people. This was over the failure of the initiative measure providing for a half mill tax levy for advertising purposes.

Just "how it happened" is not clear to many. One theory is that it was downed through the county because the Klamath Chamber of Commerce was connected with it. To support this contention, some say that ever since the Chamber of Commerce has been in existence it has been unable to get proper support from the farmers, many of them being inclined to criticize the body as working solely for selfish interests.

Now, although the Chamber of Commerce initiated the measure, and was active in the boosting of it, it must not be understood for a moment that the $5,000 or more to be realized was to be used by or for the benefit of the Chamber of Commerce. The provisions of the measure stipulated that the fund be expended for advertising the resources of the county, under the direction of the county court.

The main reason was to provide funds for a proper participation in the 1915 fair, for all the states of the West, realizing the immense opportunity to be derived from participation, intend to make their display there the climax of their years of publicity work. The question was submitted in the hope of raising a little fund that would permit of a creditable showing in competition with counties that have been levying a similar special tax for several years.

In answer to the charge that the Chamber of Commerce is working for the interests of a few comes the statement by some members that although it has sought to help all the county, and that the most of its activity, like the agitation that secured a county agriculturist, have been to help the farmer, the farmer is very slow to acknowledge this, and leaves the support up to the business men. These people say that they thought that participation in the exposition warranted support from all people, and some threaten to never again make any donations for boosting the county.

But whether there is a Klamath exhibit to bring Fair visitors to settle here or not, there is much to be done for the present population of the county, enough to keep several communities busy. On these matters it behoves the "town and county" to get together. The interests of one are the interests of the other, and co-operation will be a necessity if Klamath is to get her share of possible benefits.

One little instance that may be cited is the appropriation Klamath is to secure for the completion and ex-tenation of its reclamation project. The amount of this depends almost wholly upon the extent of co-operative action by the farmer and business man.

While the reclamation extension bill carries immense relief for those paying project costs, even this great measure has its disadvantage. This is in the "pork barrel" rider tacked to it.

In getting through congress the bill had hard sledding at a few points, and before it could get satisfactorily under way, it had been cornered by politicians, notably Oscar Underwood, and saddled with a provision that the appropriation for all projects must be approved by congress. As this made the support of the East and South at a premium by the various Western delegations, the bill went through with a rush after this, the Easterners thereby increasing their chance to swing Western votes to their purposes in exchange for Eastern support on reclamation matters.

Project Manager Camp has made estimates of the amounts needed for the local work for a couple of years to come. These include not only the cost of finishing present work, but also for several proposed extensions.

The estimates are now in the hands of the Secretary of the Interior, with similar estimates from all other projects. From these Mr. Lane will make up the needed appropriation, and petition congress for its approval and passage.

Just then there must be all kinds of pressure brought to bear upon the Oregon congressmen and any others that can be enlisted, to work to see that congress does not cut down the Klamath appropriation. Then there must be united effort here, or Klamath county will suffer sorely.

Why not get together now, so as to be ready for the fight?

Scattered Shots

BUT OUT OF THE trouncings administered the K. C. H. S. football team in the Rogue River Valley, the local students can take the satisfaction of knowing that the Klamath students are apparently much more intelligent, for they are constantly meeting teams of high school players who are older and bigger than they are.

STUBBORNNESS is that trait in others that we call "will power" and "strong mindedness" in ourselves.

IF A MAN can make something better and cheaper than everyone else, the time will come when the world will seek it—providing he advertises and lets the world know a little about it.

AND NOW some unsympathetic cuss comes forward with the suggestion that a motor driven seat of government be given the Belgians.

WE ALL HAVE OUR troubles. Even poor old Carranza. He went to the discard even quicker than some of our former baseball idols.

SOME MEN are honest because they cannot afford to be otherwise.

THE ANKENY DITCH matter will before long be submitted to the people. As a Good Citizen, you should do your share right now, by explaining to your neighbors the necessity of the abatement of this great nuisance.

IT'S THE open season for books, now, and there is scarcely a magazine printed but what is willing and glad to load you down with twenty volumes and a year's subscription for only $1.32—a month.

NOW WOULD BE a good time to renew agitation looking towards the re-opening of Williamson and Sprague rivers to logging. An all-winter campaign might bring the desired results in time to permit early logging in the spring.

He's a Union Man.
Warren L. Duhi, erstwhile local baseball magnate and publicity expert, is now connected with the Sacramento Union in Northern California, according to word just received here.

Want Street Lights.
Lights at Third and McKinley, Fourth and McKinley and Fourth and Roosevelt, were asked at last night's council meeting. The matter was referred to the street committee.
