U. S. to Prevent Any Poultry Trust Work

United Press Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 11.—In an effort to guard against a tendency towards monopoly of the poultry packing industry and to prevent its falling into the hands of a few big interests, as has happened to the beef packing industry, the Department of Agriculture has just issued a warning to chicken raisers to give encouragement and support to local poultry packing industries in all parts of the country.

"There is a danger, poultry specialists of the department feel, that the poultry industry will become as highly centralized as the beef industry in a few distant packing centers," the department warns. "In this event, just as the farmer with a few beef cattle to dispose of has to seek a market several hundred miles away or deal through local commission men or agents who will buy live cattle, chicken raisers, unless local poultry dressing and refrigerating establishments are maintained, will have to dispose of their product for live shipment to Chicago and other centers."

From the point of view of the consumer, the department says, the tendency to ship live poultry long distances by rail is decidedly wasteful. Poultry shipped 400 or 500 miles, even under the best conditions of transit, loses an average of 26 per cent in weight, the department's specialists compute. Chickens that have traveled long distances by rail reach the killing centers in much worse condition than those which are sent a few miles. Besides the additional cost of feeding is an important item.

The department specialists, therefore, are encouraging dressed poultry producers not to centralize their slaughtering establishments, and instead of erecting one $20,000 plant to draw from a territory with a large radius, are advising them to build instead three $10,000 packing plants in three different centers, each looking to a supply from a territory with a smaller radius that assures of live chickens in excellent condition.

"Under this plan," the department states, "the poultry packed and shipped is not only in better condition, the experts believe, but in addition the three districts benefit by the investment and permanent location of an industry, and these industries in turn react favorably on poultry production in that territory."

ANDERSON IS TO "FIGHT" AGAIN

LIGHTWEIGHT IS MATCHED WITH ASTORIA BOXER FOR A TEN ROUND AFFAIR—AGAIN "SURE I'LL WIN"

According to advices from the north, Bud Anderson is again to take a chance at winning fame in the prize ring. Instead of scrapping for a fancy purse with some top-notch, though, he is matched with an antiquated boxing instructor, and the proceeds of the mix are to be divided between the fighters and the football team of the Astoria Amateur Athletic Association.

The boxing contest is to be a ten-round affair, and will be staged at Astoria November 15. Bud's opponent at that time is Willie Mack, boxing instructor of the association, who retired from the game before Bud entered it. In his younger days Mack was a clever, hard fighter. Since retiring he has "discovered" Soldier Berg and other promising fighters.

Recently Anderson underwent another operation. Now he says he is in better shape than ever, and he looks for a victory over Mack.

NO BRILLIANT TROOPS PARADE

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT TODAY IS MORE SOMBER THAN IN FORMER YEARS—KING ASKS HELP FOR WAR OFFICE

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The brilliantly uniformed crack troops which have been so prominent in the ceremonies marking the opening of parliament were lacking today, when the British law making body convened again.

For the first time, khaki clad troops participated in the state procession. These troops are mainly volunteers, who are held for home defense, and they added to the parade a spirit of preparedness in place of military grandeur and precision of former years.

PORTLAND, Nov. 11.—"Any person who ventures to make exorbitant the grills of this city for New Years eve, expecting to witness unusual sights, will be playing a losing game. The police will be on hand to see that there are no orgies or excessive drinking. If ever there was a time when such happenings should be curbed, it is now, just after the state has voted decisively for prohibition."

This statement was made by Mayor Albee this morning, when asked what liberties would be extended the usual New Years eve crowds. He said further he realized there would be an inclination on the part of some saloon and grill proprietors to go the limit, since it has become definitely known that prohibition will be a fact January 1, 1915. He intends to notify the police to be on the alert, and whenever he finds the law violated will immediately cancel the license.

Proprietors of many grills throughout the city, anticipating a big business on the close of the old year, are fixing the amount of deposits for reservations of tables high.
