HARDWARE STORES BID ON SUPPLIES

THREE FIRMS SUBMIT OFFERS, AND THAT OF ROBERTS & HANKS IS ACCEPTED BY THE COUNCIL.

Roberts & Hanks were last night awarded the contract for furnishing the hardware necessary for the new city hall. Their bid was $317.

A short time ago the council had prepared a list of the hardware supplies necessary for the city's new home, and invited bids on the lot. In addition to the successful bidder, proposals were submitted by the Darling Hardware company and the Baldwin Hardware company.

discovered. Nance again escapes the police by jumping into "the bishop's carriage." She later is given an opportunity by a theatrical manager to travel the straight road. After many trying experiences she finally succeeds in shaking off the old ways and associates, and begins her life anew. Mary Pickford has the leading role, and is ably assisted by the Famous Players.

Tonight the Orpheus will show the first episode of "The Trey o' Hearts," without question the greatest serial story ever written. The author, Louis James Vance, is too well known to the reading public to need comment. Expense has not been spared by the Universal Film company to make this the greatest production in the film world. The first episode comprises three reels, but hereafter two reels will be shown each week.

"How Wild Animals Live," a $250,000 production in six reels, will be the feature at the Orpheus Sunday and Monday. This picture has been pronounced by the San Francisco board of education to be the greatest educational production of the "movie" world. Animal life is shown from all parts of the world. Among others are pictures of marine life taken from a submarine chamber. The fact that the San Francisco educational body has recommended this production so highly speaks volumes, as many other animal pictures have been exhibited there.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

By Hal Sheridan

United Press Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The times haven't changed, and the old saying that "they don't come back" sticks. Having once been shaken from a championship throne, fighters still preach loudly from the housetops that they are as good as ever, take on a few boys they would not even have looked at in other days, and then steer up against the new champion. The result is always the same. The former king pin gets a licking. In meeting Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion, here recently Ad Wolgast wanted to satisfy that gnawing ambition to crawl back as a champion. He wasn't there by a mile.

Welsh couldn't put him out, and the fight was stopped in the eighth round because Referee Roche declared Ad had broken a bone in his forearm when walloping Freddie's skull, but Wolgast never threatened Welsh. Freddie out-boxed him, and though Wolgast tried to bore in and keep the fighting at close quarters Welsh stood him off and peppered him with right and left hooks.

Wolgast looked strong and husky. He was browned by the sun, and carried the healthy flush of out-door living into the ring with him, but the strength oozed away as the fight progressed, and Welsh is confident he would have given the former champion the K. O. had the fight gone another round. It's the same old story. These human machines will go just so long, and then they begin to burn out.

When that starts a new boy comes along and puts over a crusher. Then comes a period of inaction; putting on a little fat; reviving of the old ambler; training to get back into shape; a few easy bouts and the old champion thinks he's "back."

The old spark is gone, however.

AMATEUR PERFORMANCE ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The energy boilers have caved in. It's simply all over.

Tim Murnane, president of the New England League, and dean of Boston baseball, is cut up over the fact that several of the Boston Braves have been lured upon the stage.

"There is absolutely no excuse for Gowdy and Rudolph in their stage venture," says Murnane. "No excuse whatever, except several thousand dollars to put away in the old family sock." Murnane is willing to excuse Manager Stallings, as he says George needs the money, there being no market for the $30,000 worth of cotton he has on his Georgia plantation. Well, Rudolph has a new baby at his home.
