THE WATER SQUEEZED OUT

(From the Eugene Register)

SOME ONE has said that the uses of adversity are sweet, and it must be admitted that there is considerable truth in the assertion. In times of prosperity we fall into errors that can only be corrected by a slackening in prosperity. Periods of depression are distressing while they last, but the evils they bring are by no means unmitigated with good, for they bring us down out of the clouds and get our feet on solid earth again.

Oregon, together with the rest of the country, has been undergoing one of these periods during the past year. Enterprise has been slowed down. New business projects have been held in abeyance and investment has been checked. People with money have held off further investments because they preferred to wait a while, and people without money have been compelled to hold off because they could make no new loans.

The benefits to be derived from this slowing down are twofold. For one thing, reckless speculation has been checked and people have been forced to give close attention to actual development in order to protect investments already made. The custom of buying land and then sitting down and waiting for it to increase in value instead of actually working it had become entirely too common for the general welfare. When men buy a farm and then turn around and sell it a few days or a few weeks later at a large advance in price, they will not get out and follow the plow. But when the find that they can no longer make a living by speculation alone they begin the work of actual development as a means of getting the returns on their investment that they must have in order to carry it. Thus the entire country benefits, for it is development we need, and not speculation.

Another advantage that will accrue to Oregon is the squeezing of water out of land values. Everybody knows that speculative activity had shoved prices too far up the scale. In too many cases the point of actual value had been passed, and prices were being asked that could not possibly be justified by actual production. These prices were not based on returns from the land, but on the hope that someone could be found who would pay them. The slackness of the past year have scaled these prices down until they have reached firm bedrock of actual value.

The full measure of this benefit will be realized next spring and summer with the flood of immigration that will come to the state because of the exposition. The low transportation rates that are promised will bring to the coast the greatest tide of immigration ever known, and Oregon will get her full share. When these homeseekers come we will be ready for them, for we will have what they want—and at a price that will represent actual value. There never was a better time to buy land in Oregon than now. The water has been thoroughly squeezed out of the speculative holdings, and prices have been brought down to a conservative level. Attention has been turned away from speculation and centered on real development. It is fortunate that this condition prevails at a time when unusually heavy immigration is due, for Oregon's greatest need is more population on the farms, and attractive prices will help immeasurably in getting the people we need.

Naval Fighting Ground Between Turks and Allies

The Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmora and the Bosphorus will be the scene of mighty naval battles between the fortifications of the Turks and the fleets of the allies. For some time the British and French fleets have bombarded the fortifications at the Dardanelles, but so far there has been no results. It is not known if battleships with heavy guns have been brought to the scene. The walls of Constantinople and the forts to protect that city from the Russian battleships in the Black Sea are not sufficient, it is believed, to withstand a heavy attack. If the allied fleets go through the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmora it is believed that Constantinople will fall.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

By Hal Sheridan

United Press Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Eddie Mahan has this year proved the biggest sensation of the season. If Yale has any hopes of holding Harvard through sheer grit, or otherwise to a nothing-nothing score on Saturday, the sons of Eli will have to hold the Crimson machine back of the Blue's forty-yard line. Any time Harvard gets that close to the uprights Mahan's toe is dangerous.

It's true that Mahan failed on five of his seven trials at a field goal against the Tigers, but Mahan was still suffering from a wrenched knee and he hadn't been in tough scrimmage for two weeks or more before that battle. Since that time Mahan has fully recovered, and he has been shooting the ball through the uprights from all angles half a dozen times or more each day.

That Tiger game worked wonders for Harvard. From the time Harvard's hope were suddenly duffed by the announcement that Charley Brickley would have to give up his appendix and any chance of ever representing the Crimson again on the gridiron. The gloom that fell over the Cambridge institution still hung in thick and opaque wreathes about the stadium. Haughter had built up his entire machine and every play around Brickley and the best educated and most highly trained toe that has booted a football over a goal post since Walter Eckersall.

Then Mahan jumped to the fore with such efficiency and vim that for Harvard it was nothing more than "the king is dead; long live the king." Mahan has literally hopped into Brickley's shoes as if to the manner born. Many were astonished at his great work. As a matter of fact, it wasn't wonderful at all. It was merely that Mahan, great player that he was, could not be seen with a spyglass when Brickley was kicking goals, smashing interference and cracking open defenses. With the brilliance of Brickley yelled, Mahan shines out like the star he is.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS IF BACK HURTS OR KIDNEYS BOTH

If you must have your meat every day eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaker, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink.
